McKELDIN AND BUTLER ELECTED

Republicans Score Striking Gains

Pick Up Six House Seats, 3 In Senate

Taft, Millikin And Dewey Win

[By The Associated Press]

The Republican leadership team in the U. S. Senate, Taft of Ohio and Millikin of Colorado, swept to victory yesterday in a national election that bolstered GOP strength in both houses of Congress.

Back into office too went New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Republican victories unseated such Democratic stalwarts as Maryland's veteran Sen. Millard E. Tydings, Senate Democratic Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois and Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut.

In Pennsylvania, Republican Gov. James H. Duff won election to the U. S. Senate, defeating Democratic Sen. Francis J. Meyers.

In Ohio, Taft easily trounced Democratic State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, who was backed by a solid combination of labor unions.

New Yorkers Elect Impellitteri Mayor

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP) — Vincent R. Impellitteri, the immigrant son of an Italian shoemaker, and insurgent candidate, tonight won election as mayor of New York City.

Both his leading rivals conceded after the independent Democrat swept to a commanding position starting with the first returns.

First to concede was Republican Edward Corsi. He was followed soon after by the regular Democratic candidate, Judge Ferdinand Pecora, who also had the Liberal Party nomination.

In Colorado, Sen. Eugene D. Millikin won reelection over Democratic Rep. John A. Carroll, staunch "Fair Dealer."

Taft is chairman of the Republican Policy Committee and was fought by a Democratic-labor coalition.

Millikin, a Taft lieutenant, heads the Senate Republican conference.

Several big name Democrats were blotted from the political scene, at least temporarily.

Welker Wins In Idaho

But the Republicans had succeeded in capturing three Senate seats formerly held by Democrats. In addition to the Maryland and Illinois victories, Herman Welker, Republican, won in Idaho over D. Worth Clark, Democrat. This contest was for the seat Sen. Glenn Taylor, Democrat, lost in the primary. Taylor temporarily left the party to run for vice president as Henry Wallace's ticket mate under the Progressive standard in 1948.

The score board at 3:30 a. m. showed that in the fight for con-

Defense Chiefs, Truman Confer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP) – President Truman voted the straight Democratic ticket in his home town of Independence, Mo., today then flew back to conferences here on the grave turn of the wa. in Korea.

He said he was so confident of the vote outcome he wouldn't even sit up to hear about it.

Landing at National airport at :24 p.m. EST, the President was met by Secretary of State Acheson. He has been in close touch with Acheson by telephone since he flew west Saturday to vote and to make his one frankly political speech of the congressional campaign.

Then he conferred at the White House with Acheson and Secretary of Defense Marshall. There was no statement on the meeting but it doubtless concerned affairs in Korea.

After his White House business, Mr. Truman's plans called for "some sleep" while the election results are counted up, and a rest — for several days, perhaps — aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg on the Potomac river and Chesapeake bay.

U. S. 3rd Infantry Division Lands At Wonsan Port

Marines Gain Mile In Changjin Gorge

SEOUL, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP) — American air power blasted Red positions near the Northwestern Korean border today in the second greatest air attack of the Korean war. More than 600 planes were used.

The big raid against cities, towns, bridges and Red positions came as the Tenth Corps on the Korean east coast announced the arrival of elements of the U. S. Third Infantry Division at Wonsan port of the Sea of Japan.

There was no indication of where the Third Division would be deployed.

The big air strike was flown through cold, blue skies. The attack ranged all along the Manchurian frontier, almost to the Soviet Siberian border. Pilots had orders to make certain their bombs fell south of the Yalu river boundary and not in Red China's Manchuria.

The main target was Sinuiju, near the west coast. B-29s and B-26 bombers set out to flatten the town with explosives. Sinuiju is a major supply and transportation center.

Today's attack was the biggest air effort since the early part of September when the Air Force concentrated everything it had to help halt the Communist offensive in Southern Korea, near Taegu.

A U. S. Fifth Air Force spokesman said every bridge across the Yalu, which will freeze solid in a few weeks, was made a target. But bombardiers were cautioned to drop their bombs on the south ends of the bridges (the Korean side) to avoid Chinese soil.

They faced Manchurian anti-aircraft guns.

Across the Yalu from Sinuiju lies the large Manchurian town of Antung. U. S. pilots said it was from the Antung airfield that Russian-made jet fighters took off for attack on Allied planes yesterday.

On the ground in Northwest Korea, United Nations forces deployed along a 60- nile front. The line ran from the Anju bridgehead over the Chongchon river northwest to Pakchon then eastward to Yongdong in North Central Korea.

Generally the Red Chinese and North Koreans were organizing an opposing defense line and did not attack in force, except in a sharp battle throughout yesterday and last night for the bomb shattered town of Pakchon.

On the left flank of the United Nations lines, the 27th British Commonwealth Brigade and U. S. 24th Division units advanced up to three miles north of the Anju.

Communist troops retreated in large numbers before the British advance. The commonwealth troops reached to within two miles of Pakchon, which is eight miles northwest of Anju.

When the ground attack started small enemy groups mounted token resistance. Then an estimated 800 Communists started pulling back from hill positions.

In the battle for Pakchon, South Korean Eighth Division elements met stubborn resistance from an estimated Red regiment dug into hills northeast of the town.

Arrival of the U. S. Third Division elements on the east coast coincided with a Tenth Corps announcement that U. S. Marines last night swept forward more than a mile in the Changjin river gorge without meeting any Chinese resistance.

Blizzard Slows Hunt For Plane With 22 Aboard

BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 7 (AP) — An airliner carrying 22 persons vanished into swirling snow over the Continental Divide this morning and a mounting blizzard quickly hamstrung the search for it.

Snow and peak-shrouding clouds first hampered and then halted aerial search. Snow and mud on back roads blocked automobiles and forced ground parties to start climbing afoot into a craggy area 15 miles east of here where several persons reported hearing a heavy explosive.

The westbound Northwest airliner, with 18 passengers and four crew members aboard, left Helena at 9:53 a. m. (EST) for Butte. The pilot of the Martin 202 radioed at 10:11 a. m. He was over Whitehall about 50 miles south of Helena, starting his descent at 10,500 feet.

Searching parties were sent to an area about 15 miles east of Butte after Mrs. Carl Halvorson, wife of a Northern Pacific Railroad section foreman, reported hearing a low-flying plane and explosion.

Other reports from Lake Delmo and Camp Caroline pinpointed the explosion just north of Homestake Pass, where the Northern Pacific Railroad crosses the Continental Divide.

A highway patrol car took Mrs. Halvorson within a few miles of the area, then got stuck in deep snow and mud.

The plane disappeared over Pipestone Pass about 10 minutes out of Butte.

Gov. Warren's Daughter Stricken With Polio

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP) —Nina Warren, 17-year-old daughter of Gov. Earl Warren, was hospitalized today for infantile paralysis, the Governor's office said.

Warren's secretaries said doctors held strong hope for her recovery because the polio is localized in her legs.

Nina's illness brought the Governor speeding to her bedside in Sutter hospital from Oakland where he, Mrs. Warren and their 22-year-old daughter Virginia voted.

U. N. Korean Unit Assures Red China Allied Forces Will Respect Its Border

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 7 (AP) — The U. N. Korean Committee unanimously approved a resolution tonight assuring the Chinese Communists, in effect, that their border with Korea will be respected by the U. N. forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The committee acted after receiving an official report from Gen. MacArthur yesterday that Chinese Communists were fighting the U. N. forces in North Korea. The committee directed its members now on the scene in Korea to start work immediately and lend all possible assistance on questions relating to North Korea.

Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine foreign minister and chairman of the committee, put the resolution before the committee. He called the situation urgent.

Council Appeal Seen

Before the resolution was approved Ambassador Ernest A. Gross, No. 2 U. S. delegate on the Security Council, conferred with the committee as diplomats sought accurate information on the Chinese Communist forces and intentions in Korea.

The resolution was seen in some quarters as preparing the groundwork for an appeal from the Security Council for the Chinese Communists to withdraw and assuring the Chinese Communists that the northern frontier of Korea would be respected. Nothing was said about the huge power producing plant on the Yalu river, the comments here indicating that the U. N. may be turning toward a strong assurance to the Chinese that the U. N. forces will not cross the border.

Council To Consider Case

Security Council delegates were silent on developments which might be expected at their urgent meeting on the Korean situation tomorrow. However, consultations were being held among the various council members.

The delegates sitting here are permanent U. N. delegates. The countries named on the commission are sending their regular commission members direct to Korea and hope to have the commission in full session by Nov. 20.

Vishinsky Doubts Chinese Communists Are Fighting In Korea

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP) — Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky said tonight he doubts that Chinese Communist troops are now fighting in Korea.

"Perhaps there are some volunteers," he said. "but I doubt that any Chinese Communist troops have appeared there."

Vishinsky made these remarks through an interpretor to reporters at the Russian embassy where he was honor guest at a gala reception commemorating the 33rd anniversary of the Communist revolution.

Answering questions, he said he has not read Gen. MacArthur's report to the U. N. which charges that Communist forces are aiding the North Korean Communists.

Pressed for more specific information on the Chinese Communist situation, Vishinsky pointed out he is now far from the Soviet Union and "I'm not so informed on that matter."

Truman Safeguards Tightened Further

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Precautions for President Truman's safety were tightened further today.

Barricades were placed across both ends of a one block stretch of West Executive avenue, which runs between the White House and the old State Department building.

Pedestrians as well as motor traffic are forbidden to enter the block. White wooden guard houses were established at each end, manned by uniformed officers.

Crommelin Loses

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 7 (AP)—Lister Hill, Alabama senior senator, was reelected today in a race against retired Adm. John G. Crommelin.

"Oscar Of Waldorf," Host To Presidents, Kings, Dies

NEW PALTZ, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP) — Oscar Tschirky, host to presidents and kings who knew him as "Oscar of the Waldorf" died at his secluded little cottage here last night while playing checkers with his son, August.

The 84-year-old famous maitre d'hotel had served 50 years with both the old and the new Waldorf-Astoria hotel as an official greeter and supervisor of foods before he retired in 1943.

Presidents from Grover Cleveland through Franklin D. Roosevelt dined under his watchful eye and genial graciousness. France, Belgium and Romania decorated him with medals. The elder J. Pierpont Morgan would have none but Oscar supervise his meals and he was a favorite of Winston Churchill and Sir Thomas Lipton.

U. S. Aggression In Korea Charged By Top Russians

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 (AP) — Soviet disapproval of United States intervention in Korea was emphasized sharply today in the celebration of the 33rd anniversary of the Russian revolution. The Soviet armed forces were ordered to increase their vigilance and combat readiness.

Tanks, guns and troops of the Moscow garrison paraded across Red Square in foggy, drizzly weather which grounded the Soviet warplanes that usually do formation flying on such occasions.

West "Preparing For War"

Marshal Semeon Budyenny, a World War II hero and member of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (parliament), declared in an address from the reviewing stand atop Lenin's Tomb that western "imperialists" are preparing for a new war.

"The Anglo-American imperialists have now passed from preparations for aggression to direct acts of aggression, evidence of which is the bandit intervention of the United States in Korea," he said.

"The Soviet people, together with other freedom-loving peoples of the world, brand the American aggressors with shame and express their sympathy with the Korean people who are conducting a heroic struggle for the freedom and independence of their motherland."

Words Considered Serious

Similar expressions came in orders of the day to the army and navy. These were issued by Marshal A. M. Vassilevsky, army minister, and Adm. I. S. Yumashev, naval minister.

While the Russian press has charged before that the United States government intends to unleash a new war on the world, it has never been said quite so authoritatively or quite so repeatedly.

Western diplomatic observers in Moscow, therefore, are studying the phrases carefully. They indicate that they consider the words significant and serious.

U. S. Wins First All-Jet Battle

U. S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN KOREA, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP)—Jet met jet today in mortal combat for the first time in history.

A U. S. F.80 Shooting Star knocked down a Russian-built MIG-15 jet in a five-minute 600 mile an hour battle over Sinuiju in Northwest Korea.

The American plane was piloted by First Lt. Russell Brown, Pasadena, Calif. Brown said the speedy MIG-15 exploded.

Ranch Hand Jailed, Fined For Dragging Horse To Its Death

GUNNISON, Colo., Nov. 7 (AP)—Jess Brandt, a Gunnison ranch hand, was sentenced to a 60-day jail term for dragging a horse to its death behind his truck.

Brandt also was fined $217 in Justice Court. Sheriff Herb Lashbrook said it was "one of the most vicious cases of murder of a horse I ever saw."

Testimony showed Brandt became angry when the horse balked at being loaded onto a truck in the Doctor park area near Gunnison. The ranch hand tied the animal, a mare, to the truck and drove down the road.

Republicans Unseat Gov. Lane, Sen. Tydings

GOP May Gain Even Split In House; Hammond Wins; Ober Act Upheld

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP)—Maryland has chosen a Republican to head the state government for the next four years.

And it has turned down the bid of Democratic Sen. Millard E. Tydings for a fifth term in office.

Elected governor was Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, former mayor of Baltimore and orator extraordinary. He defeated Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., by the largest margin ever rolled up by a member of his party for state office in Maryland history.

Chosen to succeed Sen. Tydings was John Marshall Butler, 53-year-old Baltimore attorney who made his first bid for elective office a successful one.

McKeldin had tried twice before to become governor. He was defeated in 1942 and 1946 by large margins.

It even looked as if the Republicans had a very good chance of gaining an even split in the House of Representatives for the first time in many years.

Of some consolation to the Democrats was the fact that the party reelected Attorney General Hall Hammond to a second term and put in State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes by default. Tawes had no opponent.

Sketchy reports from the counties indicated, too, that the Democrats would have working majorities in the Legislature which convenes January 3.

Lane Concedes Defeat

With 753 polling places of 1,429 reported, McKeldin had 229,175 votes to 168,455 for Gov. Lane. That was a margin of about 60,000 votes.

Gov. Lane conceded defeat at 12:25 a. m. and sent "sincere congratulations" to the victor.

Butler's unofficial total, with 753 polling places in, was 201,844 votes to 169,032 for Tydings.

Sen. Tydings, himself, said at 1 a. m., that "it looks like Mr. Butler has enough majority to ensure his election."

Butler's victory marked the first time Maryland has chosen a Republican senator since Philip Lee Goldsborough turned the trick in the "Hoover landslide" of 1928.

Republican James P. S. Devereux, hero of Wake Island, was running ahead of William P. Bolton, the Democrat incumbent in Maryland's sprawling Second Congressional District.

If he holds his edge, it may well mean that the Maryland congressional delegation will be made up of three Democrats and three Republicans.

Rep. Miller, Beall Lead

The other five incumbent congressmen—three Democrats and two Republicans—were leading.

In fact, the two Democrats whose districts are wholly within Baltimore city, apparently were elected

Russian Returns To Allied Council Meeting In Tokyo

TOKYO, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP) — The Russian representative on the Allied Council for Japan, Maj. Gen. A. P. Kislenko, returned to a regularly scheduled council meeting today for the first time since a Soviet walkout last April 26.

Kislenko gave no advance indication of his intention to appear.

The meeting lasted 30 minutes and was mainly occupied by a brief, but bitter, exchange between the Soviet General and the representative of the Chinese Nationalist government, Chen Yen Chiun.

There was no mention of Chinese Communist intervention in Korea.

The repatriation of Japanese prisoners held by the Russians was the principal reason for the Soviet boycott.

Nepalese Ruler Flees; Grandson Becomes King

Palace Revolution Implied By Reports

NEW DEDHI, India, Nov. 7 (AP) — A three-year-old grandson of King Tribhuvana Bir Kikram of Nepal has supplanted him on the throne of that Himalayan nation adjoining Tibet, the Nepalese embassy announced tonight. A palace revolution was implied.

The King, 44, took refuge at the Indian embassy in his capital at Katmandu yesterday. The Indian Foreign Ministry said he wants to come to India for medical treatment and his government objected. Other sources reported the King wants to get out of Nepal because of a mounting demand from his 6,000,000 subjects for change from the present autocratic, feudal-type government to a democratic setup. The sources minimized the influence of Communist China's invasion of Tibet on his decision.

The prime minister, Marahaja Mohun Shamsher Jang Baradur Rana, tried twice this week to obtain an audience with the King to ascertain the reasons for his projected move to India, the embassy statement said. It continued:

King Is Figurehead

An emergency session of the Nepalese parliament and Council of Elders decided unanimously this morning that the boy, a son of the crown prince, should be enthroned immediately.

Tribhuvana Bir Kikam was a boy of five when he assumed Nepal's throne on the death of his father.

The King is a figurehead. The real ruler is the prime minister, who also is the nation's commander-in-chief.

Lighter Side Of Elections

KOKOMO, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP) — Among the Kokomo voters today were two 99-year-old women and another woman 86 years old who voted for the first time in her life.

The first time voter was Mrs. Amanda Meadows, who explained: "I always believed it was a man's place to vote and not a woman's."

The 99-year-old women are Mrs. Nora T. Gause and Mrs. Ophelia Everman. Both said they had been voting since women were given the right to ballot in 1920.

GOSHEN, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP) — Charles Howard, a retired policeman, came to a voting place in an ambulance today.

"I lost my leg but not my vote," he told election officials.

One of his legs was amputated after he was injured in an automobile accident last week.

Ambulance attendants carried him into the voting booth.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 7 (INS) —James A. Hard, who cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln, was brought to an election booth by a nurse today and balloted for what he said was the 85th time.

"Voted straight Republican," the 105-year-old Civil War veteran told newsmen.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7 (AP) — Voters in one Baltimore city precinct glimpsed an earlier than early trend in today's contest for governor.

A voting machine broke. It had recorded a 99-81 lead for Republican Theodore R. McKeldin.

CIO To Support Telephone Strike

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP) —The CIO today pledged its full support to the communications workers, scheduled to strike at plants of the Western Electric Co. Thursday morning.

The union expects that a strike of 37,000 employes at Western Electric would hamper operations on a nationwide scale of the Bell Telephone System. Western Electric is a subsidiary of Bell.

CIO President Philip Murray, in a letter to CWA President Joseph Beirne, said the union had displayed "unusual patience in seeking to reach a fair and peaceful agreement on the issues involved," despite the company's "brazen disregard for the economic welfare of its employes and a stubborn refusal to bargain collectively in good faith."

"In the light of these facts, the CIO—and I personally—offer to you and the Communications Workers of America our full support x x x."

Beirne, in a statement tonight, said that officials "see little chance of a settlement unless the company moves away from its adamant insistence on sub-standard wage increases, and a long-term wage freeze."

Acheson Skips Soviet Party To Cast Vote

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson chose to vote today instead of attending a Soviet party.

Acheson decided to skip a Russian embassy affair, celebrating the 33rd anniversary of the Red revolution in Russia, so that he could drive out to his home town of Sandy Spring, Maryland, to cast his ballot in the nationwide elections.

Barricades were placed across both ends of a one block stretch of West Executive avenue, which runs between the White House and the old State Department building.

Pedestrians as well as motor traffic are forbidden to enter the block. White wooden guard houses were established at each end, manned by uniformed officers.

Crommelin Loses

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 7 (AP)—Lister Hill, Alabama senior senator, was reelected today in a race against retired Adm. John G. Crommelin.

"Oscar Of Waldorf," Host To Presidents, Kings, Dies

NEW PALTZ, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP) — Oscar Tschirky, host to presidents and kings who knew him as "Oscar of the Waldorf" died at his secluded little cottage here last night while playing checkers with his son, August.

The 84-year-old famous maitre d'hotel had served 50 years with both the old and the new Waldorf-Astoria hotel as an official greeter and supervisor of foods before he retired in 1943.

Presidents from Grover Cleveland through Franklin D. Roosevelt dined under his watchful eye and genial graciousness. France, Belgium and Romania decorated him with medals. The elder J. Pierpont Morgan would have none but Oscar supervise his meals and he was a favorite of Winston Churchill and Sir Thomas Lipton.

U. S. Wins First All-Jet Battle

U. S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN KOREA, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP)—Jet met jet today in mortal combat for the first time in history.

A U. S. F.80 Shooting Star knocked down a Russian-built MIG-15 jet in a five-minute 600 mile an hour battle over Sinuiju in Northwest Korea.

The American plane was piloted by First Lt. Russell Brown, Pasadena, Calif. Brown said the speedy MIG-15 exploded.

U. S. Aggression In Korea Charged By Top Russians

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 (AP) — Soviet disapproval of United States intervention in Korea was emphasized sharply today in the celebration of the 33rd anniversary of the Russian revolution. The Soviet armed forces were ordered to increase their vigilance and combat readiness.

Tanks, guns and troops of the Moscow garrison paraded across Red Square in foggy, drizzly weather which grounded the Soviet warplanes that usually do formation flying on such occasions.

West "Preparing For War"

Marshal Semeon Budyenny, a World War II hero and member of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (parliament), declared in an address from the reviewing stand atop Lenin's Tomb that western "imperialists" are preparing for a new war.

"The Anglo-American imperialists have now passed from preparations for aggression to direct acts of aggression, evidence of which is the bandit intervention of the United States in Korea," he said.

"The Soviet people, together with other freedom-loving peoples of the world, brand the American aggressors with shame and express their sympathy with the Korean people who are conducting a heroic struggle for the freedom and independence of their motherland."

Words Considered Serious

Similar expressions came in orders of the day to the army and navy. These were issued by Marshal A. M. Vassilevsky, army minister, and Adm. I. S. Yumashev, naval minister.

While the Russian press has charged before that the United States government intends to unleash a new war on the world, it has never been said quite so authoritatively or quite so repeatedly.

Western diplomatic observers in Moscow, therefore, are studying the phrases carefully. They indicate that they consider the words significant and serious.

Ranch Hand Jailed, Fined For Dragging Horse To Its Death

GUNNISON, Colo., Nov. 7 (AP)—Jess Brandt, a Gunnison ranch hand, was sentenced to a 60-day jail term for dragging a horse to its death behind his truck.

Brandt also was fined $217 in Justice Court. Sheriff Herb Lashbrook said it was "one of the most vicious cases of murder of a horse I ever saw."

Testimony showed Brandt became angry when the horse balked at being loaded onto a truck in the Doctor park area near Gunnison. The ranch hand tied the animal, a mare, to the truck and drove down the road.

Republicans Unseat Gov. Lane, Sen. Tydings

GOP May Gain Even Split In House; Hammond Wins; Ober Act Upheld

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP)—Maryland has chosen a Republican to head the state government for the next four years.

And it has turned down the bid of Democratic Sen. Millard E. Tydings for a fifth term in office.

Elected governor was Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, former mayor of Baltimore and orator extraordinary. He defeated Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., by the largest margin ever rolled up by a member of his party for state office in Maryland history.

Chosen to succeed Sen. Tydings was John Marshall Butler, 53-year-old Baltimore attorney who made his first bid for elective office a successful one.

McKeldin had tried twice before to become governor. He was defeated in 1942 and 1946 by large margins.

It even looked as if the Republicans had a very good chance of gaining an even split in the House of Representatives for the first time in many years.

Of some consolation to the Democrats was the fact that the party reelected Attorney General Hall Hammond to a second term and put in State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes by default. Tawes had no opponent.

Sketchy reports from the counties indicated, too, that the Democrats would have working majorities in the Legislature which convenes January 3.

Lane Concedes Defeat

With 753 polling places of 1,429 reported, McKeldin had 229,175 votes to 168,455 for Gov. Lane. That was a margin of about 60,000 votes.

Gov. Lane conceded defeat at 12:25 a. m. and sent "sincere congratulations" to the victor.

Butler's unofficial total, with 753 polling places in, was 201,844 votes to 169,032 for Tydings.

Sen. Tydings, himself, said at 1 a. m., that "it looks like Mr. Butler has enough majority to ensure his election."

Butler's victory marked the first time Maryland has chosen a Republican senator since Philip Lee Goldsborough turned the trick in the "Hoover landslide" of 1928.

Republican James P. S. Devereux, hero of Wake Island, was running ahead of William P. Bolton, the Democrat incumbent in Maryland's sprawling Second Congressional District.

If he holds his edge, it may well mean that the Maryland congressional delegation will be made up of three Democrats and three Republicans.

Rep. Miller, Beall Lead

The other five incumbent congressmen—three Democrats and two Republicans—were leading.

In fact, the two Democrats whose districts are wholly within Baltimore city, apparently were elected

Russian Returns To Allied Council Meeting In Tokyo

TOKYO, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP) — The Russian representative on the Allied Council for Japan, Maj. Gen. A. P. Kislenko, returned to a regularly scheduled council meeting today for the first time since a Soviet walkout last April 26.

Kislenko gave no advance indication of his intention to appear.

The meeting lasted 30 minutes and was mainly occupied by a brief, but bitter, exchange between the Soviet General and the representative of the Chinese Nationalist government, Chen Yen Chiun.

There was no mention of Chinese Communist intervention in Korea.

Palace Revolution Implied By Reports

NEW DEDHI, India, Nov. 7 (AP) — A three-year-old grandson of King Tribhuvana Bir Kikram of Nepal has supplanted him on the throne of that Himalayan nation adjoining Tibet, the Nepalese embassy announced tonight. A palace revolution was implied.

The King, 44, took refuge at the Indian embassy in his capital at Katmandu yesterday. The Indian Foreign Ministry said he wants to come to India for medical treatment and his government objected. Other sources reported the King wants to get out of Nepal because of a mounting demand from his 6,000,000 subjects for change from the present autocratic, feudal-type government to a democratic setup. The sources minimized the influence of Communist China's invasion of Tibet on his decision.

The prime minister, Marahaja Mohun Shamsher Jang Baradur Rana, tried twice this week to obtain an audience with the King to ascertain the reasons for his projected move to India, the embassy statement said. It continued:

King Is Figurehead

An emergency session of the Nepalese parliament and Council of Elders decided unanimously this morning that the boy, a son of the crown prince, should be enthroned immediately.

Tribhuvana Bir Kikam was a boy of five when he assumed Nepal's throne on the death of his father.

Lighter Side Of Elections

KOKOMO, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP) — Among the Kokomo voters today were two 99-year-old women and another woman 86 years old who voted for the first time in her life.

The first time voter was Mrs. Amanda Meadows, who explained: "I always believed it was a man's place to vote and not a woman's."

The 99-year-old women are Mrs. Nora T. Gause and Mrs. Ophelia Everman. Both said they had been voting since women were given the right to ballot in 1920.

GOSHEN, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP) — Charles Howard, a retired policeman, came to a voting place in an ambulance today.

"I lost my leg but not my vote," he told election officials.

One of his legs was amputated after he was injured in an automobile accident last week.

Ambulance attendants carried him into the voting booth.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 7 (INS) —James A. Hard, who cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln, was brought to an election booth by a nurse today and balloted for what he said was the 85th time.

"Voted straight Republican," the 105-year-old Civil War veteran told newsmen.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7 (AP) — Voters in one Baltimore city precinct glimpsed an earlier than early trend in today's contest for governor.

A voting machine broke. It had recorded a 99-81 lead for Republican Theodore R. McKeldin.

CIO To Support Telephone Strike

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP) —The CIO today pledged its full support to the communications workers, scheduled to strike at plants of the Western Electric Co. Thursday morning.

The union expects that a strike of 37,000 employes at Western Electric would hamper operations on a nationwide scale of the Bell Telephone System. Western Electric is a subsidiary of Bell.

CIO President Philip Murray, in a letter to CWA President Joseph Beirne, said the union had displayed "unusual patience in seeking to reach a fair and peaceful agreement on the issues involved," despite the company's "brazen disregard for the economic welfare of its employes and a stubborn refusal to bargain collectively in good faith."

"In the light of these facts, the CIO—and I personally—offer to you and the Communications Workers of America our full support x x x."

Beirne, in a statement tonight, said that officials "see little chance of a settlement unless the company moves away from its adamant insistence on sub-standard wage increases, and a long-term wage freeze."

Acheson Skips Soviet Party To Cast Vote

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson chose to vote today instead of attending a Soviet party.

Acheson decided to skip a Russian embassy affair, celebrating the 33rd anniversary of the Red revolution in Russia, so that he could drive out to his home town of Sandy Spring, Maryland, to cast his ballot in the nationwide elections.

NEW YORK (INS)

WHEN television became as much a part of the American household as plumbing, to draw a perhaps unfortunate parallel, my old mother uttered her closest approach to an ejaculation.

"My, my," she swore, "What'll they think of next?"

Well, sweetheart, Secretary of State Dean Acheson may have supplied your answer. As a lifelong Democrat, that should please you.

The report is that Dean, sitting in his Washington tower, which is made exclusively of ivory, keeps a television set at his elbow and watches every move made by his chief delegate at U. N., Warren Austin. U. N. hearings, as you know, are regularly televised.

Let Austin utter so much as a syllable that isn't in direct tune with our policy, and Dean picks up a phone that connects directly to an Austin aide at U.N. who soon imparts the message — via note — to our spokesman.

This may account for Austin's occasionally harried look. It also sets what must be a modern A.A.U. record for the second guess. There must be a lot of times when our distinguished delegate must wonder just what is his boss's policy, for it has been known to make 90 degree turns on a dime without ever scraping fenders with "in God we trust."

Acheson's remote spying was anticipated years ago by Charlie Chaplin in a film called "modern Times." Every time Chaplin tarried an extra moment in the seclusion of the gentleman's room of his factory, the glowering head of the boss —enlarged and enraged many times —would appear on a screen that served as one of the walls of the haven. And the boss would bark something bossy.

There are infinite potentials to this new use of television. With saloons like the Stork Club now televised, and others like Toots Shor's being voluptuously tempted, there may come a day when a waiter will tap you on the shoulder, when you're hardly half-way through a five-gallon tin of gin, and whisper, "The old lady's been watching you, Mac, and she says if you take one more jolt of that juice she'll brain you when you tiptoe in."

The front offices of baseball clubs, never fully satisfied with their managers, can hereafter direct their teams even when the sweaty artists are on the road, and presumed to be safely out of reach of the brass. Great spot for Ricky!

It should be a natural for sedantary generals, who will now be able to sit back at headquarters, with an open telephone wire to battalion command posts, and be able to tell the boys up front just how to persevere under fire.

We witnessed an invasion of mankind's traditional privacy, through television, not long ago on an NBC program entitled "Who Said That?" Alarming experience.

The clearest answer to "Who Said That?" — on that particular night — was the husband of a babe who was sweating it out on the panel of experts.

She was beating her skull a mite, trying to remember a quote that had appeared in the first edition of the Manchester Guardian the week before (I had long since surrendered, my subscription having lapsed) and seemed almost on the point of getting it when she was informed that she wasn't speaking loud enough.

Bob Trout, the brilliant M.C., didn't tell her. Nor did an engineer. Her husband did, by means of a phone call and furtive note. Later he insisted that she pull up the front of her dress a bit, and take care of the curl that had sprung loose from her coiffure.

It seems probable that eventually our home life will be televised, if not for the public then for persons in other parts of the house — or just outside it. We may all live to see the night when, having quickly doused the lights at the sound of some pest's car driving up to the stoop, he refuses to go away because — through infra-red lighting, and the 16-inch screen on the front — he can see you playing dead behind the divan.

It'll be tough, too, on kids who bid one and all a fond good-night, yawn, and then go off to their rooms for a four-hour pillow fight. Their acts, like that long-hand message to Nebuchadnezzar, will appear on the living room wall, and the old man soon will be thundering up the steps with a hairbrush.

Verily, with television there is no place to hide.

Government Buys Three Buildings Near Blair House

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Three buildings just east of Blair House, President Truman's temporary home, have been purchased by the government.

The property is at the northwest corner of Pennsylvania Avenue and Jackson Place, diagonally across the avenue from the White House, which is undergoing a complete renovation.

The General Services Administration said it bought the three connecting buildings and the land on which they stand from the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, at a price of $525,000. The structures have served as headquarters for the Carnegie Endowment, which is planning a new 12-story home adjoining the United Nations center in New York.

Although the government said nothing about the President's security in announcing the purchase, it is known that the Secret Service has been deeply concerned about the relative accessibility of Blair House from the street. Those fears were confirmed last week when two Puerto Ricans made an unsuccessful effort to shoot their way into the house and kill the President.

The government already owns about two-thirds of the land in the block, and has congressional authorization to buy more of it.

Every floor of the eight-story Basin Park hotel, at Eureka Springs, Ark., is a ground floor. The hotel is built on a mountainside and runways connect the floors with the mountain.

It went on and on, and several members of the congregation predicted he'd never do. Lyles was more optimistic, however. "I considered it a good trial run," he said. "The young man's services will improve as soon as he gets better terminal facilities."

Government Buys Three Buildings Near Blair House

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Three buildings just east of Blair House, President Truman's temporary home, have been purchased by the government.

The property is at the northwest corner of Pennsylvania Avenue and Jackson Place, diagonally across the avenue from the White House, which is undergoing a complete renovation.

The General Services Administration said it bought the three connecting buildings and the land on which they stand from the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, at a price of $525,000. The structures have served as headquarters for the Carnegie Endowment, which is planning a new 12-story home adjoining the United Nations center in New York.

Although the government said nothing about the President's security in announcing the purchase, it is known that the Secret Service has been deeply concerned about the relative accessibility of Blair House from the street. Those fears were confirmed last week when two Puerto Ricans made an unsuccessful effort to shoot their way into the house and kill the President.

The government already owns about two-thirds of the land in the block, and has congressional authorization to buy more of it.

Every floor of the eight-story Basin Park hotel, at Eureka Springs, Ark., is a ground floor. The hotel is built on a mountainside and runways connect the floors with the mountain.

Try And Stop Me

Lee Lyles, vice-president of the Acheson, Topeka and Santa Fe, was present when a young minister gave his first sermon in a Kansas City church. It went on and on, and several members of the congregation predicted he'd never do. Lyles was more optimistic, however. "I considered it a good trial run," he said. "The young man's services will improve as soon as he gets better terminal facilities."

Fewer Farmers

There is a startling glimmer of the future United States in a new report that has just been made public by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Prepared for an "outlook" conference held at Washington, the study draws a picture of the nation's agriculture a quarter of a century from now. It says, for example, that only one American out of eight will be living on a farm in 1975.

That is startling because it forecasts that a process begun long ago is still going forward, and at tremendous speed. As recently as 1910 the ratio of Americans living on farms was one in three. Today it is slightly under one in five. This trend has already brought great changes to the nation. If only one-eighth of the population will be living on farms 25 years from now, it is obvious that more changes will accompany this continued growth of urbanization.

The total number of Americans living on farms, the report says, stood at 32,000,000 in 1910. Today the figure is 27,000,000. The prediction for 1975 is 23,800,000, or approximately 12 per cent of the estimated total population of 190,000,000. That growth will be accompanied by greater demand for farm products, but the report predicts progress in farming methods will result in a reduction of the number of farmers needed to meet it.

Some of the consequences of this process are not difficult to see. The political power farmers have wielded since the birth of the republic has waned and will wane further. Cities will no longer be able to draw most of the manpower for their expanding businesses from the farms. Only a small minority of the population will share the benefits of a farm background. Substitutes must be sought for the values that will be denied to all but a few Americans in time to come.

What! No Snuff

Believe it or not, the Senate may be compelled to struggle through its next session without any free snuff.

The halls of Congress are being remodeled at a cost of approximately $5,000,000, only a half million less than it is costing the taxpayers to remodel the White House.

A correspondent who wandered into the capitol the other day searched in vain for indications that provision had been made for the Japanese snuff boxes, presented by the Tokyo government in the days when people went around humming tunes from "The Mikado" and thinking tenderly about the quaint little folk of Nippon.

The Japanese, who are very good indeed at thinking up delicate refinements in flower arrangement, social amenities, and torture, provided one snuff box for the Democrats and another for the Republicans. Thus no senator ever was compelled to go snuffless to avoid contamination.

It is true the practice of taking snuff reached its peak back in the 18th Century — when practically everybody who was anybody chewed it or rubbed it into his gums or just inhaled it—and has declined since. But more perfumes are available for scenting snuff today than there were then. The snuff is still made, people still use it. And some senators, the correspondent insists, swear that it is a better treatment for colds than anti-histamine tablets.

How To Survive

A man named Richard Gerstell, who is a "consultant" to the United States Civil Defense Office, has written a book which promises to become a best seller. The title: "How to Survive an Atomic Bomb."

The central theme is that the average citizen has an excellent chance of surviving an atomic blast in a large city, even if he is in the inner critical area directly under the blast. It lays to rest such fallacious ideas—which have taken on the guise of fact—as those which claim that there is no defense against the bomb, that one bomb can wipe out a city, and that atomic rays kill everything they touch.

There is a complete lack of pretension and scare talk in this little volume. Civil defense is a term which is widely misunderstood. Most persons interpret the phrase to mean the action-someone-will-take-to-protect-me. This is the opposite pole from the real meaning.

What civil defense really encompasses is the knowledge and moves to make in taking care of one's self in an emergency. This book contains a series of simple lessons in doing just that.

Misplaced Trust

Those who have the opportunity to sample the sentiment of citizens in all parts of the nation report that the word which best describes it is apprehension. They are fearful of the future.

They go to the stores to buy articles the family needs and find there has been a price increase or two since they last purchased. They have not been especially hard hit by the Korean war but are fearful of continued warfare and they resent the fact that blunders in Washington created a situation which made the Korean fighting necessary.

Most of all they are uneasy watching the American financial and economic structure ascending dizzily. Fear is the ruling feeling of the hour, fear of things to come. Fear is caused by a feeling of helplessness. The government has taken so much power the individual feels he can do nothing about it. He fears that even his own private life may soon be invaded.

What a travesty that is on the claims of the politicians who, so short a time ago, were going to give everybody freedom from fear.

The Tambourine Retired

The tambourine, the cornet and the big bass drum have been the "ensemble" of many a valiant group of the Salvation Army. The tambourine, classed by Webster's dictionary as a musical instrument, was more functional than that with the salvationists.

It was used as an offering plate—with a metallic sound every time the tambourine was jingled. And wherever the undaunted salvationists went in search of funds, the sound of the tambourines could be heard.

But the old order is passing. The tambourine has been retired by the army—after 70 years of good and faithful service.

In place of the tambourine is a copyrighted plastic box in the form of the Salvation Army shield. It has a slot for contributions, and has printed across the face of it "Salvation Army."

So, the old timers will be hanging up the tambourines for a less colorful if perhaps more efficient collection medium But the cornet and the big bass drum will continue to function as usual.

Punch Drunk Boxers

BOXING often is advocated as a means of becoming skillful in the art of self-defense. Many use it as an offensive weapon to overcome an opponent. It is no wonder that so many who make prize-fighting a profession end up punch drunk.

Some doubt that boxing can be called a sport. Most of the strength and endurance attributed to it comes from the training program required to prepare for the beating in the ring. Furthermore, it is far down on the list of methods for developing character, determination, and personality. In football, for example, the touchdown is the goal; in boxing, it is the knockout. Because the purpose is to strike the opponent on the head until he takes the count, the sport cannot but rekindle certain primitive instincts in the participants and spectators. Recent deaths in the ring have brought much unfavorable publicity.

Head injury is the most dangerous aspect of prizefighting. The brain can be damaged even without a skull fracture or knockout. A sudden blow often is accompanied by pin-point hemorrhages and the more blows, the greater the injury. This type of mauling is encountered by the experienced and inexperienced boxer and it has been said that half of those who participate long enough are left with permanent brain damage.

The destruction of a small amount of nerve tissue does not cause paralysis or behavior disturbances but when the damage is more severe or certain nerve centers are affected, there is a marked influence on delicate coordination, memory, speech, self-control, and the power of reasoning. The punch drunk have suffered repeated episodes of this nature, with so many hemorrhages scattered through the brain that the impairment is permanent. Loss of mental power and bodily control follow — a terrible price to pay for shortlived glory.

Trainers who refuse to realize the dangers associated with boxing often are responsible for spoiling the life of aspirants to the title. They are too anxious to find a winner. They do not stress the safety precautions and may fail to provide the essential equipment and facilities. In professional or high grade amateur training centers, special attention is paid to safety and health. But the high school lad is immature and needs close supervision and more than the average amount of protection. These youngsters can be taught the art of self-defense, without inflicting too much injury or hurting themselves, by utilizing helmets and larger gloves. Such safeguards will not create "sissies" or soften the youth of tomorrow. It is a matter of using commonsense at a vulnerable age. The problem is so vital that authorities have adopted resolutions disapproving of boxing as an inter-school activity.

The brain is not the only part that can be injured. The ears and nose suffer, as well as the hands. The knuckles often are contused and soft swellings may appear in this region caused by the formation of a bursa similar to those that develop in the shoulder: They are painful and disabling but treatment of boxer's bursitis often brings complete recovery.

TOMORROW: Protection against primary tuberculosis with BCG.

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Now that the elections are over, President Truman is considering important Cabinet changes. He will also be faced with important vacancies on the Supreme Court. As a result, he is contemplating the most sensational shift he has made since he eased out various Roosevelt Cabinet members right after FDR's death. The double-play between the Cabinet and the Supreme Court involves:

1. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who will resign.

2. Chief Justice Fred Vinson, scheduled to take Acheson's place.

3. Justice Felix Frankfurter, who will resign. Acheson will then be appointed to his Supreme Court seat.

4. Justice William O. Douglas, who expects to resign—probably to replace General Eisenhower as President of Columbia University.

5. Attorney General Howard McGrath, who will be appointed to the Supreme Court.

6. Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, who will probably resign. Discussed as his successor are New York Attorney Morris Ernst and Stuart Symington.

7. Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews, who will be made ambassador to Ireland. George Killion, head of the American President Lines, will take his place.

While these switches will not occur at once, the most important—the exit of Dean Acheson—will probably take place within 60 days.

Acheson and Vinson

Truman is more fond of Acheson personally than of anyone else in the Cabinet—except Secretary Marshall. He has told friends that he believes history will show Acheson to be one of our greatest secretaries of state. However, he also fears that Acheson, because of his defense of Alger Hiss, will never be able to regain public confidence. Furthermore, Acheson, physically exhausted, has wanted to resign.

Meanwhile, Acheson's old professor at the Harvard Law School, Felix Frankfurter, has been toying with the idea of stepping down from the Supreme Court, and may time his resignation with Acheson's so the latter can be appointed to his seat.

Also, though a closely guarded secret, Chief Justice Vinson has been briefed at least once a week on foreign policy. He is invited to the White House frequently, and Truman has even been asking distinguished foreign visitors to confer with Vinson.

The fact that the President picked Vinson to go to Moscow in October, 1948, was no accident. He has long had the greatest respect and affection for the Chief Justice. And though he called off the Vinson mission to Moscow, Truman has privately expressed regret that he did so.

Howard McGrath, now attorney general, is scheduled to be appointed to the Vinson court vacancy, though not necessarily to the chief justiceship. It is more likely that Justice Hugo Black will receive this honor.

Meanwhile, Justice Douglas has been sounded out by Columbia University about succeeding Eisenhower. In fact, while Ike was in Washington conferring with Truman, Douglas was in New York conferring with certain Columbia trustees. Douglas was graduated from the Columbia Law School and would be a natural to replace Ike.

Manchurian Crisis

A backstage controversy had been taking place between Washington and Tokyo for some time prior to Chinese intervention in Korea as to how far American troops should go toward the Manchurian border.

Secretary of State Acheson had argued that the U. S. and U. N. troops must stop before they got near the hydroelectric projects along the Yalu river, which supply the power for much of Manchuria. One of these, the Suiho dam, is among the largest in the world, and generates three-quarters as much power as Boulder dam. There are seven of these dams in North Korea, and the State Department warned that if we approach this area, the Chinese would react in about the same way as the people of Los Angeles if a Mexican army should approach Boulder dam, which supplies much of their water.

Therefore, the State Department long ago urged that U. N. troops stop 40 miles this side of the Manchurian border. The Joint Chiefs of Staff heartily concurred in this, and this was one of the main points discussed with General MacArthur at Wake Island. At that time MacArthur agreed.

However, when he reached the 40-mile neutrality belt, he wired Washington for permission to send South Korean troops beyond to the Manchurian border. He said that they were to go on mopping-up missions and as military police to maintain order.

However, MacArthur's intelligence was faulty and the South Korean troops found themselves badly outnumbered. When they got into trouble, MacArthur wired Washington for permission to send U. S. troops to rescue them.

While the Joint Chiefs of Staff didn't like this, they found it difficult to overrule the commander in the field, and wired permission.

Russo-Chinese Deal

It is believed that the Kremlin used this concentration of U. S. troops near Manchurian dams as one of its main arguments to bring Chinese Communists into the war, though undoubtedly there were other factors. These probably were:

1. Pledge of Russian air support. Hitherto in the Korean war no Russian pilots have been in combat and only a few Russian planes. In the last week, Russian planes have appeared from Manchuria.

2. A deal whereby China takes over Tibet, and later India, in return for intervention in Korea.

3. A deal whereby China takes over French Indo-China when and if the French are driven out, as now seems likely.

These were some of the things the State department feared might happen if we tangled with China over Formosa; the reason Truman announced publicly that the American fleet would be withdrawn from Chinese waters when the situation was more stable; and why we have used dancing-on-eggs diplomacy in our relations with the Chinese government.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

AS these words are written, the country awaits the outcome of the election. Almost unperceived, however, what is going on in Korea has suddenly become immeasurably more important than what has happened at the polls. The highest American policy-makers are now seriously discussing the pros and cons of immediate, all-out national mobilization. The last-minute intervention of the Chinese Communists has in fact created a grave danger that the Korean war will turn into a World War.

The situation is so confused that the known facts are worth summarizing. At the moment when the North Korean armies were in the last stage of disintegration, Chinese troops appeared in Korea, under the guise of "Peace Preservation Corps." These "Peace Preservation Corps" were formed from the crack Fourth Route Army of Gen. Lin Piao, redeployed for this purpose from the Yangtsze Valley region to Manchuria.

By now, one full Chinese division plus a number of independent regiments and even battalions, amounting in all to an estimated 25,000 men, are in action in Korea. Across the Yalu River, much larger Chinese forces are waiting to be sent into battle. As General MacArthur clearly implied in his recent statement, further reinforcement of the Chinese in Korea cannot be passively tolerated.

Danger of War

If many more Chinese come in, the only possible response will be to order intensive air attacks on the enemy's whole rear area, beyond the Chinese border. Thus the immediate danger of the new situation is the danger of war, declared or undeclared, with Communist China.

But this is by no means all. As experience in Korea has shown, air attacks will not win the battle. If really important Chinese forces are sent into Korea, the immediate result will be to tie down there almost the whole of the existing American Army. And this of course is the real aim and the greatest danger of the sudden Chinese intervention.

In plain language, with most of America's available divisions committed indefinitely in Korea, the way will be open for all sorts of Kremlin adventures elsewhere. What is at stake is not Korea, but Iran and all the Middle East, Berlin and Yugoslavia and the rest of Europe. What has happened in Korea vastly increases the betting on a new Kremlin onslaught against one or more of the world's numerous, vital soft spots some time during the next six months.

The reasons for this conclusion are important. First, there is very little doubt that the Kremlin, rather than Peking, has been the real prime mover in this affair. It is now well established that Mao Tse-tung's government resisted pressure to send Chinese troops into Korea for a considerable period. There are good reasons to believe that Molotov had to go to Peking in person to secure obedience from the Chinese. There are also reasons to believe that the Chinese had to be paid off by restoration of their local control in Manchuria, which has till now been a Russian province in all but name. If the Kremlin was the prime mover, Kremlin interests must have been the dominant considerations.

Timing of Move

Second, there is also the timing of the Chinese move. In July or August, very little aid given the North Koreans would have broken our grip on Korea. In September, preventive occupation of the region north of the 38th Parallel would have paralyzed the United Nations. Instead, the move was delayed until the North Korean army had been virtually destroyed, and the certain result would be armed conflict between Chinese and Americans.

This was why one of these correspondents, writing from Tokyo, recently reported the unanimous belief of the experts that the Chinese would not enter North Korea unless the Kremlin "positively and actively" desired to risk a general war. Because the experts also believed the Kremlin had no such desire, the Chinese intervention took the American policy-makers utterly by surprise. And this in turn is why the gravity of the situation has not yet been publicly admitted, and why no final policy decisions have as yet been publicly announced.

The fact of a risk of general war still remains. The fact of the immense danger of most of the available American divisions being tied down in Korea also still remains. At the moment, while mobilization is being discussed, there is great reluctance to resort to it, because of the absolute panic it would cause in Europe. At the moment, while a showdown with Moscow is being discussed, there is great reluctance to move for it, because of our own terrible weakness except in atomic weapons. But if the new crisis in Korea swells and deepens, the remorseless logic of events will certainly put the arguments for national mobilization in a new light, and may have results even graver and more far reaching.

120,000,000 Ton Steel Capacity Is Questioned

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 — Everybody would like to have more steel at this time—but will the demand continue, and is there a justification for a 120,000,000-ton annual capacity?

This very question has been tackled openly for the first time by the Secretary of Commerce, Charles Sawyer, who raises the pertinent issue as to when the extra capacity is needed.

Mr. Sawyer revealed that the nation can have a 120,000,000-ton capacity by 1954 and 110,000,000-ton by 1952 if the present commitment for expansion by 4,000,000 extra tonnage annually is maintained. On this all-important problem, which directly or indirectly affects defense production as well as manufacturing in many lines of business, the Secretary disclosed quite informally the crux of the difficulty as he responded to a question-and-answer interview in "U. S. News & World Report," copyrighted by that weekly newsmagazine. He said:

"I want to make it very clear that I am on the side of those who believe strongly that we should have an increase in steel capacity. As a matter of fact, the day William Henry Harrison was sworn in as administrator of the National Production Authority, I had called in the steel people and asked them to give me a statement as to what they were prepared to do in the way of increasing their steel capacity. As a result of that, they did give me a commitment of 9,400,000 tons by the end of 1952.

Don't Consider Time

"There's been some comment that that wasn't enough. It is not enough for the future. However, some people fail to take into consideration an important element—the element of time. They say we ought to have a capacity of 120,000,000 tons, but they don't say 'when.'

"It's proper to point out that if this increase in capacity of over 4,000,000 tons a year—and I think it will be even greater than indicated—if that's maintained, in five years we'll have 120,000,000 tons' capacity. In other words, we're to have 110,000,000 by the end of 1952. So for those who say we must have 120,000,000, the question is when? Do you want us to have 120,000,000 at the end of 1952 or do you want it at the end of 1954? If we're to get 120,000,000 at the end of 1952, we must face the problem, first, as to what disruption will occur to our present process, and also whether, if we have that capacity, we will have an equal supply of manganese or ore boats—other things that go into the final process of making steel. I don't want the Commerce Department to be under any imputation of trying to hold down capacity when our desire is exactly the opposite."

The dilemma, to be sure, isn't a bit different than it has been all along whenever the question of expansion of steel capacity has been raised by the government. How much steel shall be used up in making new plants and how much manpower can be subtracted from regular requirements in order to build the expanding plants? It's a case of not being able to have the cake and eat it, too.

Much more fundamental is the question of the impact on the economy for years to come. If a 120,000,000-ton capacity is to be the normal maximum instead of 90,000,000, as it was until recent years, then what happens when capacity is idle and yet interest and other charges must be met on sums borrowed to pay the prevailing high costs of construction? To build a plant today costs ever so much more than it did a decade ago. Yet the price of steel cannot be brought down materially if demand falls because there must be some way to cover the costs of the expanded plants.

Issues Brushed Aside

The issues raised by idle capacity are brushed aside by some government officials as emanating from fear of recession—as if American producers must become pollyannas and never think about the possibility of a drop in steel capacity. Unfortunately, those with a responsibility to creditors who have furnished borrowed money for bond issues or to stockholders for their equity money want to know that there is some solicitude about building excess capacity which in some future time will become idle.

How long will the war emergency last? How long will the inflation be maintained? And how long will automobile production be unrestricted? All these questions, if answered, could have a bearing on whether America in some years will see its steel plants with a demand of only 72,000,000 tons and an idle capacity of 48,000,000 tons. That's about a 60 per cent operating ratio—which would be far below the break-even point for many companies.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Suppose It's Just The Opposite?

I READ A BOOK review by Professor Samuel Flagg Bemis, of Yale, on "America's Second Crusade" by William Henry Chamberlin. The review told me little enough about Mr. Chamberlin's book but plenty about Professor Bemis's ideas.

William Henry Chamberlin is one of the few American authentic experts on Russian affairs and a book by him on World War II can be important. He is an interesting writer and linguist with a profound knowledge of Slavic people. I hope to read it soon.

However, at this point, I should like to analyze a statement by Professor Bemis in his review. He said:

". . .Yet one thing ought to be evident to all of us: by our victory over Germany and Japan, no matter what our folly in losing the peace, we have at least survived to confront the second even greater menace of another totalitarian power. This, it seems, is an obvious truism — and yet, in certain quarters, it would also seem that it cannot be stressed too often. We might not stand vis a vis the Soviets today if President Roosevelt had not entertained a conviction that action against the Axis was necessary."

I am not quite sure that I understand the learned professor rightly. Does he mean that we entered World War II, expended our wealth and the lives of our sons, so that we should survive to fight World War III? Does he mean that we gave Soviet Russia $11,000,000,000 under lend-lease so that the Russians could fight us better?

Suppose it had been just the opposite! Suppose the United States had stood by while Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia fought each other to a fare-thee-well, would we have been any worse off than we are today?

Note Professor Bemis's use of words:

". . .We have at least survived to confront the second even greater menace of another totalitarian power. . ."

Is it not a function of government to evaluate enemies, their strength, their potentialities? In five years, since 1945, Soviet Russia has become, to use the professor's words, an "even greater menace" than Germany and Japan.

Now, obviously Soviet Russia could not have achieved such an advantageous position in five years. The preparation for and development of such a position takes decades. In fact, it has taken Russia 30 years of constant preparation at great and even tragic human sacrifice.

Therefore, what Professor Bemis admits to be true is logically more convicting than the indictment for which he criticizes William Henry Chamberlin, whose position, in fine, is that the United States should have stayed out of World War II.

What Professor Bemis seems to say, if his language means anything, is that the greater menace to the United States is Soviet Russia and that it was necessary for this country to fight Germany and Japan, and to defeat them, with the aid of Soviet Russia, in order that we might survive in a war with Soviet Russia.

You try to make sense out of that. I have tried for three weeks, when first I saw this in print, and I have been puzzled to discover precisely how anyone's thinking can get itself into such shape.

But if one can think that way, other things fall into shape. For instance, it becomes all right to let Russia conquer China because when we settle with Russia, we shall automatically settle with China. Meanwhile, more than 26,000 Americans are casualties in Korea — and how many more we do not know. And we still have French Indo-China before us.

Also, we have found in North Korea evidence that wherever the Russians, go, they build an industrial base for military purposes. We shall discover, if we ever get into Manchuria, that that area has been industrialized for war potentials, aimed at the United States.

Of course, had the United States had the wisdom no later than 1943, at Teheran, to insist on the Cairo declaration, which protected Nationalist China, those war potentials aimed at the United States would not be situated in Korea and Manchuria.

Perhaps Professor Bemis feels that if we survive every stupidity, we shall survive that one, too. But to suggest that we fought Hitler and Japan with the aspiration of surviving to fight Stalin—that is truly a marvelous policy. Nobody accused Roosevelt of that before — not even Pegler!

Fewer Farmers

There is a startling glimmer of the future United States in a new report that has just been made public by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Prepared for an "outlook" conference held at Washington, the study draws a picture of the nation's agriculture a quarter of a century from now. It says, for example, that only one American out of eight will be living on a farm in 1975.

That is startling because it forecasts that a process begun long ago is still going forward, and at tremendous speed. As recently as 1910 the ratio of Americans living on farms was one in three. Today it is slightly under one in five. This trend has already brought great changes to the nation. If only one-eighth of the population will be living on farms 25 years from now, it is obvious that more changes will accompany this continued growth of urbanization.

The total number of Americans living on farms, the report says, stood at 32,000,000 in 1910. Today the figure is 27,000,000. The prediction for 1975 is 23,800,000, or approximately 12 per cent of the estimated total population of 190,000,000. That growth will be accompanied by greater demand for farm products, but the report predicts progress in farming methods will result in a reduction of the number of farmers needed to meet it.

Some of the consequences of this process are not difficult to see. The political power farmers have wielded since the birth of the republic has waned and will wane further. Cities will no longer be able to draw most of the manpower for their expanding businesses from the farms. Only a small minority of the population will share the benefits of a farm background. Substitutes must be sought for the values that will be denied to all but a few Americans in time to come.

What! No Snuff

Believe it or not, the Senate may be compelled to struggle through its next session without any free snuff.

The halls of Congress are being remodeled at a cost of approximately $5,000,000, only a half million less than it is costing the taxpayers to remodel the White House.

A correspondent who wandered into the capitol the other day searched in vain for indications that provision had been made for the Japanese snuff boxes, presented by the Tokyo government in the days when people went around humming tunes from "The Mikado" and thinking tenderly about the quaint little folk of Nippon.

The Japanese, who are very good indeed at thinking up delicate refinements in flower arrangement, social amenities, and torture, provided one snuff box for the Democrats and another for the Republicans. Thus no senator ever was compelled to go snuffless to avoid contamination.

It is true the practice of taking snuff reached its peak back in the 18th Century — when practically everybody who was anybody chewed it or rubbed it into his gums or just inhaled it—and has declined since. But more perfumes are available for scenting snuff today than there were then. The snuff is still made, people still use it. And some senators, the correspondent insists, swear that it is a better treatment for colds than anti-histamine tablets.

How To Survive

A man named Richard Gerstell, who is a "consultant" to the United States Civil Defense Office, has written a book which promises to become a best seller. The title: "How to Survive an Atomic Bomb."

The central theme is that the average citizen has an excellent chance of surviving an atomic blast in a large city, even if he is in the inner critical area directly under the blast. It lays to rest such fallacious ideas—which have taken on the guise of fact—as those which claim that there is no defense against the bomb, that one bomb can wipe out a city, and that atomic rays kill everything they touch.

There is a complete lack of pretension and scare talk in this little volume. Civil defense is a term which is widely misunderstood. Most persons interpret the phrase to mean the action-someone-will-take-to-protect-me. This is the opposite pole from the real meaning.

What civil defense really encompasses is the knowledge and moves to make in taking care of one's self in an emergency. This book contains a series of simple lessons in doing just that.

Misplaced Trust

Those who have the opportunity to sample the sentiment of citizens in all parts of the nation report that the word which best describes it is apprehension. They are fearful of the future.

They go to the stores to buy articles the family needs and find there has been a price increase or two since they last purchased. They have not been especially hard hit by the Korean war but are fearful of continued warfare and they resent the fact that blunders in Washington created a situation which made the Korean fighting necessary.

Most of all they are uneasy watching the American financial and economic structure ascending dizzily. Fear is the ruling feeling of the hour, fear of things to come. Fear is caused by a feeling of helplessness. The government has taken so much power the individual feels he can do nothing about it. He fears that even his own private life may soon be invaded.

What a travesty that is on the claims of the politicians who, so short a time ago, were going to give everybody freedom from fear.

The Tambourine Retired

The tambourine, the cornet and the big bass drum have been the "ensemble" of many a valiant group of the Salvation Army. The tambourine, classed by Webster's dictionary as a musical instrument, was more functional than that with the salvationists.

It was used as an offering plate—with a metallic sound every time the tambourine was jingled. And wherever the undaunted salvationists went in search of funds, the sound of the tambourines could be heard.

But the old order is passing. The tambourine has been retired by the army—after 70 years of good and faithful service.

In place of the tambourine is a copyrighted plastic box in the form of the Salvation Army shield. It has a slot for contributions, and has printed across the face of it "Salvation Army."

So, the old timers will be hanging up the tambourines for a less colorful if perhaps more efficient collection medium. But the cornet and the big bass drum will continue to function as usual.

Punch Drunk Boxers

BOXING often is advocated as a means of becoming skillful in the art of self-defense. Many use it as an offensive weapon to overcome an opponent. It is no wonder that so many who make prize-fighting a profession end up punch drunk.

Some doubt that boxing can be called a sport. Most of the strength and endurance attributed to it comes from the training program required to prepare for the beating in the ring. Furthermore, it is far down on the list of methods for developing character, determination, and personality. In football, for example, the touchdown is the goal; in boxing, it is the knockout. Because the purpose is to strike the opponent on the head until he takes the count, the sport cannot but rekindle certain primitive instincts in the participants and spectators. Recent deaths in the ring have brought much unfavorable publicity.

Head injury is the most dangerous aspect of prizefighting. The brain can be damaged even without a skull fracture or knockout. A sudden blow often is accompanied by pin-point hemorrhages and the more blows, the greater the injury. This type of mauling is encountered by the experienced and inexperienced boxer and it has been said that half of those who participate long enough are left with permanent brain damage.

The destruction of a small amount of nerve tissue does not cause paralysis or behavior disturbances but when the damage is more severe or certain nerve centers are affected, there is a marked influence on delicate coordination, memory, speech, self-control, and the power of reasoning. The punch drunk have suffered repeated episodes of this nature, with so many hemorrhages scattered through the brain that the impairment is permanent. Loss of mental power and bodily control follow — a terrible price to pay for shortlived glory.

Trainers who refuse to realize the dangers associated with boxing often are responsible for spoiling the life of aspirants to the title. They are too anxious to find a winner. They do not stress the safety precautions and may fail to provide the essential equipment and facilities. In professional or high grade amateur training centers, special attention is paid to safety and health. But the high school lad is immature and needs close supervision and more than the average amount of protection. These youngsters can be taught the art of self-defense, without inflicting too much injury or hurting themselves, by utilizing helmets and larger gloves. Such safeguards will not create "sissies" or soften the youth of tomorrow. It is a matter of using commonsense at a vulnerable age. The problem is so vital that authorities have adopted resolutions disapproving of boxing as an inter-school activity.

The brain is not the only part that can be injured. The ears and nose suffer, as well as the hands. The knuckles often are contused and soft swellings may appear in this region caused by the formation of a bursa similar to those that develop in the shoulder: They are painful and disabling but treatment of boxer's bursitis often brings complete recovery.

Truman Plans Startling Cabinet-Supreme Court Changes; Vinson Slated For Acheson's Post; State Department Expected Chinese Intervention

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Now that the elections are over, President Truman is considering important Cabinet changes. He will also be faced with important vacancies on the Supreme Court. As a result, he is contemplating the most sensational shift he has made since he eased out various Roosevelt Cabinet members right after FDR's death. The double-play between the Cabinet and the Supreme Court involves:

1. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who will resign.

2. Chief Justice Fred Vinson, scheduled to take Acheson's place.

3. Justice Felix Frankfurter, who will resign. Acheson will then be appointed to his Supreme Court seat.

4. Justice William O. Douglas, who expects to resign—probably to replace General Eisenhower as President of Columbia University.

5. Attorney General Howard McGrath, who will be appointed to the Supreme Court.

6. Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, who will probably resign. Discussed as his successor are New York Attorney Morris Ernst and Stuart Symington.

7. Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews, who will be made ambassador to Ireland. George Killion, head of the American President Lines, will take his place.

While these switches will not occur at once, the most important—the exit of Dean Acheson—will probably take place within 60 days.

Acheson and Vinson

Truman is more fond of Acheson personally than of anyone else in the Cabinet—except Secretary Marshall. He has told friends that he believes history will show Acheson to be one of our greatest secretaries of state. However, he also fears that Acheson, because of his defense of Alger Hiss, will never be able to regain public confidence. Furthermore, Acheson, physically exhausted, has wanted to resign.

Meanwhile, Acheson's old professor at the Harvard Law School, Felix Frankfurter, has been toying with the idea of stepping down from the Supreme Court, and may time his resignation with Acheson's so the latter can be appointed to his seat.

Also, though a closely guarded secret, Chief Justice Vinson has been briefed at least once a week on foreign policy. He is invited to the White House frequently, and Truman has even been asking distinguished foreign visitors to confer with Vinson.

The fact that the President picked Vinson to go to Moscow in October, 1948, was no accident. He has long had the greatest respect and affection for the Chief Justice. And though he called off the Vinson mission to Moscow, Truman has privately expressed regret that he did so.

Howard McGrath, now attorney general, is scheduled to be appointed to the Vinson court vacancy, though not necessarily to the chief justiceship. It is more likely that Justice Hugo Black will receive this honor.

Meanwhile, Justice Douglas has been sounded out by Columbia University about succeeding Eisenhower. In fact, while Ike was in Washington conferring with Truman, Douglas was in New York conferring with certain Columbia trustees. Douglas was graduated from the Columbia Law School and would be a natural to replace Ike.

Manchurian Crisis

A backstage controversy had been taking place between Washington and Tokyo for some time prior to Chinese intervention in Korea as to how far American troops should go toward the Manchurian border.

Secretary of State Acheson had argued that the U. S. and U. N. troops must stop before they got near the hydroelectric projects along the Yalu river, which supply the power for much of Manchuria. One of these, the Suiho dam, is among the largest in the world, and generates three-quarters as much power as Boulder dam. There are seven of these dams in North Korea, and the State Department warned that if we approach this area, the Chinese would react in about the same way as the people of Los Angeles if a Mexican army should approach Boulder dam, which supplies much of their water.

Therefore, the State Department long ago urged that U. N. troops stop 40 miles this side of the Manchurian border. The Joint Chiefs of Staff heartily concurred in this, and this was one of the main points discussed with General MacArthur at Wake Island. At that time MacArthur agreed.

However, when he reached the 40-mile neutrality belt, he wired Washington for permission to send South Korean troops beyond to the Manchurian border. He said that they were to go on mopping-up missions and as military police to maintain order.

However, MacArthur's intelligence was faulty and the South Korean troops found themselves badly outnumbered. When they got into trouble, MacArthur wired Washington for permission to send U. S. troops to rescue them.

While the Joint Chiefs of Staff didn't like this, they found it difficult to overrule the commander in the field, and wired permission.

Russo-Chinese Deal

It is believed that the Kremlin used this concentration of U. S. troops near Manchurian dams as one of its main arguments to bring Chinese Communists into the war, though undoubtedly there were other factors. These probably were:

1. Pledge of Russian air support. Hitherto in the Korean war no Russian pilots have been in combat and only a few Russian planes. In the last week, Russian planes have appeared from Manchuria.

2. A deal whereby China takes over Tibet, and later India, in return for intervention in Korea.

3. A deal whereby China takes over French Indo-China when and if the French are driven out, as now seems likely.

These were some of the things the State department feared might happen if we tangled with China over Formosa; the reason Truman announced publicly that the American fleet would be withdrawn from Chinese waters when the situation was more stable; and why we have used dancing-on-eggs diplomacy in our relations with the Chinese government.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

AS these words are written, the country awaits the outcome of the election. Almost unperceived, however, what is going on in Korea has suddenly become immeasurably more important than what has happened at the polls. The highest American policy-makers are now seriously discussing the pros and cons of immediate, all-out national mobilization. The last-minute intervention of the Chinese Communists has in fact created a grave danger that the Korean war will turn into a World War.

The situation is so confused that the known facts are worth summarizing. At the moment when the North Korean armies were in the last stage of disintegration, Chinese troops appeared in Korea, under the guise of "Peace Preservation Corps." These "Peace Preservation Corps" were formed from the crack Fourth Route Army of Gen. Lin Piao, redeployed for this purpose from the Yangtsze Valley region to Manchuria.

By now, one full Chinese division plus a number of independent regiments and even battalions, amounting in all to an estimated 25,000 men, are in action in Korea. Across the Yalu River, much larger Chinese forces are waiting to be sent into battle. As General MacArthur clearly implied in his recent statement, further reinforcement of the Chinese in Korea cannot be passively tolerated.

Danger of War

If many more Chinese come in, the only possible response will be to order intensive air attacks on the enemy's whole rear area, beyond the Chinese border. Thus the immediate danger of the new situation is the danger of war, declared or undeclared, with Communist China.

But this is by no means all. As experience in Korea has shown, air attacks will not win the battle. If really important Chinese forces are sent into Korea, the immediate result will be to tie down there almost the whole of the existing American Army. And this of course is the real aim and the greatest danger of the sudden Chinese intervention.

In plain language, with most of America's available divisions committed indefinitely in Korea, the way will be open for all sorts of Kremlin adventures elsewhere. What is at stake is not Korea, but Iran and all the Middle East, Berlin and Yugoslavia and the rest of Europe. What has happened in Korea vastly increases the betting on a new Kremlin onslaught against one or more of the world's numerous, vital soft spots some time during the next six months.

The reasons for this conclusion are important. First, there is very little doubt that the Kremlin, rather than Peking, has been the real prime mover in this affair. It is now well established that Mao Tse-tung's government resisted pressure to send Chinese troops into Korea for a considerable period. There are good reasons to believe that Molotov had to go to Peking in person to secure obedience from the Chinese. There are also reasons to believe that the Chinese had to be paid off by restoration of their local control in Manchuria, which has till now been a Russian province in all but name. If the Kremlin was the prime mover, Kremlin interests must have been the dominant considerations.

Timing of Move

Second, there is also the timing of the Chinese move. In July or August, very little aid given the North Koreans would have broken our grip on Korea. In September, preventive occupation of the region north of the 38th Parallel would have paralyzed the United Nations. Instead, the move was delayed until the North Korean army had been virtually destroyed, and the certain result would be armed conflict between Chinese and Americans.

This was why one of these correspondents, writing from Tokyo, recently reported the unanimous belief of the experts that the Chinese would not enter North Korea unless the Kremlin "positively and actively" desired to risk a general war. Because the experts also believed the Kremlin had no such desire, the Chinese intervention took the American policy-makers utterly by surprise. And this in turn is why the gravity of the situation has not yet been publicly admitted, and why no final policy decisions have as yet been publicly announced.

The fact of a risk of general war still remains. The fact of the immense danger of most of the available American divisions being tied down in Korea also still remains. At the moment, while mobilization is being discussed, there is great reluctance to resort to it, because of the absolute panic it would cause in Europe. At the moment, while a showdown with Moscow is being discussed, there is great reluctance to move for it, because of our own terrible weakness except in atomic weapons. But if the new crisis in Korea swells and deepens, the remorseless logic of events will certainly put the arguments for national mobilization in a new light, and may have results even graver and more far reaching.

120,000,000 Ton Steel Capacity Is Questioned

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 — Everybody would like to have more steel at this time—but will the demand continue, and is there a justification for a 120,000,000-ton annual capacity?

This very question has been tackled openly for the first time by the Secretary of Commerce, Charles Sawyer, who raises the pertinent issue as to when the extra capacity is needed.

Mr. Sawyer revealed that the nation can have a 120,000,000-ton capacity by 1954 and 110,000,000-ton by 1952 if the present commitment for expansion by 4,000,000 extra tonnage annually is maintained. On this all-important problem, which directly or indirectly affects defense production as well as manufacturing in many lines of business, the Secretary disclosed quite informally the crux of the difficulty as he responded to a question-and-answer interview in "U. S. News & World Report," copyrighted by that weekly newsmagazine. He said:

"I want to make it very clear that I am on the side of those who believe strongly that we should have an increase in steel capacity. As a matter of fact, the day William Henry Harrison was sworn in as administrator of the National Production Authority, I had called in the steel people and asked them to give me a statement as to what they were prepared to do in the way of increasing their steel capacity. As a result of that, they did give me a commitment of 9,400,000 tons by the end of 1952.

Don't Consider Time

"There's been some comment that that wasn't enough. It is not enough for the future. However, some people fail to take into consideration an important element—the element of time. They say we ought to have a capacity of 120,000,000 tons, but they don't say 'when.'

"It's proper to point out that if this increase in capacity of over 4,000,000 tons a year—and I think it will be even greater than indicated—if that's maintained, in five years we'll have 120,000,000 tons' capacity. In other words, we're to have 110,000,000 by the end of 1952. So for those who say we must have 120,000,000, the question is when? Do you want us to have 120,000,000 at the end of 1952 or do you want it at the end of 1954? If we're to get 120,000,000 at the end of 1952, we must face the problem, first, as to what disruption will occur to our present process, and also whether, if we have that capacity, we will have an equal supply of manganese or ore boats—other things that go into the final process of making steel. I don't want the Commerce Department to be under any imputation of trying to hold down capacity when our desire is exactly the opposite."

The dilemma, to be sure, isn't a bit different than it has been all along whenever the question of expansion of steel capacity has been raised by the government. How much steel shall be used up in making new plants and how much manpower can be subtracted from regular requirements in order to build the expanding plants? It's a case of not being able to have the cake and eat it, too.

Much more fundamental is the question of the impact on the economy for years to come. If a 120,000,000-ton capacity is to be the normal maximum instead of 90,000,000, as it was until recent years, then what happens when capacity is idle and yet interest and other charges must be met on sums borrowed to pay the prevailing high costs of construction? To build a plant today costs ever so much more than it did a decade ago. Yet the price of steel cannot be brought down materially if demand falls because there must be some way to cover the costs of the expanded plants.

Issues Brushed Aside

The issues raised by idle capacity are brushed aside by some government officials as emanating from fear of recession—as if American producers must become pollyannas and never think about the possibility of a drop in steel capacity. Unfortunately, those with a responsibility to creditors who have furnished borrowed money for bond issues or to stockholders for their equity money want to know that there is some solicitude about building excess capacity which in some future time will become idle.

How long will the war emergency last? How long will the inflation be maintained? And how long will automobile production be unrestricted? All these questions, if answered, could have a bearing on whether America in some years will see its steel plants with a demand of only 72,000,000 tons and an idle capacity of 48,000,000 tons. That's about a 60 per cent operating ratio—which would be far below the break-even point for many companies.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Suppose It's Just The Opposite?

I READ A BOOK review by Professor Samuel Flagg Bemis, of Yale, on "America's Second Crusade" by William Henry Chamberlin. The review told me little enough about Mr. Chamberlin's book but plenty about Professor Bemis's ideas.

William Henry Chamberlin is one of the few American authentic experts on Russian affairs and a book by him on World War II can be important. He is an interesting writer and linguist with a profound knowledge of Slavic people. I hope to read it soon.

However, at this point, I should like to analyze a statement by Professor Bemis in his review. He said:

". . .Yet one thing ought to be evident to all of us: by our victory over Germany and Japan, no matter what our folly in losing the peace, we have at least survived to confront the second even greater menace of another totalitarian power. This, it seems, is an obvious truism — and yet, in certain quarters, it would also seem that it cannot be stressed too often. We might not stand vis a vis the Soviets today if President Roosevelt had not entertained a conviction that action against the Axis was necessary."

I am not quite sure that I understand the learned professor rightly. Does he mean that we entered World War II, expended our wealth and the lives of our sons, so that we should survive to fight World War III? Does he mean that we gave Soviet Russia $11,000,000,000 under lend-lease so that the Russians could fight us better?

Suppose it had been just the opposite! Suppose the United States had stood by while Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia fought each other to a fare-thee-well, would we have been any worse off than we are today?

Note Professor Bemis's use of words:

". . .We have at least survived to confront the second even greater menace of another totalitarian power. . ."

Is it not a function of government to evaluate enemies, their strength, their potentialities? In five years, since 1945, Soviet Russia has become, to use the professor's words, an "even greater menace" than Germany and Japan.

Now, obviously Soviet Russia could not have achieved such an advantageous position in five years. The preparation for and development of such a position takes decades. In fact, it has taken Russia 30 years of constant preparation at great and even tragic human sacrifice.

Therefore, what Professor Bemis admits to be true is logically more convicting than the indictment for which he criticizes William Henry Chamberlin, whose position, in fine, is that the United States should have stayed out of World War II.

What Professor Bemis seems to say, if his language means anything, is that the greater menace to the United States is Soviet Russia and that it was necessary for this country to fight Germany and Japan, and to defeat them, with the aid of Soviet Russia, in order that we might survive in a war with Soviet Russia.

You try to make sense out of that. I have tried for three weeks, when first I saw this in print, and I have been puzzled to discover precisely how anyone's thinking can get itself into such shape.

But if one can think that way, other things fall into shape. For instance, it becomes all right to let Russia conquer China because when we settle with Russia, we shall automatically settle with China. Meanwhile, more than 26,000 Americans are casualties in Korea — and how many more we do not know. And we still have French Indo-China before us.

Also, we have found in North Korea evidence that wherever the Russians, go, they build an industrial base for military purposes. We shall discover, if we ever get into Manchuria, that that area has been industrialized for war potentials, aimed at the United States.

Of course, had the United States had the wisdom no later than 1943, at Teheran, to insist on the Cairo declaration, which protected Nationalist China, those war potentials aimed at the United States would not be situated in Korea and Manchuria.

Perhaps Professor Bemis feels that if we survive every stupidity, we shall survive that one, too. But to suggest that we fought Hitler and Japan with the aspiration of surviving to fight Stalin—that is truly a marvelous policy. Nobody accused Roosevelt of that before — not even Pegler!

TH THE U. S. MARINES IN KEA — (Delayed)—(AP)—United Sts Marines are fighting their tonest battle of the Korean war in river canyon, surrounded by 2,-foot mountain peaks.

d they are giving Chinese Commists troops a taste of Marine eurance in a situation that looks b now and probably will get wse.

asualties are heavy on both sides a furious exchange of gunfire m ridge to ridge.

The ranks of stretcher bearers e becoming dangerously thin as g-tired troops help the wounded own almost perpendicular cliffs 16 iles south of Changjin.

The fighting has raged all day oday virtually around the clock. There were lulls during the night but for 16 hours the Marines have been trading punches with the Chinese without stopping.

Twelve jelly fire bombs (napalm) used to search out well dug-in Chinese gun emplacements set the surrounding mountains on fire.

Mortars—28 of them—exploded less than 200 yards from the center of Col. Homer I. Litzenberg's regiment last night.

Mortar and artillery fire is going on without a halt. The Marine fire apparently is accurate. From time to time they have gotten the range on Chinese positions and the guns have been silenced. American planes are overhead frequently.

The Chinese usually quit firing during an air strike.

Last night four enemy T-34 tanks were knocked out. Some bore Chinese numerals and some were North Korean.

During the early morning hours today an enemy tank which needed a grease job squeaked up close to the regimental command post.

Staff Sgt. C. B. Van Dette, Seattle, Wash., was just returning to the command post after repairing some telephone wires.

He mistook it for an American tank. He yelled to the driver to turn off the headlights.

Just then a thundering crescendo of 3.5 bazookas and 75 millimeter recoilless shells began trying to halt the wandering monster. It was only about 50 yards from the command post before the bazooka teams knocked it out.

The First Battalion, commanded by Col. Raymond G. Davis, Athens, Ga., who holds the Navy Cross for gallantry, stood like a rock against the first Chinese attacks this morning. Heavy losses were inflicted on the Chinese.

The spearheading Third Battalion has borne the brunt of the fight.

The Seventh Regiment—in combat on this front for 12 days—had all three of its battalions unable to move as a result of heavy enemy mortar and artillery fire for some time.

Air strikes have been going on all through the daylight hours but the enemy continues to lob in artillery and big mortar shells.

One hospital jeep was blown off the road by grenade droppers who clung to a cliff 200 feet high directly over the road.

Four other vehicles were knocked out before the Marines could spot the grenade men. Then they scaled the cliff and killed the enemy.

(In a personal note at the end of the dispatch Noel wrote "this is all I have time for. Since I started about 30 shells have fallen within 200 yards and I am taking cover.").

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

While emotionally mature people usually get on better than immature ones, a childish desire for power coupled with a keen "brain" may drive a man to achieve outstanding wealth and success without having outgrown basically kindergarten attitudes like petty jealousy or the wish to be flattered.

May romance develop into friendship?

Answer: In the best sense, this should be what happens in successful marriage since enduring married love is friendship plus physical attraction. But because when romance does not lead to marriage, one person is apt to feel that he or she has been "rejected" by the other, and resent it, former sweethearts more frequently end as enemies than as friends. The exceptions are the not too common cases in which two people have realized that they were unsuited to each other from a matrimonial standpoint and yet still have much in common.

Can "important" people be emotionally childish?

Answer: Of course. The late Dr. Frankwood E. Williams used to say that a man may have intelligence enough to be a college president yet still have the emotions of a three-year-old child and use his position to gratify them.

Do day nurseries cause behavior problems?

Answer: Not to any notable degree, says Netta Glass of Maudsley Hospital, London. Comparison of two "matched" groups of children from two to five years old from the standpoint of their sleeping, eating and elimination habits showed no marked superiority of children brought up at home by their mothers over those whose mothers had to leave them in a nursery all day because they went out to work. The statement may console mothers who are in the latter situation, but at so early an age such prolonged separation is far from ideal.

DAYS OF SHRIEKS AND YELPS FROM SHOWER-BATH MARTYRS ARE NEARLY OVER THANKS TO VALVE GADGET

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

CHICAGO—A new valve brings ıe days of shower bath shrieks and ·lps near an end.

Such shrieks as come from you hen someone turns on a hot water p and your shower suddenly runs ·zing cold.

the yelps when an otherwise ving member of your household ses the cold water, and your show- turns to steam.

This booby-trap situation has othered Dr. LeVan Griffis, too, and ·'s done something about it. It's ı automatic shower valve to keep ur shower at the same temperare regardless of what anyone else the house does with the water ıpply.

Dr. Griffis is chairman of the echanical department of the Arour Research Foundation of Illiois Institute of Technology. The ılve was developed with the coerative skills of experts in mechıical engineering and heat transr.

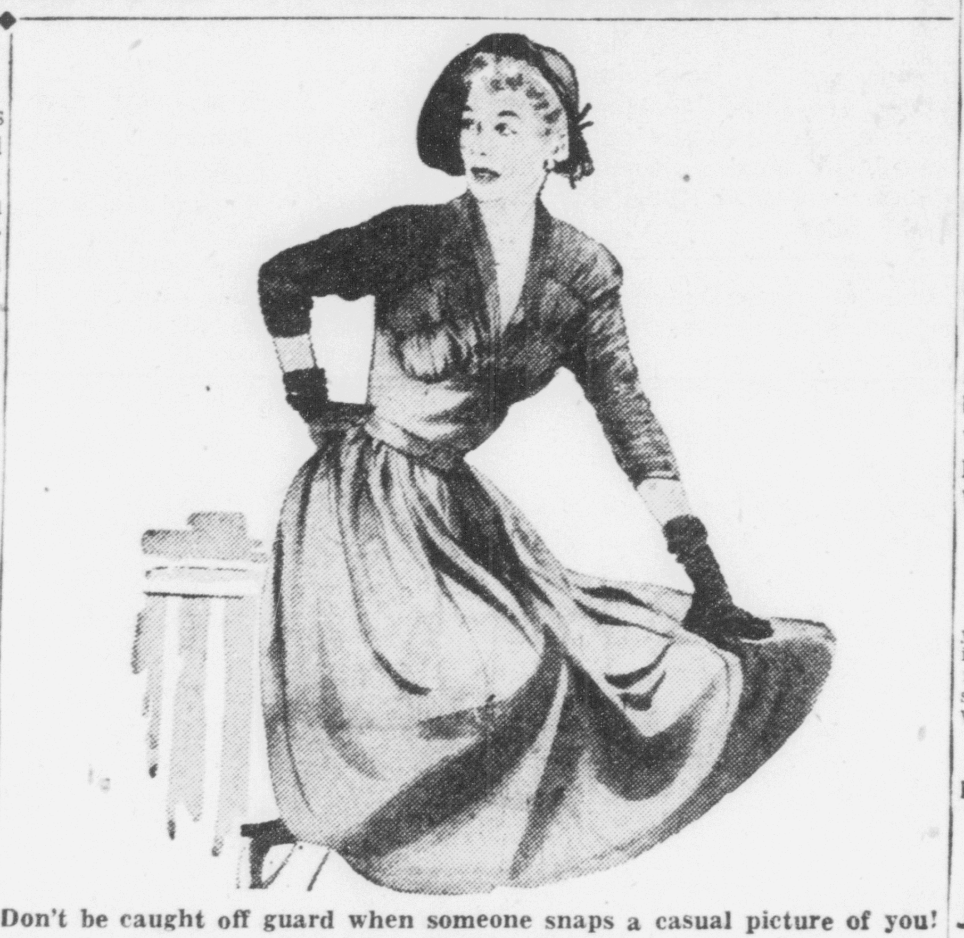
There is only one shower handle worry about, with a thermostat at can be set for the temperature ou want. A thermostatic bellows, milar to that in an automobile diator, controls the relative nounts of hot and cold water. It ıtomatically steps up the flow of ot or cold water whenever the essure drops because someone else arts using either hot or cold ater. A valve screw enables you to e-set it for the desired temperure.

Another boon for modern living still under development. This is ıeumatic tools that won't recoil. It vibration and recoil that give the ıimmies to the man operating a ıeumatic drill used to smash up ıvement, for example. And it is ırtly the vibration that blasts the ·ighborhoor with noise.

There is a bad recoil because only me parts of the drill vibrate, and ıe shock travels in the opposite rection, up the handle.

The approach here, Dr. Griffis plains, is to produce forces that ppose and dampen the vibrations, oducing more of a balance. When ıe part moves, another will move ainst it, counteracting the shock motion.

Custom among the Zulu Kaffirs South Africa requires a man to and at a distance when addressg his mother-in-law, and he must ever address her by name.



Don't be caught off guard when someone snaps a casual picture of you! Learn this Powers Girl pose.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

CASUAL poses look easy. But as a model will tell you, sitting gracefully on a conventional chair is a cinch compared to perching prettily on a fence rail.

If you took some outdoor snapshots on your vacation, you mav have discovered this fact yourself. When the pictures were taken, you probably thought you looked like the lithe, outdoor girl seated atop some old stone wall—or perhaps it was the finished prints. What a disappointment it was to find your figure more closely resembled a bumpy sack—no waistline and all knees.

Powers Model Pose

Learn the Powers Girl routine for posing on all types of precarious perches, and your picture album from now on will be something you'll be proud to show. Furthermore, you'll be admired as a picture of grace at any party, no matter where crowded conditions force you to light. The first big secret lies in the realization that there's nothing floppy or unstudied about such apparently casual poses. To be effective they must be as carefully tailored as your casual clothes.

The second big secret is the trick of sitting sidewise so that your knees are out of the center of focus) and putting all your weight on the hip and thigh that is away from the camera in order to prevent any bulges from weight pressure in the leg nearest the camera. Let me break it down for you:

Assume that you are going to have your picture taken posing on your porch railing.

1. Turn your entire body in profile to the rail. (Let's say it's your left side that you turned to the rail.) 2. Raise your left thigh until it finds a firm seat along the rail from hip to knee.

3. Hook the tip-toe of the left foot just below the calf of the right leg and pull both legs back as far as they will reach comfortably. If the right foot touches the floor, rest the weight of the legs on the inside of the big toe. Otherwise, point the toe toward the floor.

A Picture To Treasure

4. Square your shoulders toward the camera. 5. Pull your waist up hard out of your hips. 6. Hold your back erect.

7. Place the left hand on your left knee and hook your right thumb in your belt.

If you tilt the top of your head a fraction to the left, look at the birdie and smile, what a thrill you will have, the next time you see pictures that were snapped of you while posing "casually."

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

MY FIRST excrusive! And this excrusive IS spelled that way . . . See explanation below! You see, West Coast construction tycoon Henry Kaiser may invade Maryland and West Virginia in the aluminum business . . . Top government officials have recently been besieged by the Aluminum Company of America, the Reynolds Company, Kaiser and others too numerous to mention . . . They all want a plant at Halethorpe, Maryland, which is now used by the Government Printing Office as a store room.

AUSTINE

Henry Kaiser seems to be the favorite in the race to grab the plant . . . and to start making "EXCRUSIONS"!!

While hardly an industrial genius, I will now attempt to describe "excrusions" . . . like a giant toothpaste tube they put molten metal through a press and squeeze it out into sheets. . . . These sheets are just dandy for cutting into airplane wings, among other things.

Kaiser also hankers after another favor . . . Wants to build a steam plant in West Virginia so he can make power and use the power to make even more aluminum.

The Hostess With the Mostess On the Ball, as far as Senator Taft is concerned, is his own dear wife, Martha . . . He couldn't entertain constituents, win votes, or even enjoy life if she weren't in there punching, smiling and egging him on . . . Chief reason why Taft's keeping so quiet about his presidential aspirations in '52, say his confidantes, is Martha's poor health . . . But besides his wife's illness, he's got money troubles . . . Although he's been accused otherwise, Taft is scraping the bottom of the barrel for campaign funds . . . Big shot Republicans apparently talk a lot about Taft but they're slow on the donations . . . Union leaders help out THEIR candidates much more generously.

•—•—•

Speaking of unions, I see by the papers where non-union bullfighters in Mexico City have been hired to break a matadors' strike . . . Two weeks ago the strike had shut down the world's largest bull ring.

Margaret Truman and Marvin Braverman making the rounds of N. Y.'s cozy spots! Always seem to enjoy each other's company.

The witty, young attorney with the quizzical eyebrows and crew cut took a seat, is was announced the other day, as a director of the National Travelers Aid Society.

By the way, bet you didn't know that the society dates back to the days of the California Gold Rush.

In 1851 a Missourian left a generous slice of his estate in trust to aid travelers . . . He had known himself what it was like to reach the Golden West without a friend.

Last year over two million people sought help from Travelers Aid!

The organization which started (where else but in America) now serves people all over the world.

Here they maintain volunteer interpreters to translate the troubles of the many foreigners.

Besides the usual kids who run away from home, migratory workers milling around, the wives who leave husbands, Travelers Aid runs up against cases which would be amusing if they weren't so tragic.

The other day for instance, one old gentleman, almost an invalid, just popped on a train in Iowa and headed for Washington . . . Stranded and broke shortly after his arrival, he excused his hasty journey with the remark that he "Just got plum fed up with Ioway."

Mentally-disturbed women often come to town believing they're going to visit at the White House with Harry Truman, "who has been writing me love letters ever since he was a boy." . . . They have to be cared for until friends or relatives can be located and notified.

So it goes . . .

Every day telephone calls come in from people who still think the Travelers Aid Society is a travel agency . . . Which can plan a trip for them, all expenses paid, of course.

I hear Ernest Hemingway zizzling . . . His best seller has now been parodied in a New Yorker piece called "Across the Street and Into the Grill."

"I won't be competition for Hemingway," says handsome but modest bachelor-about-town Col. Winant Johnston . . . He has been an attraction in Capital salons for more seasons than he cares to remember . . . Now he has surprised his many admirers by coming out with a tender and sensitive first novel entitled "These Innocents". . . written in derision of the modern novel.

"I detest dirty books," he states. "Had a tough time trying to sell this one because it wasn't filled with words kids write on the backs of fences."

The 36 illustrations in the book were printed from wood and linoleum cuts Col. Johnston created in France . . . Just before he escaped from France with Hitler pounding on the back door, all his luggage and personal belongings, including his original wood cuts, were stolen . . . Under his arm he had his manuscript and the first impressions of the cuts . . . These were reproduced for "These Innocents."

Col. Johnston presently writes another "family" story which he hopes to have ready for publication soon.

Has been on an egg diet for the past month and lost 20 pounds . . . Has two eggs (poached or boiled, but NEVER FRIED) for breakfast, noon and dinner, along with a salad or green vegetable.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

MY FIRST excrusive! And this excrusive IS spelled that way . . . See explanation below! You see, West Coast construction tycoon Henry Kaiser may invade Maryland and West Virginia in the aluminum business . . . Top government officials have recently been besieged by the Aluminum Company of America, the Reynolds Company, Kaiser and others too numerous to mention . . . They all want a plant at Halethorpe, Maryland, which is now used by the Government Printing Office as a store room.

AUSTINE

Henry Kaiser seems to be the favorite in the race to grab the plant . . . and to start making "EXCRUSIONS"!!

While hardly an industrial genius, I will now attempt to describe "excrusions" . . . like a giant toothpaste tube they put molten metal through a press and squeeze it out into sheets. . . . These sheets are just dandy for cutting into airplane wings, among other things.

Kaiser also hankers after another favor . . . Wants to build a steam plant in West Virginia so he can make power and use the power to make even more aluminum.

The Hostess With the Mostess On the Ball, as far as Senator Taft is concerned, is his own dear wife, Martha . . . He couldn't entertain constituents, win votes, or even enjoy life if she weren't in there punching, smiling and egging him on . . . Chief reason why Taft's keeping so quiet about his presidential aspirations in '52, say his confidantes, is Martha's poor health . . . But besides his wife's illness, he's got money troubles . . . Although he's been accused otherwise, Taft is scraping the bottom of the barrel for campaign funds . . . Big shot Republicans apparently talk a lot about Taft but they're slow on the donations . . . Union leaders help out THEIR candidates much more generously.

●—●—●

Speaking of unions, I see by the papers where non-union bullfighters in Mexico City have been hired to break a matadors' strike . . . Two weeks ago the strike had shut down the world's largest bull ring.

Margaret Truman and Marvin Braverman making the rounds of N. Y.'s cozy spots! Always seem to enjoy each other's company.

The witty, young attorney with the quizzical eyebrows and crew cut took a seat, is was announced the other day, as a director of the National Travelers Aid Society.

By the way, bet you didn't know that the society dates back to the days of the California Gold Rush.

In 1851 a Missourian left a generous slice of his estate in trust to aid travelers . . . He had known himself what it was like to reach the Golden West without a friend.

Last year over two million people sought help from Travelers Aid!

The organization which started (where else but in America) now serves people all over the world.

Here they maintain volunteer interpreters to translate the troubles of the many foreigners.

Besides the usual kids who run away from home, migratory workers milling around, the wives who leave husbands, Travelers Aid runs up against cases which would be amusing if they weren't so tragic.

The other day for instance, one old gentleman, almost an invalid, just popped on a train in Iowa and headed for Washington . . . Stranded and broke shortly after his arrival, he excused his hasty journey with the remark that he "Just got plum fed up with Ioway."

Mentally-disturbed women often come to town believing they're going to visit at the White House with Harry Truman, "who has been writing me love letters ever since he was a boy.". . . They have to be cared for until friends or relatives can be located and notified.

So it goes . . .

Every day telephone calls come in from people who still think the Travelers Aid Society is a travel agency . . . Which can plan a trip for them, all expenses paid, of course.

I hear Ernest Hemingway zizzling . . . His best seller has now been parodied in a New Yorker piece called "Across the Street and Into the Grill."

"I won't be competition for Hemingway," says handsome but modest bachelor - about - town Col. Winant Johnston . . . He has been an attraction in Capital salons for more seasons than he cares to remember . . . Now he has surprised his many admirers by coming out with a tender and sensitive first novel entitled "These Innocents". . . written in derision of the modern novel.

"I detest dirty books," he states. "Had a tough time trying to sell this one because it wasn't filled with words kids write on the backs of fences."

The 36 illustrations in the book were printed from wood and linoleum cuts Col. Johnston created in France . . . Just before he escaped from France with Hitler pounding on the back door, all his luggage and personal belongings, including his original wood cuts, were stolen . . . Under his arm he had his manuscript and the first impressions of the cuts . . . These were reproduced for "These Innocents."

Col. Johnston presently writes another "family" story which he hopes to have ready for publication soon.

Has been on an egg diet for the past month and lost 20 pounds . . . Has two eggs (poached or boiled, but NEVER FRIED) for breakfast, noon and dinner, along with a salad or green vegetable.

Madison Square Garden, New York City, was the scene of the first automobile show, held in 1900.

Lt. W. C. Menges Is Home From Korean Battlefront

A local Marine veteran of both Iwo Jima and Seoul says that the intensity of fighting in both engagements is comparable.

The comparison is made by Lt. Billy C. Menges, son of City Police Officer and Mrs. Charles D. Menges, 47 Lamont Street, who Sunday returned from combat duty in Korea.

Lt. Menges left here July 29 for Camp Lejeune, N. C., with Cumberland's Marine Reserve Company and is the first non-wounded serviceman to return to the Queen City from the Asiatic fighting.

Streets Sandbagged

Lt. Menges, who served three years in the Marine Corps during World War II, achieved recognition for his deeds in combat on the volcanic ashes of Iwo Jima, winning the Bronze Star for bravery in action.

Lt. Menges, however, said the North Korean-concentrated street blockades and house fortifications made the battle for the capital of Korea as bloody and terrible as the fight for Iwo Jima.

Every street was sandbagged by the Reds and progress in Seoul was made on a house-to-house basis by the First and Fifth Marine Regiments of the First Marine Division, assisted on the flank by the Army's Seventh Division.

As a result, he said, it was necessary to practically level the city in order to "smoke" the North Koreans from their hiding places.

Lt. Menges was with a seven-man forward observer team for artillery and he said that opposition between Inchon to three miles of Seoul was devoted to rear-guard action on the part of the North Koreans.

Last Ditch Stand

Most of the Red troops, he said, were dispatched to Seoul for a last ditch stand.

"They wanted to make it a Stalingrad, but they failed," he said.

After the capture of Seoul, he happened to run into a fellow Cumberland Marine reservist, Sgt. Joseph Montelone, of 401 Springdale Street, who was with the Second Battalion, Seventh Regiment.

It was Sgt. Montelone who related the details of the death of eighteen-year-old Pfc. Frank B. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Thompson, 22 Elder Street, who left with them on July 29 with the local company.

Sgt. Montelone said Pfc. Thompson was hit by a mortar shell on September 27 and died at 1 a.m. the following day in an area of heavy fire while being given blood plasma.

The sergeant also told Lt. Menges of the wounding of Pfc. Thompson's lifelong buddy, who also left here with the unit, on the following day. He was Pfc. Paul W. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kennedy, of 21 Offutt Street.

Nearly 20 members of the local unit, among them Pfc. William H. Wagus, Route 4; Pfc. Richard L. Ward, Cresaptown; Cpl. James P. Scott, 810 Stewart Avenue; Sgt. Charles Cox, (who served with Lt. Menges in the artillery) and Sgt. J. McDonald, both of this city, were with the First Division when it landed.

Going To Officer School

After pushing north of Seoul 12 miles, the First Division was relieved by the First Cavalry Division and the Marines went back to Inchon.

They would have been in another invasion but for the swift advance of the ROKs in Wonsan. The entire First Marines were loaded aboard ship, sailed to Pusan and then up the north coast to Wonsan which they were supposed to invade. But the South Koreans beat them there first, and American lives were saved.

From Wonsan air field, Lt. Menges was sent by service transport back to the United States, leaving there on October 29, and arriving in Cumberland Sunday enroute to an officers school at Quantico, Va., Marine Base.

Milestone in a Career!

We see it happen over and over again—and it's one of the greatest satisfactions we enjoy in this happy business of selling Cadillac cars.

It's when a man comes into possession of his first Cadillac—and we see the wonderful things it does for him.

We see his happiness as he places his order—not as the result of a sudden inspiration, but because he has gradually reached the conclusion that he has earned the right to enjoy the unquestioned best.

And then we see him on that happy day when his car is available for delivery—and he settles himself so proudly behind the wheel.

He's a little quizzical, we sometimes note. Could it be, he wonders, that he has been anticipating a bit too much?

And then he's out in the street—headed for home the long way 'round.

Those are thrilling days that follow.

There's the first long ride with the family . . . the first trip to the office . . . and the time he learns, in an emergency, that his car is worth its whole price in safety alone.

And then, almost before he knows it, the odometer registers a thousand miles—and he's back to tell us all about it. And, perhaps, to grumble a little bit at giving it up—even for a little while!

Yes, it's a priceless privilege to watch all this. Makes a man feel that he's doing good.

County Suffers 35 Casualties In Korean War

After less than five months of the Korean War, Allegany county's casualty list stands at 35 men.

Newspaper and Department of Defense statistics kept on casualties since the outbreak of hostilities June 25 show that eight countians are dead, 21 have been wounded and six are missing in action. Four men were listed as fatally hurt.

The casualty total is reached by counting each individual only once. In some cases, the same man's name appeared first as wounded and then as killed, but such duplications are listed as only one casualty. The total also omits consideration of men who were reported missing but later turned up safe.

Cumberland's list includes two killed, two fatally wounded and 14 wounded, one twice. There are no men reported missing in action. The local total is included in the county figures.

Statistics on Garrett county reveal that three men have been killed. Nine were wounded and four are missing. The fatalities were from the Vindex area.

Most of the statistics are based on reports from relatives, since the armed forces are slow to give out national figures on dead, wounded, missing and prisoners in the Korean fighting. Department of Defense casualty lists frequently are misleading because they identify a soldier by the address of his next to kin rather than by the town in which he resided.

Latest figures available show American casualties in Korea total 16,701.

Schedule Issued For New Bus Line

The new schedule of runs by the Metropolitan Trailways, which replaced Potomac Coach Lines, was issued yesterday. Potomac Lines gave up its franchise recently.

R. L. Emery, Jr., general manager and chairman of the board of Metropolitan, said the schedule is exactly the same as the Potomac timetable. Emery added that his inter-state runs, operated before the PSC granted his local intra-state permit, have been combined with the new schedule.

Buses meet all shifts at the Celanese plant, Emery said.

Here is the Metropolitan schedule:

5:55 a. m., leave Oldtown for Celanese.

7:20 a. m., leave Cumberland for Paw Paw, W. Va.

9:30 a. m., leave Cumberland for Paw Paw, Berkeley Springs, Martinsburg, Newton D. Baker Veterans Center, Charles Town, Leesburg, Va., and Washington, D. C.

1:05 p. m., Cumberland to Oldtown.

3:20 p. m. Cumberland to Oldtown.

5:10 p. m., Cumberland to Paw Paw.

9:05 p. m., Cumberland to Oldtown.

11:20 p. m., Cumberland to Oldtown.

Housing Meeting Planned Thursday

The Mayor and Council will meet with the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission and the Housing Authority Thursday at 10 a. m. in City Hall.

It is presumed that planning work for the first phase of the Cumberland housing project will be approved. Start of the project would be construction of 17 apartment buildings on seven acres of land in South Cumberland. However, the plans must first be approved by the PHA office in Philadelphia, recommended to the PHA office in Washington and then approved by President Truman.

The local project is designed to provide housing for 300 families.

U. N. Is To Be Forum Topic

Students at the annual Allegany County High School Forum will discuss "Peace, the United Nations and You," it has been announced.

The topic will be studied in ten high schools in the county prior to the forum. Discussions are scheduled for classrooms, clubs, in assembly programs and inter-school forums.

The subject was selected and plans laid at a recent meeting at the Board of Education office. Specifically considered was the desirability and importance of sending a number of students to the United Nations at Lake Success. The budget of sponsoring organization now provides funds for only two from the county.

The next meeting will be held Thursday, Nov. 30. Students actively interested in studying the United Nations will accompany advisers.

School To Honor Softball Champs

The junior softball team of Columbia Street Playground, city champions, will be honored at a spaghetti supper Thursday at 6:30 p. m. in Columbia Street School cafeteria. Edwin Hoey, city recreational director, will be a guest speaker.

The affair is being sponsored by the Columbia Street Parent Teacher Association and proceeds will go toward the purchase of raincoats for the school patrol leaders.

The public is invited, but since only a limited number can be accommodated, reservations should be made at the school, or with Walter Bell, 225 Bedford Street, today or tomorrow.

The term, "in the limelight," referred to the original calcium, or lime, light designed for theatrical use in 1816, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Dentists To Hear Telephone Lectures

The Allegany-Garrett County Dental Society will take advantage of a new idea in education—instruction by telephone—to keep its members posted this winter on current advances in dentistry.

The unique program will originate in Chicago where it will be transmitted once each month by the University of Illinois College of Dentistry to 254 dental societies and study clubs. More than 10,000 dentists in 46 states in the U. S. and in seven provinces of Canada and hear the two-hour telephone broadcasts which will start on Monday, and continue monthly through March.

In transmitting the lectures, telephone contact will be made between Chicago and the hotel or assembly hall in all cities in which the participating dental societies are located. This telephone presentation then will be "ballooned" over a loud speaker to the audience in each city.

County Suffers 35 Casualties In Korean War

After less than five months of the Korean War, Allegany county's casualty list stands at 35 men.

Newspaper and Department of Defense statistics kept on casualties since the outbreak of hostilities June 25 show that eight countians are dead, 21 have been wounded and six are missing in action. Four men were listed as fatally hurt.

The casualty total is reached by counting each individual only once. In some cases, the same man's name appeared first as wounded and then as killed, but such duplications are listed as only one casualty. The total also omits consideration of men who were reported missing but later turned up safe.

Cumberland's list includes two killed, two fatally wounded and 14 wounded, one twice. There are no men reported missing in action. The local total is included in the county figures.

Statistics on Garrett county reveal that three men have been killed. Nine were wounded and four are missing. The fatalities were from the Vindex area.

Most of the statistics are based on reports from relatives, since the armed forces are slow to give out national figures on dead, wounded, missing and prisoners in the Korean fighting. Department of Defense casualty lists frequently are misleading because they identify a soldier by the address of his next to kin rather than by the town in which he resided.

Latest figures available show American casualties in Korea total 16,701.

Schedule Issued For New Bus Line

The new schedule of runs by the Metropolitan Trailways, which replaced Potomac Coach Lines, was issued yesterday. Potomac Lines gave up its franchise recently.

R. L. Emery, Jr., general manager and chairman of the board of Metropolitan, said the schedule is exactly the same as the Potomac timetable. Emery added that his inter-state runs, operated before the PSC granted his local intra-state permit, have been combined with the new schedule.

Buses meet all shifts at the Celanese plant, Emery said.

Here is the Metropolitan schedule:

5:55 a. m., leave Oldtown for Celanese.

7:20 a. m., leave Cumberland for Paw Paw, W. Va.

9:30 a. m., leave Cumberland for Paw Paw, Berkeley Springs, Martinsburg, Newton D. Baker Veterans Center, Charles Town, Leesburg, Va., and Washington, D. C.

1:05 p. m., Cumberland to Oldtown.

3:20 p. m. Cumberland to Oldtown.

5:10 p. m., Cumberland to Paw Paw.

9:05 p. m., Cumberland to Oldtown.

11:20 p. m., Cumberland to Oldtown.

Housing Meeting Planned Thursday

The Mayor and Council will meet with the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission and the Housing Authority Thursday at 10 a. m. in City Hall.

It is presumed that planning work for the first phase of the Cumberland housing project will be appoved. Start of the project would be construction of 17 apartment buildings on seven acres of land in South Cumberland. However, the plans must first be approved by the PHA office in Philadelphia, recommended to the PHA office in Washington and then approved by President Truman.

The local project is designed to provide housing for 300 families.

U. N. Is To Be Forum Topic

Students at the annual Allegany County High School Forum will discuss "Peace, the United Nations and You," it has been announced.

The topic will be studied in ten high schools in the county prior to the forum. Discussions are scheduled for classrooms, clubs, in assembly programs and inter-school forums.

The subject was selected and plans laid at a recent meeting at the Board of Education office. Specifically considered was the desirability and importance of sending a number of students to the United Nations at Lake Success. The budget of sponsoring organization now provides funds for only two from the county.

The next meeting will be held Thursday, Nov. 30. Students actively interested in studying the United Nations will accompany advisers.

School To Honor Softball Champs

The junior softball team of Columbia Street Playground, city champions, will be honored at a spaghetti supper Thursday at 6:30 p. m. in Columbia Street School cafeteria. Edwin Hoey, city recreational director, will be a guest speaker.

The affair is being sponsored by the Columbia Street Parent Teacher Association and proceeds will go toward the purchase of raincoats for the school patrol leaders.

The public is invited, but since only a limited number can be accommodated, reservations should be made at the school, or with Walter Bell, 225 Bedford Street, today or tomorrow.

The term, "in the limelight," referred to the original calcium, or lime, light designed for theatrical use in 1816, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Dentists To Hear Telephone Lectures

The Allegany-Garrett County Dental Society will take advantage of a new idea in education—instruction by telephone—to keep its members posted this winter on current advances in dentistry.

The unique program will originate in Chicago where it will be transmitted once each month by the University of Illinois College of Dentistry to 254 dental societies and study clubs. More than 10,000 dentists in 46 states in the U. S. and in seven provinces of Canada and hear the two-hour telephone broadcasts which will start on Monday, and continue monthly through March.

In transmitting the lectures, telephone contact will be made between Chicago and the hotel or assembly hall in all cities in which the participating dental societies are located. This telephone presentation then will be "ballooned" over a loud speaker to the audience in each city.

Experienced Printer Has "A Lot To Learn"

John Thomas Schenck, a former Cumberlander with 68 years' experience as a printer, believes he has a lot to learn before he will be ready to retire.

Born November 18, 1868, Schenk spent 18 years at the trade before he saw his first linotype in 1900. He has been operating one for 50 years, according to the Linotype News, trade magazine.

It was in spring, 1882, that Schenck's Sunday School teacher put him to work in a Cumberland print shop.

"The first thing he gave me," Schenck recalls, "was a two-gallon can of coal oil, a rag and brush and told me to clean the lamp chimneys hanging in iron racks on the cases, trim the wicks and fill the bowls. After I was through I swept the floor and picked up fallen type."

In 1888, the Cumberland Typographical Union No. 244 was organized and Schenck was made a charter member.

Schenck is still operating a linotype at the Wolfer Printing Company, Los Angeles, and has been there, off and on, for 17 years.

Schenck, whose health has been excellent and he has not required a doctor, since he was 19, said recently:

"When I finish my apprenticeship I intend to apply for a city job—for after 20 years I will be able to retire on a pension."

Prossen Becomes Celanese Manager

Successor to Reginald Hayes as plant manager of the Hopewell, Va., unit of Celanese Corporation of America is L. F. Prossen. Hayes left for South America to become general manager of the Celanese Colombiana, S. A., plant near Cali, Colombia. Prossen assumed his new duties last Wednesday.

The new plant manager was graduated from Pennsylvania State College in 1932 and five years later received his engineering degree from New York University. For a period of eight years he was affiliated with Western Electric Company. During the war he was engaged in development work for that company at the Kearney, N. J. plant. Later he was industrial engineer for Colt Patent Firearms Company.

Prossen joined Celanese Corporation of America in December, 1945, as industrial engineer for the Rome, Ga., plant. In July of 1949 he was transferred to the executive offices of the company in New York City as assistant to P. D. Cooper, vice president.

18-Year-Old Vet Of Korean War Wants To Be Army Cook Again

SALISBURY, Md. — (AP) — Pvt. Walter J. Webster, Jr., is an 18-year-old veteran of the Korean war.

Now he wants to become an Army cook again.

During the last four months he's been doing anything but cooking. In fact, there was a time when just a plain box of Army K-rations would have seemed a banquet.

When the Korean invasion started Webster, whose home is in Salisbury, was leading a rather quiet garrison life on Okinawa—as a cook in a headquarters platoon in the 29th Infantry Regiment.

Then things began to happen—fast.

On July 24 he landed at Pusan in Korea. Three days later they took away his skillet and handed him a rifle.

That same day he was wounded, captured and carted north by the Red Koreans. It wasn't until 63 days later that young Webster was freed.

Now Webster's back home on a furlough—with a Purple Heart medal and a wound scar on his thigh where a bullet from a burp gun ripped through.

The teen-age soldier got hit as he and seven other GI's were covering a river crossing in the fight or die days of the war. Five were mowed down, Webster and another soldier got wounded and the eighth GI came through unhit.

Webster was then put with a batch of about 105 Americans. "Those who couldn't walk were shot," he said.

The Reds took his jewelry, his combat boots, his cigarets and then the prisoners were moved to Hadong. There two guards capped things off by taking his underwear and dividing it between them. They left him only his bloody fatigues.

Hadong was under constant strafing and bombing by Allied planes and Webster said 15 prisoners were killed during these attacks.

The food was bad, perhaps one rice ball per meal and dysentery was ever present.

But he was able to keep his small medical kit and until that gave out he dressed his wound properly. Then he had to use old rags and the wound abscessed.

Then the Red Koreans ordered them moved to Seoul but they never got there. "We marched barefooted and slept during the day to avoid strafing planes. Our feet were badly cut and mine aren't healed up yet."

Later, near Namwon, American jet planes frightened the guards away, ground troops finally pushed through and Webster was among those liberated.

First thing the prisoners did was grab rations from the GI rescuers.

Webster was flown back to the United States and a surprise reunion with his mother, Mrs. Walter J. Webster, Sr.

Somerset High To Play Here In Lid Lifter

Campers Will Engage In 21 Games; Bowers Starts 25th Season

Allegany High School will open its 21-game basketball schedule on Tuesday, December 12, with Somerset (Pa.) High School as the visiting team, Coach Walter L. Bowers announced last night.

By C. V. BURNS

The report of Grover Cleveland Alexander's death on Saturday took us back 18 years to the day when "Old Pete," then 45, pitched in an exhibition game for the House of David team against the Cumberland Colts at Community Park.

It was the first of a two-game series and Alex entered the contest in the 7th inning as a relief pitcher with the score tied at 3-3. The Colts coupled several hits with two fielding errors to score four runs and beat the one-time major league ace by the score of 7-3.

Manager Leo Mackey's club also won the series finale, 2-0 but Alexander did not appear in that game. These games were played April 24 and 25, 1932 during the Colts' training period before the Middle Atlantic League season opened. Col. Nelson W. Russler was president of the local club.

"Old Pete" pitched here five years after he wound up his 16-year career in the big show where he hurled for the Phillies, Cubs and Cardinals.

At that time he had remarkable speed for a man his age but he threw few curves. Whether Alex bore down or not is hard to say. It was noticed however, that he did not take time to windup but threw the ball in almost as fast as he received it from Catcher Bleiding.

The year 1932, incidentally, was the last in organized ball for Cumberland. The previous season the Colts won the M. A. pennant but the New York Yankees sent in an entirely new team when the '32 season got under way.

Alexander was born in 1887 at Elba, Neb., and was 63 at the time of his death. He pitched in the National League from 1911 through 1927.

Many classy amateur fighters from Washington, D. C., have appeared here since the sport was revived in 1945. Perhaps the best were Norvel Lee, Leon Daughtry, Eugene Smith, Pat Thomas and Paul Nicol.

Next Monday a Washington team will appear in "Bobby" Green's show at the State Armory.

Capital City mittmen have appeared in 73 bouts in 19 shows here. They've won 42 and lost 31.

We don't think the Wheeling Blues of 1950-51 will be as good as last year's team with such seasoned campaigners as Gerald "Gee" Becker, Dick Wehr, Floatz Pelaez, Hank Ellis and Jule Rivlin no longer with the outfit.

Twenty candidates turned out for the initial practice of the Johnstown Clippers, new entry in the All-American League this season, which will be coached by Nat Hickey.

Complesi, Howe Goals Top Flintstone, 2-0

Bruce High School scored two field goals in the last five minutes of play to defeat Flintstone High School yesterday in a W.M.I. Soccer League contest in Westernport by the score of 2-0.

The victory was the first of the season for Coach Woody Woodson's team which has lost five games and tied one.

Goals by Louie Complesi and Bill Howe decided the issue.

Gene Ferguson, "Skip" Foley and Louie Complesi of Bruce and Goalie Carl Mallow, Ronnie Roland and Ted Puffinberger of Flintstone played outstanding games. The lineups:

Leafs Name Pilot

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (AP) — Joe Becker, who managed the Jersey City Giants for the last two years, today was named pilot of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League.

Becker, 41, signed a one-year contract to direct the Leafs, who finished seventh last season. He succeeds Jack Sanford, who took over the Leafs at the start of the 1949 season.

Circus Rose Wins

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP) — Circus Rose, a Virginia horse to be pointed for the 1952 Olympic Games, won the jumping championship at the final session of the 62nd National Horse Show tonight.

Circus Rose, winner of the Pennsylvania National Show at Harrisburg, Pa., was sold last Saturday to August A. Busch, Jr., St. Louis brewing magnate.

Pirate Fans Happy Over Rickey Deal

Want New Boss To Keep Kiner

By JIM HOLTON

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7 (AP) —Excited baseball fans in the Steel City were virtually unanimous today in their reaction to the news of Branch Rickey's move to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The happy chorus went like this:

"We can't do any worse than last year."

The die hard Buc followers referred to the 1950 race which found their heroes wearing the National League dunce cap.

Pennant hungry Pittsburgh hasn't had a championship club since 1927.

Rickey took over the reins at Forbes Field yesterday in a move that surprised virtually nobody.

The colorful baseball wizard cleared out of Brooklyn a week ago after selling his stock in the Dodgers. He is executive vice president and general manager—one of three—he whimsically announced—in the new Pirate setup.

Honus Wagner, Pittsburgh's immortal shortstop of three decades ago and still active as a Pirate coach at 75, declared:

"Any man who's been as successful as Mr. Rickey has been in the past can get this team back on its feet. I think the news is wonderful.

"If he wants me, I'll be back there in the dugout next spring."

Sports Announcer Rosey Rowswell—"The Pirates' number one fan"—echoed Wagner's sentiments:

"Rickey definitely will improve the club. He's always been successful. He's never satisfied with results—even a winning team isn't quite good enough to suit him."

Star Fiddle Pulls Upset

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP)—Star Fiddle, a long shot ex-claiming horse, humbled the greater names of the turf today with a rousing photo-finish victory in the $25,000 Premier Handicap at Hollywood Park today.

The four-year-old chestnut kept his nose in front of the highly favored Your Host and Bewitch to capture the seven furlong feature which marked the opening of Hollywood's 30-day fall meeting.

He broke on top, ran the distance in 1:22 1-5, and paid off to the fancy tune of $58.30, $15.50 and $8.70.

William Goetz's California Comet and even-money choice of the 27,000 fans, Your Host, paid $3.70 and $2.80, and the Calumet Farm's sweetheart, the five-year-old mare Bewitch, paid $4.40 for the show spot.

Central High School's undefeated and four-times tied soccer team can annex its second straight W. M. I. League championship today provided it defeats Beall High School at Lonaconing.

A victory in Central's 8th and final game on the schedule would give Coach Johnny Meyers' Tigers a total of 12 points — allowing two points for each win and one point for each tie. The Orange and Black then could not be overtaken even though Beall should defeat Bruce and Barton in its last two contests.

If today's game ends in a tie like the series opener did (0-0) Beall still has a chance to win the title by copping its two remaining games. The race will windup in a tie if today's game ends in a deadlock and Beall wins one and ties one of its final contests.

If Central loses today's game the Mountain City eleven could still win out by playing tie games with Bruce and Barton.

Beall is undefeated like Central while Barton in third place has lost one game.

The Rev. John B. Jones will officiate.

Three games remain on the league schedule after today. Friday, Barton is at Flintstone and Bruce at Beall. Barton will play host to Beall on Tuesday, November 14.

Somerset High To Play Here In Lid Lifter

Campers Will Engage In 21 Games; Bowers Starts 25th Season

Allegany High School will open its 21-game basketball schedule on Tuesday, December 12, with Somerset (Pa.) High School as the visiting team, Coach Walter L. Bowers announced last night.

In playing 21 games, including a contest with the Alumni, Allegany is abiding by the state ruling which limits the number of games to 20 scholastic opponents.

Bowers, dean of Allegany county high school coaches, is starting his 25th consecutive year as basketball mentor at AHS. Forty-four boys reported for initial practice at Campobello and the squad has been reduced to 28. It will be pared to 20 within the next few days.

The report of Grover Cleveland Alexander's death on Saturday took us back 18 years to the day when "Old Pete," then 45, pitched in an exhibition game for the House of David team against the Cumberland Colts at Community Park.

It was the first of a two-game series and Alex entered the contest in the 7th inning as a relief pitcher with the score tied at 3-3. The Colts coupled several hits with two fielding errors to score four runs and beat the one-time major league ace by the score of 7-3.

Manager Leo Mackey's club also won the series finale, 2-0 but Alexander did not appear in that game. These games were played April 24 and 25, 1932 during the Colts' training period before the Middle Atlantic League season opened. Col. Nelson W. Russler was president of the local club.

"Old Pete" pitched here five years after he wound up his 16-year career in the big show where he hurled for the Phillies, Cubs and Cardinals.

At that time he had remarkable speed for a man his age but he threw few curves. Whether Alex bore down or not is hard to say. It was noticed however, that he did not take time to windup but threw the ball in almost as fast as he received it from Catcher Bleiding.

The year 1932, incidentally, was the last in organized ball for Cumberland. The previous season the Colts won the M. A. pennant but the New York Yankees sent in an entirely new team when the '32 season got under way.

Alexander was born in 1887 at Elba, Neb., and was 63 at the time of his death. He pitched in the National League from 1911 through 1927.

Many classy amateur fighters from Washington, D. C., have appeared here since the sport was revived in 1945. Perhaps the best were Norvel Lee, Leon Daughtry, Eugene Smith, Pat Thomas and Paul Nicol.

Next Monday a Washington team will appear in "Bobby" Green's show at the State Armory.

Capital City mittmen have appeared in 73 bouts in 19 shows here. They've won 42 and lost 31.

Pirate Fans Happy Over Rickey Deal

Want New Boss To Keep Kiner

By JIM HOLTON

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7 (AP) —Excited baseball fans in the Steel City were virtually unanimous today in their reaction to the news of Branch Rickey's move to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The happy chorus went like this: "We can't do any worse than last year."

The die hard Buc followers referred to the 1950 race which found their heroes wearing the National League dunce cap.

Pennant hungry Pittsburgh hasn't had a championship club since 1927.

Rickey took over the reins at Forbes Field yesterday in a move that surprised virtually nobody.

The colorful baseball wizard cleared out of Brooklyn a week ago after selling his stock in the Dodgers. He is executive vice president and general manager—one of three—he whimsically announced—in the new Pirate setup.

Honus Wagner, Pittsburgh's immortal shortstop of three decades ago and still active as a Pirate coach at 75, declared:

"Any man who's been as successful as Mr. Rickey has been in the past can get this team back on its feet. I think the news is wonderful.

"If he wants me, I'll be back there in the dugout next spring."

Sports Announcer Rosey Rowsewell—"The Pirates' number one fan" —echoed Wagner's sentiments:

"Rickey definitely will improve the club. He's always been successful. He's never satisfied with results—even a winning team isn't quite good enough to suit him."

Star Fiddle Pulls Upset

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP)— Star Fiddle, a long shot ex-claiming horse, humbled the greater names of the turf today with a rousing photo-finish victory in the $25,000 Premier Handicap at Hollywood Park today.

The four-year-old chestnut kept his nose in front of the highly favored Your Host and Bewitch to capture the seven furlong feature which marked the opening of Hollywood's 30-day fall meeting.

He broke on top, ran the distance in 1:22 1-5, and paid off to the fancy tune of $58.30, $15.50 and $8.70.

William Goetz's California Comet and even-money choice of the 27,000 fans, Your Host, paid $3.70 and $2.80, and the Calumet Farm's sweetheart, the five-year-old mare Bewitch, paid $4.40 for the show spot.

Coach Ray Hull's Fort Hill High School junior varsity gridders registered their 6th victory of the season yesterday morning by defeating the Romney High School Jayvees here by the score of 20-14.

The Hilltoppers scored their winning touchdown in the final period after Romney had taken a 14-13 lead.

John McVicker accounted for two of the locals' scores on 15 and 20 yard runs. Jim Turner's 15 yard sprint produced the other six-pointer. McVicker plunged for two extra points.

One of Romney's touchdowns was the result of an 85-yard run by Whetzel. Ely scored the other one and ran two extra points.

During a 3rd period touchdown drive, Burke fumbled and Shahan of Romney recovered on the visitors' 30. A 15-yard clipping penalty halted Fort Hill on another occasion after Burke had been knocked out of bounds on the Romney 5.

Fort Hill marked up 12 first downs to 10 for Romney. The winners completed two out of five passes and Romney connected five times in nine tries. Lineups:

Samuel Will Return To Steelers' Lineup

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7 (AP)—Big Don Samuel, whose promising football career with the Pittsburgh Steelers apparently was cut short by a serious injury last year, will return to the Steeler lineup next Sunday.

Samuel was a rookie sensation last year until he suffered a complete dislocation of the knee in a game with the New York Bulldogs—now the Yankees—in midseason.

Before his injury Don's defensive brilliance and inspired running from the left wingback spot had aroused the entire pro football world.

Philadelphia Phils Fail To Get Place

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—Eight clubs are represented on the 1950 Associated Press all-star baseball team, but the National League champion Philadelphia Phillies drew a surprising blank.

Not even their Jim Konstanty, the loop's most valuable player, could make the grade. The great relief specialist placed fourth among righthanded pitchers.

On the other hand, Phil Rizzuto, the AL's most valuable player, was an overwhelming favorite. The New York Yankee shortstop was named on the most ballots, 360, in outdistancing the Phils' Gran Hamner, who received a mere nine votes.

The American League, as usual, dominated the team, selected by 381 sports writers and sportscasters.

The all-star team with batting averages and won and lost records:

First Base—Walt Dropo, Red Sox, .323.
Second Base—Jackie Robinson, Dodgers, .328.
Third Base—George Kell, Tigers, .341.
Shortstop—Phil Rizzuto, Yankees, .324.
Right Field—Stan Musial, Cardinals, .346.
Center Field—Joe DiMaggio, Yankees, .301.
Catcher—Yogi Berra, Yankees, 320.
Righthanded Pitcher—Bob Lemon, Indians, 23-11.
Lefthanded Pitcher — Warren Spahn, Braves, 21-17.
Utility—Bill Goodman, Red Sox, .354.

Rizzuto, Robinson, Kell, Musial and Kiner are holdovers from the 1949 team. Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox failed to make the team for the first time since the poll's inception five years ago.

Musial, a truly superb all-around performer, was second to Dropo in the battle for first place honors. Dropo polled 205 votes to Musial's 52.

The sport of table shuffleboard is increasing in popularity throughout the country and according to The Billboard Magazine more than 250,000 shufflers are expected to engage in organized league play this season.

Table shuffleboard is not a new game. It dates back to Shakespeare's time in England. The Bard had a long wooden table in his home with markings similar to shuffleboard diagrams today. Large penny pieces were used as weights.

Some historians, however, claim the game originated in ancient Egypt.

The National Shuffleboard League of Allegany County is in operation for the third straight year and for the second successive season the circuit is composed of 14 teams.

This league comprising 140 eligible shufflers plays a split season and the competition is very keen.

The Cumberland Knights of Columbus won league titles in 1948-49 and 1949-50.

A women's shuffleboard league also has been in operation for several years in Allegany County.

Holly Mims, the classy negro middleweight boxer from Washington, D. C., who upset the local fistic dope here last year in one of Vic Ricker's pro shows when he handed Marion Klingensmith, the Fighting Cop of Brownsville, Pa., a boxing lesson at the State Armory, provided another surprise Monday night in Baltimore when he won an unanimous decision over Johnny Bratton of Chicago.

Mims was a 4 to 1 underdog but that didn't matter.

Bratton, as a lightweight, held his own with the best in the game and among his K. O. victims was Herbie "Biff" Jones of Washington. The Chicagoan tips 155½ pounds now.

The Mims-Bratton scrap was reported to be one of the fastest, hardest-fought battles seen in Baltimore in many a day.

The Washington Redskins have lost 10 out of 12 games played since Herman Ball succeeded John Whelchel as head coach on November 7, 1949.

Last season's setbacks came at the hands of the Eagles, Bears, Giants, and Los Angeles Rams and the only win was scored at the expense of Green Bay.

This year the 'Skins opened with a victory over Baltimore then lost six in a row to Green Bay, Pittsburgh, New York Giants, Chicago Cardinals, Philadelphia Eagles and Giants for the second time.

It's the Eagles, Cleveland, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Cleveland the Redskins must face before the season ends.

Jimmy Catanese has been conspicuous by his absence since the pro fight game went on the rocks here and we asked Joe Niland the other day what became of the well known bolo puncher.

Joe says he understands Jimmy went to Africa on a wild game hunt to get some leopardskin for new trunks so he'll be ready when fighting is resumed. He wore out the others.

Catanese, incidentally, introduced leopardskin trunks long before Gussie Moran wore them for panties.

Paul Hoffman Quits Bullets

Player Suspended By Baltimore Pros

BALTIMORE, Nov. (AP) — The The Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association today suspended Paul Hoffman, high scoring star from Purdue, and planned to get a court injunction against his playing with any other pro team.

Hoffman did not go along when the Bullets took a plane for their game tonight in Providence, R. I.

Joseph Rash, president of the club, said Hoffman had demanded a new contract at a higher price.

"We had given him a raise over last year and he is one of the highest paid members of the team," Rash said.

Bullet officials went to Hoffman's home last night when he failed to report for practice yesterday and said he told them he had been working out with the Lancaster, Pa., team of the Eastern League.

It is the third time Hoffman has quit the Bullets since he joined the outfit for the 1947-48 season.

Paul Hoffman Quits Bullets

Player Suspended By Baltimore Pros

BALTIMORE, Nov. (AP) — The The Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association today suspended Paul Hoffman, high scoring star from Purdue, and planned to get a court injunction against his playing with any other pro team.

Hoffman did not go along when the Bullets took a plane for their game tonight in Providence, R. I.

Joseph Rash, president of the club, said Hoffman had demanded a new contract at a higher price.

"We had given him a raise over last year and he is one of the highest paid members of the team," Rash said.

Bullet officials went to Hoffman's home last night when he failed to report for practice yesterday and said he told them he had been working out with the Lancaster, Pa., team of the Eastern League.

It is the third time Hoffman has quit the Bullets since he joined the outfit for the 1947-48 season.

Teacher Faces Kidnap Charge

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 7 (AP) — Lewis G. Daniel faces arraignment tomorrow on a charge of abducting the 17-year-old girl he later married in Kentucky.

Daniel, 33-year-old Marsh Fork high school teacher and former coach, was brought to the Kanawha county jail early today from Beckley, where he was taken after his arrest yesterday.

The girl, the former Ann Tabor, rested under a doctor's care at the home of her parents in Naoma, Raleigh county. She arrived home yesterday after having been missing since October 29. She disappeared from the nurses' home of a Charleston hospital where she had been a student.

Prosecutor Frank L. Taylor disclosed that officers were continuing a check on what he said were sharply divergent stories told by Daniel and the girl.

Sander Fails To Apply

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 7 (AP) —Dr. Hermann N. Sander, central figure in a sensational murder trial last spring, tonight failed to seek reinstatement at the annual meeting of the Hillsborough County Medical Society which suspended him after his acquittal.

Vice Squad Chief Who Killed Self Had Assets Of $38,000

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7 (AP)—A torn piece of paper found on the body of Police Inspector Craig D. Ellis after he committed suicide showed the officer had assets of some $38,000, Deleware County District Attorney C. William Kraft, Jr., disclosed today.

Ellis, head of the Philadelphia vice squad for 10 years, committed suicide Oct. 17 a few hours before he was to testify before a federal grand jury investigating crime.

At first state police said Ellis left only a suicide note in which he said: "I have failed as a leader. My wife did not know of my laxity."

But Kraft today confirmed the existance of the memorandum listing assets, including an $8,000 item for gambling.

Building Service Tieup

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7 (AP) — More than 2,000 building service employes tonight threatened a strike which would cripple service in the city's largest office buildings.

Elevator operators, janitors and other maintenance personnel voted authorization for a walkout which would affect about 98 per cent of the city's office buildings.

A spokesman for local 29, AFL building service employes, said if the strike comes it will be "without further notice."

N. Y. Police Seek 'Passion Killer'

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—A handsome young college instructor was found naked and dead of an estimated 38 stab wounds today in his bed in a red-doored apartment in Manhattan's fashionable Upper East Side.

He was Karl T. Ohl, 37, a mathematics and engineering instructor at Fairleigh-Dickinson College in Rutherford, N. J., and former Harvard post-graduate student.

Detective Rudolph McLaughlin labelled the killing a "crime of passion."

He said only an inflamed or enraged person would have inflicted the multiple wounds found in Ohl's neck, abdomen and back.

The body was discovered by Hubert Landau, 55, a portrait artist, who said he had rented part of his fifth-floor Madison avenue apartment to the husky, blond educator some years ago.

Police questioned Landau and an unidentified woman and said they planned to query "at least 25" acquaintances of Ohl.

Woman Found Dead

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Anna Lynch, 59, was found dead today with a pistol in her hand, and a bullet hole in her temple.

Sen. Malone Predicts Red China Recognition

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 7 (AP) — Sen. George W. Malone (R-Nev.) predicted today that the United States will recognize Communist China within 90 days and said "Dean Acheson has been collaborating with Great Britain to that end."

Sen. Malone, in an interview here, also declared that the administration will "recall Gen. MacArthur as soon as the propaganda can be laid down."

The Nevada Senator claimed that this propaganda will be based on "charges of non-cooperation with Defense Secretary George Marshall, and that MacArthur is too old."

Smothers In Bed

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7 (AP)—While her brother slept peacefully below, three-year-old Darlene Elizabeth Hancock suffocated in the upper bunk of a double-deck bed in their home at Middle River.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hancock found their daughter, her neck wedged between the bed rail and spring, when they returned home last night.

Three Killed In Blast

HARWICH, Eng., Nov. 7 (AP) — A terrific explosion ripped an industrial explosives factory south of Harwich today, killed three workmen, injured 25 and rocked 20 miles of Britain's east coast. Another workman is missing.

by comfortable margins.

They are Edward T. Garmatz of the Third, and George H. Fallon, who handily defeated their two Republican opponents.

Rep. Lansdale G. Sasscer (D-Md) drew out to a commanding lead over Thomas Carr, an Annapolis radio station executive, in the Fifth District.

Rep. Edward T. Miller (R-Md) was leading State Sen. Thomas F. Johnson (R-Worcester) in the First (Eastern Shore) District on the basis of scattered returns.

Rep. J. Glenn Beall, Maryland's other Republican congressman, seemed to be comfortably safe in Western Maryland over Russell Peter Hartle, Democrat and retired Army general.

Attorney General Hammond seemed assured of another four years in office. With 753 polling places reported, he was leading William A. Gunter, a former Republican state senator from Allegany county, 172,551 votes to 146,695.

Ober Law Upheld

State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes had no Republican opposition. But he received scores of thousands of complementary votes, anyway and will be sworn into office again in January.

The turnout of voters may have set a new record. The weather was perfect, the issues were thoroughly aired and there were subjects up for referenda that captured the interest of the electorate.

One referendum decided that Maryland will keep its stringent Ober anti-subversive law, passed in 1949. Sponsors said it was "designed to destroy Communism without destroying Americanism."

It was brought to a referendum by petition of more than 18,000 registered voters.

State Sen. Sothoron Loses

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Nov. 7 (AP)—Senate Majority Leader L. Harold Sothoron lost his seat in Maryland's General Assembly today.

Sothoron, Senate floor boss for Gov. Lane's Democratic administration, was defeated by Republican John R. Fletcher in Prince George's county.

trol of the Senate, the Democrats had elected 14 of their candidates. This, with 31 holdovers, gave them 45 seats, or four short of a majority. They had upset no Republicans.

Republicans had elected 14 of their men. These, with 29 holdovers, give the GOP 43 seats, or six short of a majority.

Eight Senate contests were undecided.

All told 432 House seats were at stake. The Republicans took three seats in Maine in September.

In the House, Republicans had a net gain of six seats shortly after 3:30 a. m. (EST).

They had elected 116 members to 192 for the Democrats, but many of these were in the solidly Democratic south.

To win control of Congress, Republicans needed a net gain of 49 in the House and seven in the Senate.

Democrats could take some consolation, however, in the reelection victory of Sen. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, whom Franklin D. Roosevelt once called "my good right arm."

They succeeded also, in reelecting Sen. Brien McMahon of Connecticut, chairman of the Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy.

Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt won reelection in New York, but another son of F.D.R., James Roosevelt, lost to Gov. Earl Warren in the California governorship race.

Sen. Elbert D. Thomas, Democratic chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, trailed in Utah behind Republican Wallace F. Bennett, former head of the National Association of Manufacturers.

The California senatorial race saw Republican Rep. Richard M. Nixon take a quick lead over Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas, former Broadway stage star and self-proclaimed "100 percent New Dealer."

In New York, a noted leftist bowed in defeat. He is Rep. Vito Marcantonio, American Labor Party. Republicans, Democrats and Liberals united behind James G. Donovan.

Teacher Faces Kidnap Charge

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 7 (AP) — Lewis G. Daniel faces arraignment tomorrow on a charge of abducting the 17-year-old girl he later married in Kentucky.

Daniel, 33-year-old Marsh Fork high school teacher and former coach, was brought to the Kanawha county jail early today from Beckley, where he was taken after his arrest yesterday.

The girl, the former Ann Tabor, rested under a doctor's care at the home of her parents in Naoma, Raleigh county. She arrived home yesterday after having been missing since October 29. She disappeared from the nurses' home of a Charleston hospital where she had been a student.

Prosecutor Frank L. Taylor disclosed that officers were continuing a check on what he said were sharply divergent stories told by Daniel and the girl.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 7 (AP) —Dr. Hermann N. Sander, central figure in a sensational murder trial last spring, tonight failed to seek reinstatement at the annual meeting of the Hillsborough County Medical Society which suspended him after his acquittal.

Vice Squad Chief Who Killed Self Had Assets Of $38,000

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7 (AP)—A torn piece of paper found on the body of Police Inspector Craig D. Ellis after he committed suicide showed the officer had assets of some $38,000, Deleware County District Attorney C. William Kraft, Jr., disclosed today.

Ellis, head of the Philadelphia vice squad for 10 years, committed suicide Oct. 17 a few hours before he was to testify before a federal grand jury investigating crime.

At first state police said Ellis left only a suicide note in which he said: "I have failed as a leader. My wife did not know of my laxity."

Building Service Tieup

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7 (AP) — More than 2,000 building service employes tonight threatened a strike which would cripple service in the city's largest office buildings.

Elevator operators, janitors and other maintenance personnel voted authorization for a walkout which would affect about 98 per cent of the city's office buildings.

A spokesman for local 29, AFL building service employes, said if the strike comes it will be "without further notice."

N. Y. Police Seek 'Passion Killer'

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—A handsome young college instructor was found naked and dead of an estimated 38 stab wounds today in his bed in a red-doored apartment in Manhattan's fashionable Upper East Side.

He was Karl T. Ohl, 37, a mathematics and engineering instructor at Fairleigh-Dickinson College in Rutherford, N. J., and former Harvard post-graduate student.

Detective Rudolph McLaughlin labelled the killing a "crime of passion."

He said only an inflamed or enraged person would have inflicted the multiple wounds found in Ohl's neck, abdomen and back.

The body was discovered by Hubert Landau, 55, a portrait artist, who said he had rented part of his fifth-floor Madison avenue apartment to the husky, blond educator some years ago.

Police questioned Landau and an unidentified woman and said they planned to query "at least 25" acquaintances of Ohl.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Anna Lynch, 59, was found dead today with a pistol in her hand, and a bullet hole in her temple.

Sen. Malone Predicts Red China Recognition

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 7 (AP) — Sen. George W. Malone (R-Nev.) predicted today that the United States will recognize Communist China within 90 days and said "Dean Acheson has been collaborating with Great Britain to that end."

Sen. Malone, in an interview here, also declared that the administration will "recall Gen. MacArthur as soon as the propaganda can be laid down."

The Nevada Senator claimed that this propaganda will be based on "charges of non-cooperation with Defense Secretary George Marshall, and that MacArthur is too old."

later with McKeldin ahead and a 72 per cent vote cast.

At Barton, District No. 9, where there are 746 registered voters, a record of 597 turned in ballots for 80 per cent. Workers at the polls made a last minute valiant effort to find three more to make an even 600, but they just couldn't be located before closing time.

Just for comparison, it might be noted that four years ago McKeldin carried Allegany county with 13,304 compared to Lane's 9,963.

In the county commissioner contest four years ago Lemmert led the ticket with 16,559, Holmes polled 13,400 and Wilkinson, received 16,166. The lone Democrat four years ago, polled 8,229. He was Samuel T. Weatherholt, father of F. Allan Weatherholt, the lone Democrat for commissioner this time.

In the Congressional race, Beall carried Allegany county four years ago by a vote of 14,185 against 8,597 for McDonald, and in 1948 Beall lost the county with 14,028 to Austin's 14,587.

Four years ago, it was also noted yesterday that Markey, running for the U. S. Senate, beat O'Conor in this county by a vote of 12,366 against 10,401.

Yesterday's election was a most congenial one in all polling places. Usually, workers of opposite political faiths separate themselves into small groups, but yesterday there was more fraternization than has been noted heretofore, and there seemed to be less bitterness and fewer arguments than usual.

The vote indicated that many people crossed party lines, and workers reported that fewer people marked a straight party ballot.

PTA Groups To Attend Parley

Associations from all over Allegany county will be represented at the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers 35th annual convention Thursday and Friday in Baltimore.

Theme of the convention is "Preparing Today's Child for Tomorrow's World."

Local delegations will leave here today. They will be lead by Mrs. John E. Lancaster, state treasurer, and chairman of registration and credentials; Mrs. Edward J. Wilson, chairman of procedure and bylaws; Mrs. Lawrence Shafferman, president of Allegany County Council; Mrs. Margaret Jones, of the Frostburg State College Laboratory School; Mrs. Stanley Buckley, character and spiritual education chairman; and George Dunlap, chairman of the local President's Club. All are members of the state board.

Dunlap and Miss Dorothy W. Shires, former county principal, now state elementary supervisor, will participate in panel discussions.

Morning, afternoon and evening sessions have been planned for each of the two days, beginning Thursday with registration, reports by officials, and the keynote address by Mrs. Clifford N. Jenkins, vice president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Other speakers during the meeting will be Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, superintendent of the State Department of Education; Mrs. Arthur Warkins, author; Floyd M. Riddick, editor; and Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, president of Towson State Teachers College.

Local Parent-Teacher Associations from 23 counties and Baltimore City are expected to attend the sessions. Mrs. Emil Smith of Silver Spring, state president, will preside.

Lightning, contrary to the time-honored conception of it by artists, does not travel in a zigzag path of acute angles. It curves and twists but hasn't time for sharp turns. Perspective sometimes gives its course the appearance of acute angles.

Casualties of World War II were 22,104,209 or 52.3 per cent of total mobilized forces.

WHAT DOES A FLYING SAUCER REALLY LOOK LIKE?

Flying saucers are interesting to think about and are just naturally stimulating to the curiosity, but reliable sources declare that the saucers are on our side and that the worrying should be done by someone else . . . not us.

So maybe it would be time better spent to worry about something else . . . like the June 15th income tax installment, or unpaid bills.

We can help dissolve this worry too. Sure it's easy. Here's how it is done.

Everyone has things around the house that are usable but going unused. For instance, furniture in the attic, a lawnmower, a bicycle, luggage, a boat, an outboard motor, and dozens of other items. How long will a gas burner last? Why, as long as the range itself. You'll never run the risk of having a burner bog down just when you're getting a "company" meal.

YOU'LL DISCOVER
ever so many more advantages in your automatic GAS range the longer you have it. For instance, when you're "redding up"—a whisk with a damp cloth takes off all but the stickiest dirt—and that comes off easily by just lifting out burners and washing them.

GAS ITSELF IS CLEAN
Take a towel and wipe the bottom of a pan that's been used over a properly-adjusted gas flame. You'll never get a speck of soot from gas.

GOP Still Has Visions Of "Ike" In White House

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)—NOT EVEN this most hotly partisan—occasionally disappointing—election period has obscured the heady Republican vision of Gen. Ike Eisenhower in the White House in 1952.

If anything, it has brought the vision into sharper focus, for every Republican setback causes G.O.P. regulars to yearn more desperately for a winning symbol. They now regard the General as the surest thing they've had on their side in 22 years of variable frustration.

The impression is that the General's willingness to speak with Republican leaders and the fact that he usually leaves himself an "out" whenever he deprecates his expected candidacy.

But those who are very close to the General tell a story that has another shading. They say that he has no appetite for the White House job. They say he will not campaign for the Republican nomination.

But no matter how often and sincerely he expresses this lack of covetousness for the highest office in the land, he cannot convince Republican friends that he is dead serious.

"I like this job at Columbia and I expect to keep it," he told one leader recently. "I was offered posts in business that would have paid perhaps five times as much, and turned them down because of the opportunity Columbia presents to work with American youth in a constructive way.

"I'm not a politician and I'm not seeking office. Naturally, I am always available for any military service I'm called upon to render. But beyond that all I want to do is to perform my duties at Columbia."

The visitor reached over and slapped the General on the knee.

"That's the way to talk, he enthused. "Just keep talking that way, General, and you can't miss."

Eisenhower sighed wearily and gave it up as a hopeless job.

There also appears to be a belief that the General has put off accepting the job as commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the North Atlantic pact powers. Some have even said that he is opposed to being sent out of the country for an indefinite period of time just when millions of Americans are coming to regard him as a positive candidate and probable winner in 1952.

Not so. The truth of the matter is that Eisenhower would leave tomorrow for Europe in uniform if there were a North Atlantic pact armed force to command. The North Atlantic treaty countries are united militarily in name only. This country is still undecided as to how much aid to offer, and so are the other powers.

France remains vigorously opposed to the rearming of Western Germany. In view of what Germany did to that country twice in a quarter of a century, other pact countries which believe that no such union could work without the manpower and military skill of the Germans are not at this time pressing France for a reversal of its feeling.

When and if all the North Atlantic powers agree, and there is a genuine call for a supreme commander, Eisenhower is ready to go. There is a good chance also that many of the men who were on his winning team in World War II, and who have now gone into fields other than the military, will volunteer to return to Europe with him.

Incidentally, the General accepted a New York police guard without comment, a few hours after the attempted assassination of President Truman. Eisenhower's allergy to bodyguards is legendary though the Germans would have considered his death or capture as of monumental importance.

During the war, he refused personal guard. His indignation over the Secret Service detail which accompanied F.D.R. when the President was in North Africa early in the war was such that — at one point — he threatened to stop a Roosevelt review of his troops unless the Secret Service men, who were tagging along in the wake of the jeep carrying the President and Eisenhower, left the area. He considered their presence an affront to the ability of the countless soldiers to defend their president from any possible harm that might come his way. Made the decision stick, too.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7 (INS) — Farley Granger's business representative, the Sam Jaffe agency, has been barred from the Samuel Goldwyn lot and there is plenty of trouble brewing.

Seems Farley was booked for a personal appearance in San Francisco with "Edge Of Doom," and it was advertised that he would be there. He refused to go, which naturally didn't make his boss, Samuel Goldwyn, very happy.

Farley won't however, be put on suspension since he is working on "Strangers on a Train" for Alfred Hitchcock at Warner Brothers. Young Granger, who has been with Goldwyn since he was 18, was on suspension some time ago when he refused to do "Lorna Doone" for Edward Small, and instead went to Europe. He was also suspended when he returned and refused to appear with "Our Very Own." I heard later he wrote Goldwyn a contrite letter.

I am particularly interested to learn that a picture already has been made in Italy on the beautiful story of Maria Goretti, the 11-year-old girl elevated to sainthood last June by Pope Pius XII. Under the title of "The Girl From The Marshes" it will soon be released in this country by Joe Burstyn.

The tragedy of the child who died protecting her virginity and praying for the salvation of the man who attacked her was made two years ago by famed Italian Director Augusto Genina. It already has won such honors as the Silver Ribbon (Italy's highest film award) and another from the International Catholic Office of Cinema Citation.

One of the great love stories in theatrical history was that of Michael Strange and John Barrymore. Michael Strange, poetess and actress, who died Sunday, was the second Mrs. Barrymore and at the time John started wooing her she was married to Leonard Thomas, rich and aristocratic socialite.

She, herself, was born Blanche Oelrichs, and this romance was one that was widely publicized. For a while they were ideally happy and both appeared with Ethel Barrymore in "Claire De Lune."

I remember so well John saying to me one night, about the time they had started to have trouble after he had come to Hollywood, "If I telephone my wife and don't get her I'm unhappy and wonder where she is. If I do get her we quarrel."

Chit-chat: After five months shooting "Quo Vadis" in Rome, imagine the surprise of Bob Taylor, Deborah Kerr and Mervyn Leroy when Ingrid Bergman paid them a surprise visit on the set the last day of work.

Morgan Hudgins, press agent of the $6,000,000 religious epic, who flew in Monday, says Ingrid is very thin but she couldn't have been gayer and happier. She arrived just in time to help Mervyn Leroy cut his birthday cake and to be a very welcome guest at the party which followed the final crank of the cameras.

Oh, yes — Ingrid insists on being called "Mrs. Rossellini" and corrects anyone who introduces her as Miss Bergman.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Barbara Bennett, it's reported, wants to reopen her case against Morton Downey to gain custody of their five children. She lost the decision in the New York courts recently, but because Morton has married again she hopes this may alter the verdict. The Downey children, however, adore their new stepmother.

Everett Crosby and Dixie, who had a feud on for some years, have made up and both Everett and his wife were at Dixie's birthday party Saturday. Bing called her long distance from Carmel.

Charles Boyer is being honored by the Mt. Sinai hospital in New York for his French research activities, and he'll be given a plaque. He's worked on this for over ten years.

Milton Berle and Evelyn Knight are going to have an announcement for their friends before the holidays.

Bobo Rockefeller took her young son, Winthrop, Jr., to Deborah Dozier's second birthday party. There he met the future debutantes and beaux of 1966. Heavens, I even hate to write that date! Charlie Chaplin's two, a boy and a girl; two of the John Farrow children, and many others helped Debbie cut her cake.

Vivien Leigh had a birthday Sunday and Laurence Olivier gave a party with 20 guests, mostly of the British set. One of the gifts Larry gave Vivien is a miniature streetcar for her charm bracelet.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Where There's Smoke . . .

Billy Rose

YESTERDAY, at one of those cocktail parties where only pedigreed olives are used in the Martinis, I met a movie actress who used to dance in one of my chorus lines back in the '30's. She was sporting a square-cut that looked like the searchlight on the old Albany night boat.

"Glad you're doing so well," I said. "You've really gone places since the days when you made a fast forty a week."

"Have I changed much?" she asked, lighting a gold-tipped cigaret.

"Well, for one thing," I said, "you never used to smoke buck-a-pack ciggies."

"You mean these Sobranies?" said the actress. "Matter of fact, I started smoking them while I was working at your club. One of your customers introduced me to them."

"Boy friend?"

"Yes, if a man in his 50's can be called a boy. Remember Big Joel?"

"The oil fella?"

"That's the one," said the star. "Know something? I probably would be married to him today if not for these Sobranies."

"Tell me about it," I prodded.

"Well, it's not much of a story," said the actress. "One night Big Joel threw a party at the Central Park Casino for a bunch of his pals—Jimmy Walker, Billy Seeman, Jules Glaenzer and that crowd. And it was quite a shindig—guinea hen under glass, buckets of champagne and gold-tipped Sobranies on every table. I was one of the girls invited—but what I didn't know until later was that Joel intended to surprise me and announce our engagement that night."

"Were you stuck on the big lug?"

"Not particularly," said the star, "but he was a nice enough fella and had he made the announcement I don't doubt but that I would have gone along with it."

"What stopped him?"

"It was one of those things," said the actress. "A little after midnight, when I came back to my table after a dance, I found my pocketbook was missing. I started to look for it, but Big Joel told me to relax and handed me a hundred bucks. I thanked him but kept right on looking, and when he asked me why I was so worried about the pocketbook I told him there was three hundred dollars in it.

"I had hardly gotten the words out of my mouth when the woman who worked in the ladies' room came up and handed me my purse—said she had found it under the make-up table.

"Big Joel looked at me and grinned kind of funny. 'It ain't that I don't trust you, honey,' he said, 'but a man wants to be awfully sure about the lady he's going to make his wife. Forgive me, but—would you mind opening that bag and showing me the three hundred?'

"Naturally I did no such thing. I picked up my bag, gave him one of those 'how-dare-you' looks and walked straight out of the room."

"In other words," I small-joked, "Big Joel caught you with your purse down."

"Nothing of the sort," said the movie star. "Matter of fact, I had been paid off that afternoon for a series of modeling jobs and had closer to four hundred than three in my bag."

"Then why didn't you open it?"

"How could I?" said the actress. "He'd have seen the ten packs of Sobranie Gold-Tips I had swiped off the tables."

Saturday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

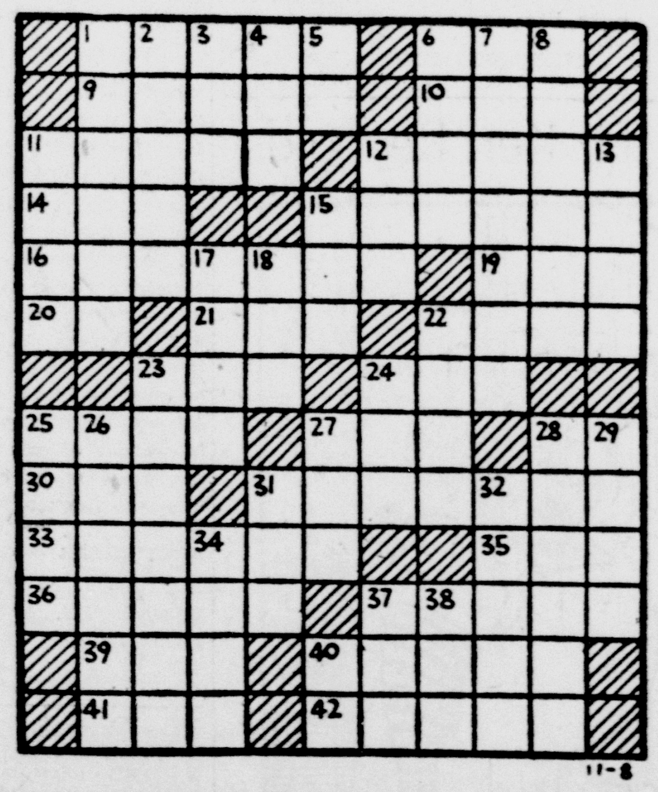
Saturday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

F O R O P F U R R T J U L P M T R K U G D G F A M H H; U G D G F A M H H F O R D I F L U R W R L P M T R K—J N M K.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: HE HAS DONE THE CRIME TO WHOM IT WAS OF ADVANTAGE—SENECA.

In Memoriam

In memory of my beloved daughter, Joyce Lee "Rusty" Garlitz, who died 8 years ago today, November 8, 1942.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true;
There's not a day, dear Rusty,
I do not think of you.

Father

In memory of my beloved daughter, Joyce Lee "Rusty" Garlitz, who died 8 years ago, November 8, 1942.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her today,
Are the one who loved her best.

Sadly missed by her
Mother

In memory of our dear husband and father, Hugh Weir, who passed away one year ago, November 8, 1949.

As we loved him, so we miss him,
In our hearts he is so near,
Loved, remembered, long for always,
Bringing many a silent tear.
Beautiful memories are all that's left
Of one we loved and shall never forget.

Sadly missed by his:
Wife, Mrs. Hugh Weir
Daughter, Mrs. George Winner
Son, Mr. William Weir

In Memoriam

In memory of my beloved daughter, Joyce Lee "Rusty" Garlitz, who died 8 years ago today, November 8, 1942.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true;
There's not a day, dear Rusty,
I do not think of you.

Father

In memory of my beloved daughter, Joyce Lee "Rusty" Garlitz, who died 8 years ago, November 8, 1942.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her today,
Are the one who loved her best.

Sadly missed by her
Mother

In memory of our dear husband and father, Hugh Weir, who passed away one year ago, November 8, 1949.

As we loved him, so we miss him,
In our hearts he is so near,
Loved, remembered, long for always,
Bringing many a silent tear.
Beautiful memories are all that's left
Of one we loved and shall never forget.

Sadly missed by his:
Wife, Mrs. Hugh Weir
Daughter, Mrs. George Winner
Son, Mr. William Weir

S. Air Force. It can be stowed away in an easy-to-handle, 18-inch by 36-inch bundle. The raft, which will support more than 5,000 pounds, can be inflated in about one minute. (International)

"The Authority on Authorities"

MOST TRAPS ARE HIDDEN

WHETHER they are set by your opponents, or are merely produced by the shuffle and deal, most of the traps that endanger your easy-looking contracts are hidden to one extent or another. It is therefore unwise to bull along according to your customary ways of playing certain kinds of suits. First it is well to take a look at the over-all situation and try to note, if you can, some possible risk which was not at first obvious. It may be that a simple exception to your habitual play will protect your contract.

You won't find any contract of a mere game reached less impressively than that one, with a series of bids that after a little while sounded like sign-offs. But, when South saw the dummy, he was glad he reached the 4-Hearts, which looked like an unadulterated cinch of purest ray serene. That's the trouble. It looked too easy.

West made his natural lead of the club K to the A. All that South expected to do, after a quick glance, was to score the trump A and K, then run diamonds. So he tried that. But, when East discarded on the second honor, leaving West with the Q, South noted that he was in unforeseen difficulty. As between leading diamonds now and hoping to get a spade discard before West won with his trump, and leading the heart J to the Q, he decided to try the diamonds.

That made him doubly unhappy. West ruffed the second diamond and quickly scored three spade tricks for his side to defeat the contract. The heart lead instead of the diamond one to the fourth trick would have brought the same defeat, with three spade tricks for the defenders.

All that South had to do to assure his contract was finesse the heart J. If West won, a trump in dummy would limit spade losers to two. If West let the finesse win, his Q would become a dead duck and an extra trick would have resulted.

"The Authority on Authorities"

MOST TRAPS ARE HIDDEN

WHETHER they are set by your opponents, or are merely produced by the shuffle and deal, most of the traps that endanger your easy-looking contracts are hidden to one extent or another. It is therefore unwise to bull along according to your customary ways of playing certain kinds of suits. First it is well to take a look at the over-all situation and try to note, if you can, some possible risk which was not at first obvious. It may be that a simple exception to your habitual play will protect your contract.

You won't find any contract of a mere game reached less impressively than that one, with a series of bids that after a little while sounded like sign-offs. But, when South saw the dummy, he was glad he reached the 4-Hearts, which looked like an unadulterated cinch of purest ray serene. That's the trouble. It looked too easy.

West made his natural lead of the club K to the A. All that South expected to do, after a quick glance, was to score the trump A and K, then run diamonds. So he tried that. But, when East discarded on the second honor, leaving West with the Q, South noted that he was in unforeseen difficulty. As between leading diamonds now and hoping to get a spade discard before West won with his trump, and leading the heart J to the Q, he decided to try the diamonds.

That made him doubly unhappy. West ruffed the second diamond and quickly scored three spade tricks for his side to defeat the contract. The heart lead instead of the diamond one to the fourth trick would have brought the same defeat, with three spade tricks for the defenders.

All that South had to do to assure his contract was finesse the heart J. If West won, a trump in dummy would limit spade losers to two. If West let the finesse win, his Q would become a dead duck and an extra trick would have resulted.

McKeldin And Butler Far Ahead In County Voting

Harris, Ryan Contest For Judge Close

County GOP Heads For Sweep

Allegany county, with its strong GOP book majority, led the state in yesterday's balloting by remaining almost solidly in the Republican column, defeating the Democratic incumbents Lane and Tydings by sweeping pluralities, and giving splendid votes to local party candidates, on the basis of incomplete unofficial returns.

Only in the contest for judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit between Morgan C. Harris, Republican, and Edward J. Ryan, Democrat, was there a close contest in the county, according to scattered returns.

This battle, listed as one of the possible close ones weeks ago, was equally close in Washingon and Garrett counties, based upon early returns.

As this was written, 35 precincts in the district gave Harris 3706 votes and Ryan 3674. The partial report was not indicative of a trend. There are 173 precincts in the district.

Early returns in the local state's attorney contest between Paul M. Fletcher, Republican, and Harold E. Naughton, Democrat, showed Fletcher forging steadily and far ahead.

Closer contests had been expected in some quarters in the House of Delegates race with Democrats predicting Clark or Barton might ease into sixth place assuring one of them a seat. However, early returns indicated a solid Republican front.

The same situation held true in the contest for county commissioner where Weatherholt, the lone Democrat, had been given an outside chance. The Republican candidates, Orr, Lemmert and Holmees, were running ahead in that order.

In the race for county sheriff, Muir seemed assured a return to office to be the first sheriff ever to succeed himself in this county. He was ahead of his Democratic opponent Dunlap by a two to one lead in the early returns.

In the three counties, the breakdown on 35 of the 173 precincts for the judgeship showed the following early trend:

Washington County, 15 of 70 precincts—Harris 1805 and Ryan 1909.

Allegany County, 12 of 78 precincts—Harris 1439 and Ryan 1342.

Garrett County, 8 of 25 precincts—Harris 462 and Ryan 423. The difference was 32 votes.

Eight precincts reporting completely in Allegany county showed the following results:

Yule Decoration Balloon Parade Plans Underway

Lights To Be Turned On By Thanksgiving

Baltimore Street is slated to take on a Yuletide look by Thanksgiving.

A report on plans for new street decorations on Baltimore Street between the railroads was presented yesterday at a meeting of the Christmas decoration committee of the Mercantile Bureau.

Results of solicitations to cover the cost of new street decorations and a huge balloon parade were reviewed.

Edward L. Ewald, chairman, said the results of the drive are encouraging.

The total cost of the program will be about $4,000, about double the cost of last year's Christmas program.

The contributions of organizations and merchants on Centre, Mechanic and Liberty Streets, officials said, have been most encouraging. They said it looks as if it will not be necessary to ask merchants to double their contributions to make the expanded program possible.

The balloon parade, which is expected to bring an unprecedented crowd to this city, will be staged November 27 at 7 p. m.

The exact route has not been set, but is expected to include Baltimore, North Centre, Market and Mechanic Streets. Over 45 minutes will be required to stage the giant parade.

The new street decorations will feature new decorations for all street lights and illuminated laurel ropes across the street.

State Shows Increase Of Gas In Home Heating

The number of Maryland homes equipped with gas heat increased by 19,970 during the past year, a report by the state's utility firms points out.

About 25,977 more homes will get gas heat in the next year if heating materials continue to be available by the end of 1951, the report continues. This increase of 100 per cent in homes with gas heating over the two-year period is the result of the rapid expansion of natural gas pipelines on which $152,864,000 has been spent in the state since 1946.

Celanese Superintendent Is Transferred To New Plant

Mervin Martin, superintendent of Cellulose acetate research at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation for the past 10 years, has been transferred to the new Celanese plant in Prince Rupert, British Columbia.

Martin left here Sunday by train for British Columbia to assist other personnel in readying machinery and employing workers for the new plant, which is scheduled to begin operations early next year.

Prince Rupert, a city about the size of Frostburg, is located 80 miles from the border of Alaska.

The new plant is being set up for the processing of wood pulp.

Martin will return here during the Christmas season to take his family to Prince Rupert.

Prior to his transfer, Martin was employed at the local Celanese plant for about 25 years.

The family now resides at Roberts Place, near Bowling Green.

Mrs. Martin is the former Eleanor Deetz. The couple have three children, Patricia, 16, a junior at Allegany High School; Sue, 12, who is in the seventh grade at Allegany; and six-year-old Tommy, who entered the first grade at Mt. Royal School this year.

Martin is one of two local Celanese men to be transferred to Prince Rupert. Dr. Daniel Sherk, a chemist in CA research, is scheduled to leave here after the first of the year.

Weather

It was a warm and sunny election day yesterday after the temperature zoomed from a low of 39 degrees in the early morning to a high of 73 degrees in the afternoon downtown. A more than usual turnout of voters was attributed in part to the bright, sunny weather. Today, the Weather Bureau forecasts a high temperature, near 70 degrees. It is to be partly cloudy in the afternoon.

Staggers Leads In Home County, Some GOP Ahead

Congressman Gets Big Mineral Vote

KEYSER, W. Va.—Although some Republican candidates were running ahead in Mineral County, with only one of the 31 precincts missing, Congressman Harley O. Staggers, Keyser Democrat, piled up a wide margin yesterday in his home county, according to unofficial tabulations.

Returns from 30 precincts gave Staggers 4,246 votes to 3,124 for his Republican opponent, Melvin Snyder. Only Fountain, one of the smaller precincts, was unreported. It was expected to make small change in the races.

Other Mineral County totals, with the one precinct missing:

State Senator, Clarence E. Martin, Jr., D, 3,303, Harvey E. Beeler, Sr., R, 3,561; House of Delegates, George E. Barger, D, 3,320, John J. Rogers, R, 3,877; Clerk of County Court, Harry O. Rogers, R, unopposed, 4,335.

Mineral County voters gave an unfavorable majority in the proposed amendment to provide increased compensation for the State Legislation. The vote was 1,470 for to 2,555 against.

Two other matters were given majorities by the Mineral County voters, with the single precinct missing. The vote was 2,860 for to 2,126 against on the School Bond Amendment and 4,002 for to 1,887 against on the $90,000,000 veterans' bonus.

Allegany Hospital announces the following birth:

Memorial Hospital announces the following births:

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Shillingburg, Romney, W. Va., a daughter, yesterday.

Ober Measure Wins Decisive Support Here

Maryland's Ober Law received overwhelming approval in returns from seven of Allegany county's 78 precincts.

Voters in the scattered returns approved the retention of the Subversive Activities Act of 1949 by 638 with only 145 citizens voting against the measure.

Less decisive balloting indicates all of the other amendments will be approved in Allegany county.

The first of the amendments, providing for a constitutional convention to alter or frame a new constitution, received 253 affirmative votes with 129 voting against the proposal.

Another amendment which would freeze the membership in the House of Delegates received 252 votes with 110 voting against the measure.

West Virginia Gives Approval To Demo Rule

All Congressmen Forge To Front

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 7 (AP)—West Virginia voters turned out in unprecedented off-year numbers today to give apparent approval to continued Democratic rule.

With about half of the state's 2,811 precincts counted, Democratic incumbents ran up impressive majorities for the three statewide offices at stake.

All of the Democratic Congressmen forged into the front, some by wide margins. Among those trailing was Rush D. Holt, who switched to Republican this year after having served in the U. S. Senate as a Democrat.

The voters gave approval in overwhelming numbers to a proposed Veteran Bonus, and also voted in favor of relaxing the rules on school bond issues to stimulate school building construction.

They apparently rejected a proposal to double the pay of members of the State Senate and House of Delegates.

Early indications were that the Democrats would retain control of the State Senate, and early returns on House of Delegate contests indicated only one casualty among the majority Democrats.

The bonus would allow $10 for each month of domestic service, or $15 for each month of foreign duty, up to maximums of $300 for home service and $400 for foreign service.

The incumbent state officers, with well over half of the polling places tabulated, were out in front by wide margins.

State Treasurer William H. Ansel, Jr., of Springfield was leading Republican Hal Morris of Charleston, 247,878 to 181.317, with 1,756 of the state's 2,811 precincts counted.

Attorney General William C. Marland, another appointee of Governor Patteson to fill a vacancy, was out in front of William Rardin of Point Pleasant, with votes in from 1,725 polling places. The count was 270,892 for the Democrat, and 177,327 for Rardin.

River Dragging For Missing Man Planned Today

Dreyer Will Seek Body In Afternoon

Because the theory has been advanced that George Eaton, 32-year-old missing man, may have fallen from the Western Maryland Railway bridge and drowned in the Potomac River, County Treasurer Frederick C. Dreyer, veteran river man, is planning to drag the river this afternoon.

Eaton, who lived with his father in an unpainted frame house along the old C & O Canal, a short distance south of the Western Maryland Railway station, has been missing since about 10:45 p. m. last Saturday.

Charlie Eaton, 76-year-old father of the missing man, told a reporter for The News yesterday afternoon that he and his son had spent last Saturday evening together in a pool room on Baltimore Street. Because it was raining when they left, they decided to take a taxi home.

"When we got home George told me that he was going over to see his sister, Mrs. Lillian Cassell, who lives at 32 Carpenter Avenue, in Ridgeley, W. Va.," Charlie Eaton said. "He walked out toward the railroad bridge and that was the last I saw of him."

Dreyer talked with the elder Eaton yesterday about dragging the Potomac River bottom.

"George may have met up with a friend in Ridgeley and rode out in the country for a stay there," his father explained. "He couldn't write so I would have no way of telling where he had been until he returned."

Area Soldier Wins Bronze Star Fighting In Korea

Pfc. James H. Miller, son of Charles Raymond Miller, Bedford Valley, Pa., has been awarded the Bronze Star in Korea, where he has been been fighting throughout the Korean War with the Army's 24th Division.

Information about the 18-year-old soldier's honor came to his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Miller, Corriganville, in one of six letters which arrived from Korea on the same day this week. The soldier has a sister, Mrs. Walter Ruby, who lives at Beans Cove, Pa.

Pfc. Miller's letter of October 20, which told of the Bronze Star, made very little mention of his own part in the Korean fighting. However, another letter, lated October 17, said that Miller was "pretty close" to the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, at the time. Incidentally, that city fell to the United Nations forces only two days after Miller's letter was written.

The soldier informed his uncle and aunt that he had captured a North Korean flag which he would bring back to the United States with him. He expressed a hope that he would be home for Christmas, but was most uncertain. Since that letter was written the participation of Chinese Communists on the side of the North Koreans undoubtedly has ruined this hope.

His letter of October 17 referred to the happy days when the North Koreans were surrendering in droves. He wrote:

"Helped take some North Koreans today. They had taken off their uniforms and were wearing civilian clothes like all the other people. Every day they come walking down the road with their hands up. Not just one or two at a time but by the dozens. That's the way we like them."

Although he is only 18 years old Pfc. Miller has been in the Army 20 months. Stationed in Japan at the time the war started, he soon was shipped into South Korea and has been there ever since.

Rubber Workers Plan Balloting On Dues Boost

Referendum To Be Held November 16

A referendum on a proposal to increase the monthly dues of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastics Workers of America (CIO), by 50 cents will be held November 16 at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant.

Notices of the special election were posted at the tire plant yesterday.

Members of the union, at a meeting Sunday at the local hall, unanimously approved an Executive Board recommendation that the monthly dues be increased.

The membership action paved the way for the referendum in compliance with Article VIII, Section 3, Paragraph 4 of the URCLPWA constitution.

Booths at the plant will be open from 6 to 8 a.m.; 2 to 4 p.m. and from 10 p.m. to midnight on Thursday, November 16.

Members must present union cards to tellers to be eligible to vote.

The notice, signed by Ralph C. Beard, vice president, said the increase of dues to $2 a month is necessary in order to maintain the functions of the organization and give services necessary to the welfare of each member.

The cost of handling grievances, the union said, has increased with each raise obtained for all the members, as it is necessary to pay a higher rate per hour for all time lost from work by committeemen.

Many other increases in cost have to be met covering office supplies, rent and phone calls and the union must be prepared to pay for arbitration cases which are very expensive, Beard said.

County Woman Runs Into Road, Killed By Auto

Mrs. Salisbury Was Flagging Bus

Mrs. Mary Jane Salisbury, 62, of Detmold, Lonaconing, was killed last night when she was struck by an automobile on Route 36, about one mile north of Midland, according to State Police.

Police said that Mrs. Salisbury was struck when she ran from behind a parked car and across the road to flag an approaching bus. She was pronounced dead upon arrival at Miners Hospital in Frostburg.

Driver of the automobile which struck Mrs. Salisbury was identified as Harbert E. Allen, RFD 1, Frostburg. No charge was placed against him after the accident, State Police said.

The accident occurred sometime between 6:30 and 7 o'clock last night. State Trooper A. M. Spioch investigated the fatality.

State Police were unable to ascertain immediately why Mrs. Salisbury happened to be in the vicinity of National, where the tragedy occurred.

Mrs. Salisbury's death was attributed to a broken neck and punctured lung.

Allen has been ordered to appear at State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris' office at 1 p. m. today for an investigation into the fatal crash.

Relatives in Lonaconing said that Mrs. Salisbury had taken the week off to visit relatives and friends. Yesterday she had visited her sons, Arthur and Len Green, at National.

A native and lifelong resident of Lonaconing, she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dory Dawson. Twice married, her first husband, Charles Green, preceded her in death. From her first marriage she had nine children. They were Virgil Green, killed in Mexico while in Army service in World War II; Arthur and Len Green, both of Nation; Allen, Midland; Vernon Green, Barton; Billie and Ed Green, at home; Mrs. Cecil Whitman, Detmold, Lonaconing, and Mrs. Joseph Snyder, Lonaconing.

Her second husband, Thomas Salisbury, also survives. They have one child, Elsie, at home. Two sisters, Miss Goldie Dawson, Ohio, and Mrs. Arthur McKenzie, Lonaconing, also survive. Mrs. Salisbury was a member of Pentecostal Holiness Church in Lonaconing.

McKeldin And Butler Far Ahead In County Voting

County GOP Heads For Sweep

Allegany county, with its strong GOP book majority, led the state in yesterday's balloting by remaining almost solidly in the Republican column, defeating the Democratic incumbents Lane and Tydings by sweeping pluralities, and giving splendid votes to local party candidates, on the basis of incomplete unofficial returns.

Only in the contest for judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit between Morgan C. Harris, Republican, and Edward J. Ryan, Democrat, was there a close contest in the county, according to scattered returns.

This battle, listed as one of the possible close ones weeks ago, was equally close in Washingon and Garrett counties, based upon early returns.

As this was written, 35 precincts in the district gave Harris 3706 votes and Ryan 3674. The partial report was not indicative of a trend. There are 173 precincts in the district.

Early returns in the local state's attorney contest between Paul M. Fletcher, Republican, and Harold E. Naughton, Democrat, showed Fletcher forging steadily and far ahead.

Closer contests had been expected in some quarters in the House of Delegates race with Democrats predicting Clark or Barton might ease into sixth place assuring one of them a seat. However, early returns indicated a solid Republican front.

The same situation held true in the contest for county commissioner where Weatherholt, the lone Democrat, had been given an outside chance. The Republican candidates, Orr, Lemmert and Holmees, were running ahead in that order.

In the race for county sheriff, Muir seemed assured a return to office to be the first sheriff ever to succeed himself in this county. He was ahead of his Democratic opponent Dunlap by a two to one lead in the early returns.

In the three counties, the breakdown on 35 of the 173 precincts for the judgeship showed the following early trend:

Washington County, 15 of 70 precincts—Harris 1805 and Ryan 1909.

Allegany County, 12 of 78 precincts—Harris 1439 and Ryan 1342.

Garrett County, 8 of 25 precincts—Harris 462 and Ryan 423. The difference was 32 votes.

Eight precincts reporting completely in Allegany county showed the following results:

Celanese Superintendent Is Transferred To New Plant

Mervin Martin, superintendent of Cellulose acetate research at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation for the past 10 years, has been transferred to the new Celanese plant in Prince Rupert, British Columbia.

Martin left here Sunday by train for British Columbia to assist other personnel in readying machinery and employing workers for the new plant, which is scheduled to begin operations early next year.

Prince Rupert, a city about the size of Frostburg, is located 80 miles from the border of Alaska.

The new plant is being set up for the processing of wood pulp.

Martin will return here during the Christmas season to take his family to Prince Rupert.

Prior to his transfer, Martin was employed at the local Celanese plant for about 25 years.

The family now resides at Roberts Place, near Bowling Green.

Mrs. Martin is the former Eleanor Deetz. The couple have three children, Patricia, 16, a junior at Allegany High School; Sue, 12, who is in the seventh grade at Allegany; and six-year-old Tommy, who entered the first grade at Mt. Royal School this year.

Martin is one of two local Celanese men to be transferred to Prince Rupert. Dr. Daniel Sherk, a chemist in CA research, is scheduled to leave here after the first of the year.

Yule Decoration Balloon Parade Plans Underway

Lights To Be Turned On By Thanksgiving

Baltimore Street is slated to take on a Yuletide look by Thanksgiving.

A report on plans for new street decorations on Baltimore Street between the railroads was presented yesterday at a meeting of the Christmas decoration committee of the Mercantile Bureau.

Results of solicitations to cover the cost of new street decorations and a huge balloon parade were reviewed.

Edward L. Ewald, chairman, said the results of the drive are encouraging.

The total cost of the program will be about $4,000, about double the cost of last year's Christmas program.

The contributions of organizations and merchants on Centre, Mechanic and Liberty Streets, officials said, have been most encouraging. They said it looks as if it will not be necessary to ask merchants to double their contributions to make the expanded program possible.

The balloon parade, which is expected to bring an unprecedented crowd to this city, will be staged November 27 at 7 p. m.

The exact route has not been set, but is expected to include Baltimore, North Centre, Market and Mechanic Streets. Over 45 minutes will be required to stage the giant parade.

The new street decorations will feature new decorations for all street lights and illuminated laurel ropes across the street.

State Shows Increase Of Gas In Home Heating

The number of Maryland homes equipped with gas heat increased by 19,970 during the past year, a report by the state's utility firms points out.

About 25,977 more homes will get gas heat in the next year if heating materials continue to be available by the end of 1951, the report continues. This increase of 100 per cent in homes with gas heating over the two-year period is the result of the rapid expansion of natural gas pipelines on which $152,864,000 has been spent in the state since 1946.

Weather

It was a warm and sunny election day yesterday after the temperature zoomed from a low of 39 degrees in the early morning to a high of 73 degrees in the afternoon downtown. Ober Measure Wins Decisive Support Here

Maryland's Ober Law received overwhelming approval in returns from seven of Allegany county's 78 precincts.

Voters in the scattered returns approved the retention of the Subversive Activities Act of 1949 by 638 with only 145 citizens voting against the measure.

Less decisive balloting indicates all of the other amendments will be approved in Allegany county.

The first of the amendments, providing for a constitutional convention to alter or frame a new constitution, received 253 affirmative votes with 129 voting against the proposal.

Another amendment which would freeze the membership in the House of Delegates received 252 votes with 110 voting against the measure.

The third amendment, which would provide that juries will be judges of law as well as fact in criminal cases was approved by a 238 to 104 count.

Also approved, with a count of 229 to 91, was an amendment to permit the General Assembly to reconsider bills vetoed by a governor after the General Assembly adjourns.

Approved with a count of 229 to 92 was a proposal to allow the courts to send a man to prison for refusing to pay alimony or support dependent children.

The sixth amendment, which would authorize the chief deputy treasurer to sign and the chief deputy comptroller to countersign bonds or other certificates was approved by a 239 to 75 count.

Congressman J. Glenn Beall (R) was running far ahead of his Democratic opponent, Russell Hartle with 92 of 291 polling places in the Sixth District reported this morning.

Beall had 28,586 votes to 19,974 for Hartle.

Montgomery county, reporting 58 of 58 precincts gave Beall 24,231 and Hartle 17,187.

Eight of 78 polling places in Allegany county gave Beall 1,076 and Hartle 466.

Three of 60 in Frederick county showed Beall with 415 and Hartle 237.

Garrett county, with 10 of 25 polling places reported, gave Beall 962 and Hartle 404.

Washington county, Hartle's home, gave Beall 1,902 and Hartle 1,680.

Rubber Workers Plan Balloting On Dues Boost

Referendum To Be Held November 16

A referendum on a proposal to increase the monthly dues of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastics Workers of America (CIO), by 50 cents will be held November 16 at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant.

Notices of the special election were posted at the tire plant yesterday.

Members of the union, at a meeting Sunday at the local hall, unanimously approved an Executive Board recommendation that the monthly dues be increased.

The membership action paved the way for the referendum in compliance with Article VIII, Section 3, Paragraph 4 of the URCLPWA constitution.

Booths at the plant will be open from 6 to 8 a.m.; 2 to 4 p.m. and from 10 p.m. to midnight on Thursday, November 16.

Members must present union cards to tellers to be eligible to vote.

The notice, signed by Ralph C. Beard, vice president, said the increase of dues to $2 a month is necessary in order to maintain the functions of the organization and give services necessary to the welfare of each member.

The cost of handling grievances, the union said, has increased with each raise obtained for all the members, as it is necessary to pay a higher rate per hour for all time lost from work by committeemen.

Many other increases in cost have to be met covering office supplies, rent and phone calls and the union must be prepared to pay for arbitration cases which are very expensive, Beard said.

County Woman Runs Into Road, Killed By Auto

Mrs. Salisbury Was Flagging Bus

Mrs. Mary Jane Salisbury, 62, of Detmold, Lonaconing, was killed last night when she was struck by an automobile on Route 36, about one mile north of Midland, according to State Police.

Police said that Mrs. Salisbury was struck when she ran from behind a parked car and across the road to flag an approaching bus. She was pronounced dead upon arrival at Miners Hospital in Frostburg.

Driver of the automobile which struck Mrs. Salisbury was identified as Harbert E. Allen, RFD 1, Frostburg. No charge was placed against him after the accident, State Police said.

The accident occurred sometime between 6:30 and 7 o'clock last night. State Trooper A. M. Spioch investigated the fatality.

State Police were unable to ascertain immediately why Mrs. Salisbury happened to be in the vicinity of National, where the tragedy occurred.

Mrs. Salisbury's death was attributed to a broken neck and punctured lung.

Allen has been ordered to appear at State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris' office at 1 p. m. today for an investigation into the fatal crash.

Relatives in Lonaconing said that Mrs. Salisbury had taken the week off to visit relatives and friends. Yesterday she had visited her sons, Arthur and Len Green, at National.

A native and lifelong resident of Lonaconing, she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dory Dawson. Twice married, her first husband, Charles Green, preceded her in death. From her first marriage she had nine children. They were Virgil Green, killed in Mexico while in Army service in World War II; Arthur and Len Green, both of Nation; Allen, Midland; Vernon Green, Barton; Billie and Ed Green, at home; Mrs. Cecil Whitman, Detmold, Lonaconing, and Mrs. Joseph Snyder, Lonaconing.

Her second husband, Thomas Salisbury, also survives. They have one child, Elsie, at home. Two sisters, Miss Goldie Dawson, Ohio, and Mrs. Arthur McKenzie, Lonaconing, also survive. Mrs. Salisbury was a member of Pentecostal Holiness Church in Lonaconing.

Missionaries Flee From Iron Curtain

Rev. and Mrs. Louis Dennis, who recently escaped from Communist China, are expected to visit the latter's sister, Staff Capt. M. M. Kelso, 153 North Mechanic Street.

The missionary and his wife recently slipped through the iron curtain in that country. They are expected to visit here, possibly before Thanksgiving.

In a letter to the local Volunteers of America official, they said the situation in China was getting very tense before they escaped in September, since their mission was on the main communication line connecting Northern and Central China with the coast, "where they are getting ready for a big drive on Formosa."

McKELDIN AND BUTLER ELECTED

Republicans Score Striking Gains

Pick Up Six House Seats, 3 In Senate

Taft, Millikin And Dewey Win

[By The Associated Press]

The Republican leadership team in the U. S. Senate, Taft of Ohio and Millikin of Colorado, swept to victory yesterday in a national election that bolstered GOP strength in both houses of Congress.

Back into office too went New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Republican victories unseated such Democratic stalwarts as Maryland's veteran Sen. Millard E. Tydings, Senate Democratic Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois and Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut.

In Pennsylvania, Republican Gov. James H. Duff won election to the U. S. Senate, defeating Democratic Sen. Francis J. Meyers.

In Ohio, Taft easily trounced Democratic State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, who was backed by a solid combination of labor unions.

New Yorkers Elect Impellitteri Mayor

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP) — Vincent R. Impellitteri, the immigrant son of an Italian shoemaker, and insurgent candidate, tonight won election as mayor of New York City.

Both his leading rivals conceded after the independent Democrat swept to a commanding position starting with the first returns.

First to concede was Republican Edward Corsi. He was followed soon after by the regular Democratic candidate, Judge Ferdinand Pecora, who also had the Liberal Party nomination.

In Colorado, Sen. Eugene D. Millikin won reelection over Democratic Rep. John A. Carroll, staunch "Fair Dealer."

Taft is chairman of the Republican Policy Committee and was fought by a Democratic-labor coalition.

Millikin, a Taft lieutenant, heads the Senate Republican conference.

Several big name Democrats were blotted from the political scene, at least temporarily.

Welker Wins In Idaho

But the Republicans had succeeded in capturing three Senate seats formerly held by Democrats. In addition to the Maryland and Illinois victories, Herman Welker, Republican, won in Idaho over D. Worth Clark, Democrat. This contest was for the seat Sen. Glenn Taylor, Democrat, lost in the primary. Taylor temporarily left the party to run for vice president as Henry Wallace's ticket mate under the Progressive standard in 1948.

The score board at 3:30 a. m. showed that in the fight for con-

Defense Chiefs, Truman Confer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP) — President Truman voted the straight Democratic ticket in his home town of Independence, Mo., today then flew back to conferences here on the grave turn of the war in Korea.

He said he was so confident of the vote outcome he wouldn't even sit up to hear about it.

Landing at National airport at 4:24 p.m. EST, the President was met by Secretary of State Acheson. He has been in close touch with Acheson by telephone since he flew west Saturday to vote and to make his one frankly political speech of the congressional campaign.

Then he conferred at the White House with Acheson and Secretary of Defense Marshall. There was no statement on the meeting but it doubtless concerned affairs in Korea.

After his White House business, Mr. Truman's plans called for "some sleep" while the election results are counted up, and a rest — for several days, perhaps — aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg on the Potomac river and Chesapeake bay.

600 U. S. Planes Blast Red Positions

Republicans Score Upsets In Maryland

Blizzard Slows Hunt For Plane With 22 Aboard

BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 7 (AP) — An airliner carrying 22 persons vanished into swirling snow over the Continental Divide this morning and a mounting blizzard quickly hamstrung the search for it.

Snow and peak-shrouding clouds first hampered and then halted aerial search. Snow and mud on back roads blocked automobiles and forced ground parties to start climbing afoot into a craggy area 15 miles east of here where several persons reported hearing a heavy explosive.

The westbound Northwest airliner, with 18 passengers and four crew members aboard, left Helena at 9:53 a. m. (EST) for Butte. The pilot of the Martin 202 radioed at 10:11 a. m. He was over Whitehall about 50 miles south of Helena, starting his descent at 10,500 feet.

Searching parties were sent to an area about 15 miles east of Butte after Mrs. Carl Halvorson, wife of a Northern Pacific Railroad section foreman, reported hearing a low-flying plane and explosion.

Other reports from Lake Delmo and Camp Caroline pinpointed the explosion just north of Homestake Pass, where the Northern Pacific Railroad crosses the Continental Divide.

A highway patrol car took Mrs. Halvorson within a few miles of the area, then got stuck in deep snow and mud.

The plane disappeared over Pipestone Pass about 10 minutes out of Butte.

Gov. Warren's Daughter Stricken With Polio

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP) —Nina Warren, 17-year-old daughter of Gov. Earl Warren, was hospitalized today for infantile paralysis, the Governor's office said.

Warren's secretaries said doctors held strong hope for her recovery because the polio is localized in her legs.

Nina's illness brought the Governor speeding to her bedside in Sutter hospital from Oakland where he, Mrs. Warren and their 22-year-old daughter Virginia voted.

U. N. Korean Unit Assures Red China Allied Forces Will Respect Its Border

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 7 (AP) — The U. N. Korean Committee unanimously approved a resolution tonight assuring the Chinese Communists, in effect, that their border with Korea will be respected by the U. N. forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The committee acted after receiving an official report from Gen. MacArthur yesterday that Chinese Communists were fighting the U. N. forces in North Korea. The committee directed its members now on the scene in Korea to start work immediately and lend all possible assistance on questions relating to North Korea.

Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine foreign minister and chairman of the committee, put the resolution before the committee. He called the situation urgent.

Council Appeal Seen

Before the resolution was approved Ambassador Ernest A. Gross, No. 2 U. S. delegate on the Security Council, conferred with the committee as diplomats sought accurate information on the Chinese Communist forces and intentions in Korea.

The resolution was seen in some quarters as preparing the groundwork for an appeal from the Security Council for the Chinese Communists to withdraw and assuring the Chinese Communists that the northern frontier of Korea would be respected. Nothing was said about the huge power producing plant on the Yalu river, the comments here indicating that the U. N. may be turning toward a strong assurance to the Chinese that the U. N. forces will not cross the border.

Council To Consider Case

Security Council delegates were silent on developments which might be expected at their urgent meeting on the Korean situation tomorrow. However, consultations were being held among the various council members.

The delegates sitting here are permanent U. N. delegates. The countries named on the commission are sending their regular commission members direct to Korea and hope to have the commission in full session by Nov. 20.

Vishinsky Doubts Chinese Communists Are Fighting In Korea

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP) — Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky said tonight he doubts that Chinese Communist troops are now fighting in Korea.

"Perhaps there are some volunteers," he said, "but I doubt that any Chinese Communist troops have appeared there."

Vishinsky made these remarks through an interpretor to reporters at the Russian embassy where he was honor guest at a gala reception commemorating the 33rd anniversary of the Communist revolution.

Answering questions, he said he has not read Gen. MacArthur's report to the U. N. which charges that Communist forces are aiding the North Korean Communists.

Pressed for more specific information on the Chinese Communist situation, Vishinsky pointed out he is now far from the Soviet Union and "I'm not so informed on that matter."

Truman Safeguards Tightened Further

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Precautions for President Truman's safety were tightened further today.

Barricades were placed across both ends of a one block stretch of West Executive avenue, which runs between the White House and the old State Department building.

Pedestrians as well as motor traffic are forbidden to enter the block. White wooden guard houses were established at each end, manned by uniformed officers.

Crommelin Loses

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 7 (AP)—Lister Hill, Alabama senior senator, was reelected today in a race against retired Adm. John G. Crommelin.

"Oscar Of Waldorf," Host To Presidents, Kings, Dies

NEW PALTZ, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP) — Oscar Tschirky, host to presidents and kings who knew him as "Oscar of the Waldorf" died at his secluded little cottage here last night while playing checkers with his son, August.

The 84-year-old famous maitre d'hotel had served 50 years with both the old and the new Waldorf-Astoria hotel as an official greeter and supervisor of foods before he retired in 1943.

Presidents from Grover Cleveland through Franklin D. Roosevelt dined under his watchful eye and genial graciousness. France, Belgium and Romania decorated him with medals. The elder J. Pierpont Morgan would have none but Oscar supervise his meals and he was a favorite of Winston Churchill and Sir Thomas Lipton.

U. S. Wins First All-Jet Battle

U. S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN KOREA, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP)—Jet met jet today in mortal combat for the first time in history.

A U. S. F.80 Shooting Star knocked down a Russian-built MIG-15 jet in a five-minute 600 mile an hour battle over Sinuiju in Northwest Korea.

The American plane was piloted by First Lt. Russell Brown, Pasadena, Calif. Brown said the speedy MIG-15 exploded.

U. S. Aggression In Korea Charged By Top Russians

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 (AP) — Soviet disapproval of United States intervention in Korea was emphasized sharply today in the celebration of the 33rd anniversary of the Russian revolution. The Soviet armed forces were ordered to increase their vigilance and combat readiness.

Tanks, guns and troops of the Moscow garrison paraded across Red Square in foggy, drizzly weather which grounded the Soviet warplanes that usually do formation flying on such occasions.

West "Preparing For War"

Marshal Semeon Budyenny, a World War II hero and member of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (parliament), declared in an address from the reviewing stand atop Lenin's Tomb that western "imperialists" are preparing for a new war.

"The Anglo-American imperialists have now passed from preparations for aggression to direct acts of aggression, evidence of which is the bandit intervention of the United States in Korea," he said.

"The Soviet people, together with other freedom-loving peoples of the world, brand the American aggressors with shame and express their sympathy with the Korean people who are conducting a heroic struggle for the freedom and independence of their motherland."

Words Considered Serious

Similar expressions came in orders of the day to the army and navy. These were issued by Marshal A. M. Vassilevsky, army minister, and Adm. I. S. Yumashev, naval minister.

While the Russian press has charged before that the United States government intends to unleash a new war on the world, it has never been said quite so authoritatively or quite so repeatedly.

Western diplomatic observers in Moscow, therefore, are studying the phrases carefully. They indicate that they consider the words significant and serious.

Ranch Hand Jailed, Fined For Dragging Horse To Its Death

GUNNISON, Colo., Nov. 7 (AP)—Jess Brandt, a Gunnison ranch hand, was sentenced to a 60-day jail term for dragging a horse to its death behind his truck.

Brandt also was fined $217 in Justice Court. Sheriff Herb Lashbrook said it was "one of the most vicious cases of murder of a horse I ever saw."

Testimony showed Brandt became angry when the horse balked at being loaded onto a truck in the Doctor park area near Gunnison. The ranch hand tied the animal, a mare, to the truck and drove down the road.

U. S. 3rd Infantry Division Lands At Wonsan Port

Marines Gain Mile In Changjin Gorge

SEOUL, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP) — American air power blasted Red positions near the Northwestern Korean border today in the second greatest air attack of the Korean war. More than 600 planes were used.

The big raid against cities, towns, bridges and Red positions came as the Tenth Corps on the Korean east coast announced the arrival of elements of the U. S. Third Infantry Division at Wonsan port of the Sea of Japan.

There was no indication of where the Third Division would be deployed.

The big air strike was flown through cold, blue skies. The attack ranged all along the Manchurian frontier, almost to the Soviet Siberian border. Pilots had orders to make certain their bombs fell south of the Yalu river boundary and not in Red China's Manchuria.

The main target was Sinuiju, near the west coast. B-29s and B-26 bombers set out to flatten the town with explosives. Sinuiju is a major supply and transportation center.

Today's attack was the biggest air effort since the early part of September when the Air Force concentrated everything it had to help halt the Communist offensive in Southern Korea, near Taegu.

A U. S. Fifth Air Force spokesman said every bridge across the Yalu, which will freeze solid in a few weeks, was made a target. But bombardiers were cautioned to drop their bombs on the south ends of the bridges (the Korean side) to avoid Chinese soil.

They faced Manchurian anti-aircraft guns.

Across the Yalu from Sinuiju lies the large Manchurian town of Antung. U. S. pilots said it was from the Antung airfield that Russian-made jet fighters took off for attack on Allied planes yesterday.

On the ground in Northwest Korea, United Nations forces deployed along a 60-nile front. The line ran from the Anju bridgehead over the Chongchon river northwest to Pakchon then eastward to Yongdong in North Central Korea.

Generally the Red Chinese and North Koreans were organizing an opposing defense line and did not attack in force, except in a sharp battle throughout yesterday and last night for the bomb shattered town of Pakchon.

On the left flank of the United Nations lines, the 27th British Commonwealth Brigade and U. S. 24th Division units advanced up to three miles north of the Anju.

Communist troops retreated in large numbers before the British advance. The commonwealth troops reached to within two miles of Pakchon, which is eight miles northwest of Anju.

When the ground attack started small enemy groups mounted token resistance. Then an estimated 800 Communists started pulling back from hill positions.

In the battle for Pakchon, South Korean Eighth Division elements met stubborn resistance from an estimated Red regiment dug into hills northeast of the town.

Arrival of the U. S. Third Division elements on the east coast coincided with a Tenth Corps announcement that U. S. Marines last night swept forward more than a mile in the Changjin river gorge without meeting any Chinese resistance.

Lighter Side Of Elections

KOKOMO, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP) — Among the Kokomo voters today were two 99-year-old women and another woman 86 years old who voted for the first time in her life.

The first time voter was Mrs. Amanda Meadows, who explained:

"I always believed it was a man's place to vote and not a woman's."

The 99-year-old women are Mrs. Nora T. Gause and Mrs. Ophelia Everman. Both said they had been voting since women were given the right to ballot in 1920.

GOSHEN, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP) — Charles Howard, a retired policeman, came to a voting place in an ambulance today.

"I lost my leg but not my vote," he told election officials.

One of his legs was amputated after he was injured in an automobile accident last week.

Ambulance attendants carried him into the voting booth.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 7 (INS) —James A. Hard, who cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln, was brought to an election booth by a nurse today and balloted for what he said was the 85th time.

"Voted straight Republican," the 105-year-old Civil War veteran told newsmen.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7 (AP) — Voters in one Baltimore city precinct glimpsed an earlier than early trend in today's contest for governor.

A voting machine broke. It had recorded a 99-81 lead for Republican Theodore R. McKeldin.

Republicans Unseat Gov. Lane, Sen. Tydings

GOP May Gain Even Split In House; Hammond Wins; Ober Act Upheld

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP)—Maryland has chosen a Republican to head the state government for the next four years.

And it has turned down the bid of Democratic Sen. Millard E. Tydings for a fifth term in office.

Elected governor was Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, former mayor of Baltimore and orator extraordinary. He defeated Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., by the largest margin ever rolled up by a member of his party for state office in Maryland history.

Chosen to succeed Sen. Tydings was John Marshall Butler, 53-year-old Baltimore attorney who made his first bid for elective office a successful one.

McKeldin had tried twice before to become governor. He was defeated in 1942 and 1946 by large margins.

It even looked as if the Republicans had a very good chance of gaining an even split in the House of Representatives for the first time in many years.

Of some consolation to the Democrats was the fact that the party reelected Attorney General Hall Hammond to a second term and put in State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes by default. Tawes had no opponent.

Sketchy reports from the counties indicated, too, that the Democrats would have working majorities in the Legislature which convenes January 3.

Lane Concedes Defeat

With 753 polling places of 1,429 reported, McKeldin had 229,175 votes to 168,455 for Gov. Lane. That was a margin of about 60,000 votes.

Gov. Lane conceded defeat at 12:25 a. m. and sent "sincere congratulations" to the victor.

Butler's unofficial total, with 753 polling places in, was 201,844 votes to 169,032 for Tydings.

Sen. Tydings, himself, said at 1 a. m., that "it looks like Mr. Butler has enough majority to ensure his election."

Butler's victory marked the first time Maryland has chosen a Republican senator since Philip Lee Goldsborough turned the trick in the "Hoover landslide" of 1928.

Republican James P. S. Devereux, hero of Wake Island, was running ahead of William P. Bolton, the Democrat incumbent in Maryland's sprawling Second Congressional District.

If he holds his edge, it may well mean that the Maryland congressional delegation will be made up of three Democrats and three Republicans.

Rep. Miller, Beall Lead

The other five incumbent congressmen—three Democrats and two Republicans—were leading.

In fact, the two Democrats whose districts are wholly within Baltimore city, apparently were elected

Russian Returns To Allied Council Meeting In Tokyo

TOKYO, Wednesday, Nov. 8 (AP) — The Russian representative on the Allied Council for Japan, Maj. Gen. A. P. Kislenko, returned to a regularly scheduled council meeting today for the first time since a Soviet walkout last April 26.

Kislenko gave no advance indication of his intention to appear.

The meeting lasted 30 minutes and was mainly occupied by a brief, but bitter, exchange between the Soviet General and the representative of the Chinese Nationalist government, Chen Yen Chiun.

There was no mention of Chinese Communist intervention in Korea.

The repatriation of Japanese prisoners held by the Russians was the principal reason for the Soviet boycott.

Palace Revolution Implied By Reports

NEW DEDHI, India, Nov. 7 (AP) — A three-year-old grandson of King Tribhuvana Bir Kikram of Nepal has supplanted him on the throne of that Himalayan nation adjoining Tibet, the Nepalese embassy announced tonight. A palace revolution was implied.

The King, 44, took refuge at the Indian embassy in his capital at Katmandu yesterday. The Indian Foreign Ministry said he wants to come to India for medical treatment and his government objected. Other sources reported the King wants to get out of Nepal because of a mounting demand from his 6,000,000 subjects for change from the present autocratic, feudal-type government to a democratic setup. The sources minimized the influence of Communist China's invasion of Tibet on his decision.

The prime minister, Marahaja Mohun Shamsher Jang Baradur Rana, tried twice this week to obtain an audience with the King to ascertain the reasons for his projected move to India, the embassy statement said. It continued:

King Is Figurehead

An emergency session of the Nepalese parliament and Council of Elders decided unanimously this morning that the boy, a son of the crown prince, should be enthroned immediately.

Tribhuvana Bir Kikam was a boy of five when he assumed Nepal's throne on the death of his father.

The King is a figurehead. The real ruler is the prime minister, who also is the nation's commander-in-chief.

CIO To Support Telephone Strike

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP) —The CIO today pledged its full support to the communications workers, scheduled to strike at plants of the Western Electric Co. Thursday morning.

The union expects that a strike of 37,000 employes at Western Electric would hamper operations on a nationwide scale of the Bell Telephone System. Western Electric is a subsidiary of Bell.

CIO President Philip Murray, in a letter to CWA President Joseph Beirne, said the union had displayed "unusual patience in seeking to reach a fair and peaceful agreement on the issues involved," despite the company's "brazen disregard for the economic welfare of its employes and a stubborn refusal to bargain collectively in good faith."

"In the light of these facts, the CIO—and I personally—offer to you and the Communications Workers of America our full support x x x."

Beirne, in a statement tonight, said that officials "see little chance of a settlement unless the company moves away from its adamant insistence on sub-standard wage increases, and a long-term wage freeze."

Acheson Skips Soviet Party To Cast Vote

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson chose to vote today instead of attending a Soviet party.

Acheson decided to skip a Russian embassy affair, celebrating the 33rd anniversary of the Red revolution in Russia, so that he could drive out to his home town of Sandy Spring, Maryland, to cast his ballot in the nationwide elections.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

WHEN television became as much a part of the American household as plumbing, to draw a perhaps unfortunate parallel, my old mother uttered her closest approach to an ejaculation.

"My, my," she swore, "What'll they think of next?"

Well, sweetheart, Secretary of State Dean Acheson may have supplied your answer. As a lifelong Democrat, that should please you.

The report is that Dean, sitting in his Washington tower, which is made exclusively of ivory, keeps a television set at his elbow and watches every move made by his chief delegate at U. N., Warren Austin. U. N. hearings, as you know, are regularly televised.

Let Austin utter so much as a syllable that isn't in direct tune with our policy, and Dean picks up a phone that connects directly to an Austin aide at U.N. who soon imparts the message — via note — to our spokesman.

This may account for Austin's occasionally harried look. It also sets what must be a modern A.A.U. record for the second guess. There must be a lot of times when our distinguished delegate must wonder just what is his boss's policy, for it has been known to make 90 degree turns on a dime without ever scraping fenders with "in God we trust."

Acheson's remote spying was anticipated years ago by Charlie Chaplin in a film called "modern Times." Every time Chaplin tarried an extra moment in the seclusion of the gentleman's room of his factory, the glowering head of the boss —enlarged and enraged many times —would appear on a screen that served as one of the walls of the haven. And the boss would bark something bossy.

There are infinite potentials to this new use of television. With saloons like the Stork Club now televised, and others like Toots Shor's being voluptuously tempted, there may come a day when a waiter will tap you on the shoulder, when you're hardly half-way through a five-gallon tin of gin, and whisper, "The old lady's been watching you, Mac, and she says if you take one more jolt of that juice she'll brain you when you tiptoe in."

The front offices of baseball clubs, never fully satisfied with their managers, can hereafter direct their teams even when the sweaty artists are on the road, and presumed to be safely out of reach of the brass. Great spot for Ricky!

It should be a natural for sedantary generals, who will now be able to sit back at headquarters, with an open telephone wire to battalion command posts, and be able to tell the boys up front just how to persevere under fire.

We witnessed an invasion of mankind's traditional privacy, through television, not long ago on an NBC program entitled "Who Said That?" Alarming experience.

• — • — •

The clearest answer to "Who Said That?" — on that particular night — was the husband of a babe who was sweating it out on the panel of experts.

She was beating her skull a mite, trying to remember a quote that had appeared in the first edition of the Manchester Guardian the week before (I had long since surrendered, my subscription having lapsed) and seemed almost on the point of getting it when she was informed that she wasn't speaking loud enough.

Bob Trout, the brilliant M.C., didn't tell her. Nor did an engineer. Her husband did, by means of a phone call and furtive note. Later he insisted that she pull up the front of her dress a bit, and take care of the curl that had sprung loose from her coiffure.

It seems probable that eventually our home life will be televised, if not for the public then for persons in other parts of the house — or just outside it. We may all live to see the night when, having quickly doused the lights at the sound of some pest's car driving up to the stoop, he refuses to go away because — through infra-red lighting, and the 16-inch screen on the front — he can see you playing dead behind the divan.

It'll be tough, too, on kids who bid one and all a fond good-night, yawn, and then go off to their rooms for a four-hour pillow fight. Their acts, like that long-hand message to Nebuchadnezzar, will appear on the living room wall, and the old man soon will be thundering up the steps with a hairbrush.

Verily, with television there is no place to hide.

Government Buys Three Buildings Near Blair House

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Three buildings just east of Blair House, President Truman's temporary home, have been purchased by the government.

The property is at the northwest corner of Pennsylvania Avenue and Jackson Place, diagonally across the avenue from the White House, which is undergoing a complete renovation.

The General Services Administration said it bought the three connecting buildings and the land on which they stand from the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, at a price of $525,000. The structures have served as headquarters for the Carnegie Endowment, which is planning a new 12-story home adjoining the United Nations center in New York.

Although the government said nothing about the President's security in announcing the purchase, it is known that the Secret Service has been deeply concerned about the relative accessibility of Blair House from the street. Those fears were confirmed last week when two Puerto Ricans made an unsuccessful effort to shoot their way into the house and kill the President.

The government already owns about two-thirds of the land in the block, and has congressional authorization to buy more of it.

It went on and on, and several members of the congregation predicted he'd never do. Lyles was more optimistic, however. "I considered it a good trial run," he said. "The young man's services will improve as soon as he gets better terminal facilities."

Fewer Farmers

There is a startling glimmer of the future United States in a new report that has just been made public by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Prepared for an "outlook" conference held at Washington, the study draws a picture of the nation's agriculture a quarter of a century from now. It says, for example, that only one American out of eight will be living on a farm in 1975.

That is startling because it forecasts that a process begun long ago is still going forward, and at tremendous speed. As recently as 1910 the ratio of Americans living on farms was one in three. Today it is slightly under one in five. This trend has already brought great changes to the nation. If only one-eighth of the population will be living on farms 25 years from now, it is obvious that more changes will accompany this continued growth of urbanization.

The total number of Americans living on farms, the report says, stood at 32,000,000 in 1910. Today the figure is 27,000,000. The prediction for 1975 is 23,800,000, or approximately 12 per cent of the estimated total population of 190,000,000. That growth will be accompanied by greater demand for farm products, but the report predicts progress in farming methods will result in a reduction of the number of farmers needed to meet it.

Some of the consequences of this process are not difficult to see. The political power farmers have wielded since the birth of the republic has waned and will wane further. Cities will no longer be able to draw most of the manpower for their expanding businesses from the farms. Only a small minority of the population will share the benefits of a farm background. Substitutes must be sought for the values that will be denied to all but a few Americans in time to come.

What! No Snuff

Believe it or not, the Senate may be compelled to struggle through its next session without any free snuff.

The halls of Congress are being remodeled at a cost of approximately $5,000,000, only a half million less than it is costing the taxpayers to remodel the White House.

A correspondent who wandered into the capitol the other day searched in vain for indications that provision had been made for the Japanese snuff boxes, presented by the Tokyo government in the days when people went around humming tunes from "The Mikado" and thinking tenderly about the quaint little folk of Nippon.

The Japanese, who are very good indeed at thinking up delicate refinements in flower arrangement, social amenities, and torture, provided one snuff box for the Democrats and another for the Republicans. Thus no senator ever was compelled to go snuffless to avoid contamination.

It is true the practice of taking snuff reached its peak back in the 18th Century—when practically everybody who was anybody chewed it or rubbed it into his gums or just inhaled it—and has declined since. But more perfumes are available for scenting snuff today than there were then. The snuff is still made, people still use it. And some senators, the correspondent insists, swear that it is a better treatment for colds than anti-histamine tablets.

How To Survive

A man named Richard Gerstell, who is a "consultant" to the United States Civil Defense Office, has written a book which promises to become a best seller. The title: "How to Survive an Atomic Bomb."

The central theme is that the average citizen has an excellent chance of surviving an atomic blast in a large city, even if he is in the inner critical area directly under the blast. It lays to rest such fallacious ideas—which have taken on the guise of fact—as those which claim that there is no defense against the bomb, that one bomb can wipe out a city, and that atomic rays kill everything they touch.

There is a complete lack of pretension and scare talk in this little volume. Civil defense is a term which is widely misunderstood. Most persons interpret the phrase to mean the action-someone-will-take-to-protect-me. This is the opposite pole from the real meaning.

What civil defense really encompasses is the knowledge and moves to make in taking care of one's self in an emergency. This book contains a series of simple lessons in doing just that.

Misplaced Trust

Those who have the opportunity to sample the sentiment of citizens in all parts of the nation report that the word which best describes it is apprehension. They are fearful of the future.

They go to the stores to buy articles the family needs and find there has been a price increase or two since they last purchased. They have not been especially hard hit by the Korean war but are fearful of continued warfare and they resent the fact that blunders in Washington created a situation which made the Korean fighting necessary.

Most of all they are uneasy watching the American financial and economic structure ascending dizzily. Fear is the ruling feeling of the hour, fear of things to come. Fear is caused by a feeling of helplessness. The government has taken so much power the individual feels he can do nothing about it. He fears that even his own private life may soon be invaded.

What a travesty that is on the claims of the politicians who, so short a time ago, were going to give everybody freedom from fear.

The Tambourine Retired

The tambourine, the cornet and the big bass drum have been the "ensemble" of many a valiant group of the Salvation Army. The tambourine, classed by Webster's dictionary as a musical instrument, was more functional than that with the salvationists.

It was used as an offering plate—with a metallic sound every time the tambourine was jingled. And wherever the undaunted salvationists went in search of funds, the sound of the tambourines could be heard.

But the old order is passing. The tambourine has been retired by the army—after 70 years of good and faithful service.

In place of the tambourine is a copyrighted plastic box in the form of the Salvation Army shield. It has a slot for contributions, and has printed across the face of it "Salvation Army."

So, the old timers will be hanging up the tambourines for a less colorful if perhaps more efficient collection medium. But the cornet and the big bass drum will continue to function as usual.

Punch Drunk Boxers

BOXING often is advocated as a means of becoming skillful in the art of self-defense. Many use it as an offensive weapon to overcome an opponent. It is no wonder that so many who make prize-fighting a profession end up punch drunk.

Some doubt that boxing can be called a sport. Most of the strength and endurance attributed to it comes from the training program required to prepare for the beating in the ring. Furthermore, it is far down on the list of methods for developing character, determination, and personality. In football, for example, the touchdown is the goal; in boxing, it is the knockout. Because the purpose is to strike the opponent on the head until he takes the count, the sport cannot but rekindle certain primitive instincts in the participants and spectators. Recent deaths in the ring have brought much unfavorable publicity.

Head injury is the most dangerous aspect of prizefighting. The brain can be damaged even without a skull fracture or knockout. A sudden blow often is accompanied by pin-point hemorrhages and the more blows, the greater the injury. This type of mauling is encountered by the experienced and inexperienced boxer and it has been said that half of those who participate long enough are left with permanent brain damage.

The destruction of a small amount of nerve tissue does not cause paralysis or behavior disturbances but when the damage is more severe or certain nerve centers are affected, there is a marked influence on delicate coordination, memory, speech, self-control, and the power of reasoning. The punch drunk have suffered repeated episodes of this nature, with so many hemorrhages scattered through the brain that the impairment is permanent. Loss of mental power and bodily control follow — a terrible price to pay for shortlived glory.

Trainers who refuse to realize the dangers associated with boxing often are responsible for spoiling the life of aspirants to the title. They are too anxious to find a winner. They do not stress the safety precautions and may fail to provide the essential equipment and facilities. In professional or high grade amateur training centers, special attention is paid to safety and health. But the high school lad is immature and needs close supervision and more than the average amount of protection. These youngsters can be taught the art of self-defense, without inflicting too much injury or hurting themselves, by utilizing helmets and larger gloves. Such safeguards will not create "sissies" or soften the youth of tomorrow. It is a matter of using commonsense at a vulnerable age. The problem is so vital that authorities have adopted resolutions disapproving of boxing as an inter-school activity.

The brain is not the only part that can be injured. The ears and nose suffer, as well as the hands. The knuckles often are contused and soft swellings may appear in this region caused by the formation of a bursa similar to those that develop in the shoulder: They are painful and disabling but treatment of boxer's bursitis often brings complete recovery.

TOMORROW: Protection against primary tuberculosis with BCG.

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Now that the elections are over, President Truman is considering important Cabinet changes. He will also be faced with important vacancies on the Supreme Court. As a result, he is contemplating the most sensational shift he has made since he eased out various Roosevelt Cabinet members right after FDR's death. The double-play between the Cabinet and the Supreme Court involves:

1. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who will resign.

2. Chief Justice Fred Vinson, scheduled to take Acheson's place.

3. Justice Felix Frankfurter, who will resign. Acheson will then be appointed to his Supreme Court seat.

4. Justice William O. Douglas, who expects to resign—probably to replace General Eisenhower as President of Columbia University.

5. Attorney General Howard McGrath, who will be appointed to the Supreme Court.

6. Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, who will probably resign. Discussed as his successor are New York Attorney Morris Ernst and Stuart Symington.

7. Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews, who will be made ambassador to Ireland. George Killion, head of the American President Lines, will take his place.

While these switches will not occur at once, the most important—the exit of Dean Acheson—will probably take place within 60 days.

Acheson and Vinson

Truman is more fond of Acheson personally than of anyone else in the Cabinet—except Secretary Marshall. He has told friends that he believes history will show Acheson to be one of our greatest secretaries of state. However, he also fears that Acheson, because of his defense of Alger Hiss, will never be able to regain public confidence. Furthermore, Acheson, physically exhausted, has wanted to resign.

Meanwhile, Acheson's old professor at the Harvard Law School, Felix Frankfurter, has been toying with the idea of stepping down from the Supreme Court, and may time his resignation with Acheson's so the latter can be appointed to his seat.

Also, though a closely guarded secret, Chief Justice Vinson has been briefed at least once a week on foreign policy. He is invited to the White House frequently, and Truman has even been asking distinguished foreign visitors to confer with Vinson.

The fact that the President picked Vinson to go to Moscow in October, 1948, was no accident. He has long had the greatest respect and affection for the Chief Justice. And though he called off the Vinson mission to Moscow, Truman has privately expressed regret that he did so.

Howard McGrath, now attorney general, is scheduled to be appointed to the Vinson court vacancy, though not necessarily to the chief justiceship. It is more likely that Justice Hugo Black will receive this honor.

Meanwhile, Justice Douglas has been sounded out by Columbia University about succeeding Eisenhower. In fact, while Ike was in Washington conferring with Truman, Douglas was in New York conferring with certain Columbia trustees. Douglas was graduated from the Columbia Law School and would be a natural to replace Ike.

Manchurian Crisis

A backstage controversy had been taking place between Washington and Tokyo for some time prior to Chinese intervention in Korea as to how far American troops should go toward the Manchurian border.

Secretary of State Acheson had argued that the U. S. and U. N. troops must stop before they got near the hydroelectric projects along the Yalu river, which supply the power for much of Manchuria. One of these, the Suiho dam, is among the largest in the world, and generates three-quarters as much power as Boulder dam. There are seven of these dams in North Korea, and the State Department warned that if we approach this area, the Chinese would react in about the same way as the people of Los Angeles if a Mexican army should approach Boulder dam, which supplies much of their water.

Therefore, the State Department long ago urged that U. N. troops stop 40 miles this side of the Manchurian border. The Joint Chiefs of Staff heartily concurred in this, and this was one of the main points discussed with General MacArthur at Wake Island. At that time MacArthur agreed.

However, when he reached the 40-mile neutrality belt, he wired Washington for permission to send South Korean troops beyond to the Manchurian border. He said that they were to go on mopping-up missions and as military police to maintain order.

However, MacArthur's intelligence was faulty and the South Korean troops found themselves badly outnumbered. When they got into trouble, MacArthur wired Washington for permission to send U. S. troops to rescue them.

While the Joint Chiefs of Staff didn't like this, they found it difficult to overrule the commander in the field, and wired permission.

Russo-Chinese Deal

It is believed that the Kremlin used this concentration of U. S. troops near Manchurian dams as one of its main arguments to bring Chinese Communists into the war, though undoubtedly there were other factors. These probably were:

1. Pledge of Russian air support. Hitherto in the Korean war no Russian pilots have been in combat and only a few Russian planes. In the last week, Russian planes have appeared from Manchuria.

2. A deal whereby China takes over Tibet, and later India, in return for intervention in Korea.

3. A deal whereby China takes over French Indo-China when and if the French are driven out, as now seems likely.

These were some of the things the State department feared might happen if we tangled with China over Formosa; the reason Truman announced publicly that the American fleet would be withdrawn from Chinese waters when the situation was more stable; and why we have used dancing-on-eggs diplomacy in our relations with the Chinese government.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

AS these words are written, the country awaits the outcome of the election. Almost unperceived, however, what is going on in Korea has suddenly become immeasurably more important than what has happened at the polls. The highest American policy-makers are now seriously discussing the pros and cons of immediate, all-out national mobilization. The last-minute intervention of the Chinese Communists has in fact created a grave danger that the Korean war will turn into a World War.

The situation is so confused that the known facts are worth summarizing. At the moment when the North Korean armies were in the last stage of disintegration, Chinese troops appeared in Korea, under the guise of "Peace Preservation Corps." These "Peace Preservation Corps" were formed from the crack Fourth Route Army of Gen. Lin Piao, redeployed for this purpose from the Yangtsze Valley region to Manchuria.

By now, one full Chinese division plus a number of independent regiments and even battalions, amounting in all to an estimated 25,000 men, are in action in Korea. Across the Yalu River, much larger Chinese forces are waiting to be sent into battle. As General MacArthur clearly implied in his recent statement, further reinforcement of the Chinese in Korea cannot be passively tolerated.

Danger of War

If many more Chinese come in, the only possible response will be to order intensive air attacks on the enemy's whole rear area, beyond the Chinese border. Thus the immediate danger of the new situation is the danger of war, declared or undeclared, with Communist China.

But this is by no means all. As experience in Korea has shown, air attacks will not win the battle. If really important Chinese forces are sent into Korea, the immediate result will be to tie down there almost the whole of the existing American Army. And this of course is the real aim and the greatest danger of the sudden Chinese intervention.

In plain language, with most of America's available divisions committed indefinitely in Korea, the way will be open for all sorts of Kremlin adventures elsewhere. What is at stake is not Korea, but Iran and all the Middle East, Berlin and Yugoslavia and the rest of Europe. What has happened in Korea vastly increases the betting on a new Kremlin onslaught against one or more of the world's numerous, vital soft spots some time during the next six months.

The reasons for this conclusion are important. First, there is very little doubt that the Kremlin, rather than Peking, has been the real prime mover in this affair. It is now well established that Mao Tse-tung's government resisted pressure to send Chinese troops into Korea for a considerable period. There are good reasons to believe that Molotov had to go to Peking in person to secure obedience from the Chinese. There are also reasons to believe that the Chinese had to be paid off by restoration of their local control in Manchuria, which has till now been a Russian province in all but name. If the Kremlin was the prime mover, Kremlin interests must have been the dominant considerations.

Timing of Move

Second, there is also the timing of the Chinese move. In July or August, very little aid given the North Koreans would have broken our grip on Korea. In September, preventive occupation of the region north of the 38th Parallel would have paralyzed the United Nations. Instead, the move was delayed until the North Korean army had been virtually destroyed, and the certain result would be armed conflict between Chinese and Americans.

This was why one of these correspondents, writing from Tokyo, recently reported the unanimous belief of the experts that the Chinese would not enter North Korea unless the Kremlin "positively and actively" desired to risk a general war. Because the experts also believed the Kremlin had no such desire, the Chinese intervention took the American policy-makers utterly by surprise. And this in turn is why the gravity of the situation has not yet been publicly admitted, and why no final policy decisions have as yet been publicly announced.

The fact of a risk of general war still remains. The fact of the immense danger of most of the available American divisions being tied down in Korea also still remains. At the moment, while mobilization is being discussed, there is great reluctance to resort to it, because of the absolute panic it would cause in Europe. At the moment, while a showdown with Moscow is being discussed, there is great reluctance to move for it, because of our own terrible weakness except in atomic weapons. But if the new crisis in Korea swells and deepens, the remorseless logic of events will certainly put the arguments for national mobilization in a new light, and may have results even graver and more far reaching.

120,000,000 Ton Steel Capacity Is Questioned

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 — Everybody would like to have more steel at this time—but will the demand continue, and is there a justification for a 120,000,000-ton annual capacity?

This very question has been tackled openly for the first time by the Secretary of Commerce, Charles Sawyer, who raises the pertinent issue as to when the extra capacity is needed.

Mr. Sawyer revealed that the nation can have a 120,000,000-ton capacity by 1954 and 110,000,000-ton by 1952 if the present commitment for expansion by 4,000,000 extra tonnage annually is maintained. On this all-important problem, which directly or indirectly affects defense production as well as manufacturing in many lines of business, the Secretary disclosed quite informally the crux of the difficulty as he responded to a question-and-answer interview in "U. S. News & World Report," copyrighted by that weekly newsmagazine. He said:

"I want to make it very clear that I am on the side of those who believe strongly that we should have an increase in steel capacity. As a matter of fact, the day William Henry Harrison was sworn in as administrator of the National Production Authority, I had called in the steel people and asked them to give me a statement as to what they were prepared to do in the way of increasing their steel capacity. As a result of that, they did give me a commitment of 9,400,000 tons by the end of 1952.

Don't Consider Time

"There's been some comment that that wasn't enough. It is not enough for the future. However, some people fail to take into consideration an important element—the element of time. They say we ought to have a capacity of 120,000,000 tons, but they don't say 'when.'

"It's proper to point out that if this increase in capacity of over 4,000,000 tons a year—and I think it will be even greater than indicated—if that's maintained, in five years we'll have 120,000,000 tons' capacity. In other words, we're to have 110,000,000 by the end of 1952. So for those who say we must have 120,000,000, the question is when? Do you want us to have 120,000,000 at the end of 1952 or do you want it at the end of 1954? If we're to get 120,000,000 at the end of 1952, we must face the problem, first, as to what disruption will occur to our present process, and also whether, if we have that capacity, we will have an equal supply of manganese or ore boats—other things that go into the final process of making steel. I don't want the Commerce Department to be under any imputation of trying to hold down capacity when our desire is exactly the opposite."

The dilemma, to be sure, isn't a bit different than it has been all along whenever the question of expansion of steel capacity has been raised by the government. How much steel shall be used up in making new plants and how much manpower can be subtracted from regular requirements in order to build the expanding plants? It's a case of not being able to have the cake and eat it, too.

Much more fundamental is the question of the impact on the economy for years to come. If a 120,000,000-ton capacity is to be the normal maximum instead of 90,000,000, as it was until recent years, then what happens when capacity is idle and yet interest and other charges must be met on sums borrowed to pay the prevailing high costs of construction? To build a plant today costs ever so much more than it did a decade ago. Yet the price of steel cannot be brought down materially if demand falls because there must be some way to cover the costs of the expanded plants.

Issues Brushed Aside

The issues raised by idle capacity are brushed aside by some government officials as emanating from fear of recession—as if American producers must become pollyannas and never think about the possibility of a drop in steel capacity. Unfortunately, those with a responsibility to creditors who have furnished borrowed money for bond issues or to stockholders for their equity money want to know that there is some solicitude about building excess capacity which in some future time will become idle.

How long will the war emergency last? How long will the inflation be maintained? And how long will automobile production be unrestricted? All these questions, if answered, could have a bearing on whether America in some years will see its steel plants with a demand of only 72,000,000 tons and an idle capacity of 48,000,000 tons. That's about a 60 per cent operating ratio—which would be far below the break-even point for many companies.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Suppose It's Just The Opposite?

I READ A BOOK review by Professor Samuel Flagg Bemis, of Yale, on "America's Second Crusade" by William Henry Chamberlin. The review told me little enough about Mr. Chamberlin's book but plenty about Professor Bemis's ideas.

William Henry Chamberlin is one of the few American authentic experts on Russian affairs and a book by him on World War II can be important. He is an interesting writer and linguist with a profound knowledge of Slavic people. I hope to read it soon.

However, at this point, I should like to analyze a statement by Professor Bemis in his review. He said:

". . .Yet one thing ought to be evident to all of us: by our victory over Germany and Japan, no matter what our folly in losing the peace, we have at least survived to confront the second even greater menace of another totalitarian power. This, it seems, is an obvious truism — and yet, in certain quarters, it would also seem that it cannot be stressed too often. We might not stand vis a vis the Soviets today if President Roosevelt had not entertained a conviction that action against the Axis was necessary."

I am not quite sure that I understand the learned professor rightly. Does he mean that we entered World War II, expended our wealth and the lives of our sons, so that we should survive to fight World War III? Does he mean that we gave Soviet Russia $11,000,000,000 under lend-lease so that the Russians could fight us better?

Suppose it had been just the opposite! Suppose the United States had stood by while Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia fought each other to a fare-thee-well, would we have been any worse off than we are today?

Note Professor Bemis's use of words:

". . .We have at least survived to confront the second even greater menace of another totalitarian power. . ."

Is it not a function of government to evaluate enemies, their strength, their potentialities? In five years, since 1945, Soviet Russia has become, to use the professor's words, an "even greater menace" than Germany and Japan.

Now, obviously Soviet Russia could not have achieved such an advantageous position in five years. The preparation for and development of such a position takes decades. In fact, it has taken Russia 30 years of constant preparation at great and even tragic human sacrifice.

Therefore, what Professor Bemis admits to be true is logically more convicting than the indictment for which he criticizes William Henry Chamberlin, whose position, in fine, is that the United States should have stayed out of World War II.

What Professor Bemis seems to say, if his language means anything, is that the greater menace to the United States is Soviet Russia and that it was necessary for this country to fight Germany and Japan, and to defeat them, with the aid of Soviet Russia, in order that we might survive in a war with Soviet Russia.

You try to make sense out of that. I have tried for three weeks, when first I saw this in print, and I have been puzzled to discover precisely how anyone's thinking can get itself into such shape.

But if one can think that way, other things fall into shape. For instance, it becomes all right to let Russia conquer China because when we settle with Russia, we shall automatically settle with China. Meanwhile, more than 26,000 Americans are casualties in Korea — and how many more we do not know. And we still have French Indo-China before us.

Also, we have found in North Korea evidence that wherever the Russians, go, they build an industrial base for military purposes. We shall discover, if we ever get into Manchuria, that that area has been industrialized for war potentials, aimed at the United States.

Of course, had the United States had the wisdom no later than 1943, at Teheran, to insist on the Cairo declaration, which protected Nationalist China, those war potentials aimed at the United States would not be situated in Korea and Manchuria.

Perhaps Professor Bemis feels that if we survive every stupidity, we shall survive that one, too. But to suggest that we fought Hitler and Japan with the aspiration of surviving to fight Stalin—that is truly a marvelous policy. Nobody accused Roosevelt of that before — not even Pegler!

APMan Trapped Wit Marines Tes Of Ordeal

The following dispatch was ga to a courier who penetrated the Cese lines, reached Hamhung, and tohoned the dispatch to Wonsan ohe east coast. It was then radioed tTokyo.

By FRANK NOEL

TH THE U. S. MARINES IN KEA — (Delayed)—(AP)—United Sts Marines are fighting their tonest battle of the Korean war in river canyon, surrounded by 2,0-foot mountain peaks.

ld they are giving Chinese Commists troops a taste of Marine erance in a situation that looks b now and probably will get vse.

asualties are heavy on both sides a furious exchange of gunfire m ridge to ridge.

The ranks of stretcher bearers e becoming dangerously thin as g-tired troops help the wounded own almost perpendicular cliffs 16 iles south of Changjin.

The fighting has raged all day oday virtually around the clock. There were lulls during the night but for 16 hours the Marines have been trading punches with the Chinese without stopping.

Twelve jelly fire bombs (napalm) used to search out well dug-in Chinese gun emplacements set the surrounding mountains on fire.

Mortars — 28 of them — exploded less than 200 yards from the center of Col. Homer I. Litzenberg's regiment last night.

Mortar and artillery fire is going on without a halt. The Marine fire apparently is accurate. From time to time they have gotten the range on Chinese positions and the guns have been silenced. American planes are overhead frequently.

The Chinese usually quit firing during an air strike.

Last night four enemy T-34 tanks were knocked out. Some bore Chinese numerals and some were North Korean.

During the early morning hours today an enemy tank which needed a grease job squeaked up close to the regimental command post.

Staff Sgt. C. B. Van Dette, Seattle, Wash., was just returning to the command post after repairing some telephone wires.

He mistook it for an American tank. He yelled to the driver to turn off the headlights.

Just then a thundering crescendo of 3.5 bazookas and 75 millimeter recoilless shells began trying to halt the wandering monster. It was only about 50 yards from the command post before the bazooka teams knocked it out.

The First Battalion, commanded by Col. Raymond G. Davis, Athens, Ga., who holds the Navy Cross for gallantry, stood like a rock against the first Chinese attacks this morning. Heavy losses were inflicted on the Chinese.

The spearheading Third Battalion has borne the brunt of the fight.

The Seventh Regiment—in combat on this front for 12 days—had all three of its battalions unable to move as a result of heavy enemy mortar and artillery fire for some time.

Air strikes have been going on all through the daylight hours but the enemy continues to lob in artillery and big mortar shells.

One hospital jeep was blown off the road by grenade droppers who clung to a cliff 200 feet high directly over the road.

Four other vehicles were knocked out before the Marines could spot the grenade men. Then they scaled the cliff and killed the enemy.

(In a personal note at the end of the dispatch Noel wrote "this is all I have time for. Since I started about 30 shells have fallen within 200 yards and I am taking cover.").

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

Consulting Psychologist

While emotionally mature people usually get on better than immature ones, a childish desire for power coupled with a keen "brain" may drive a man to achieve outstanding wealth and success without having outgrown basically kindergarten attitudes like petty jealousy or the wish to be flattered.

May romance develop into friendship?

Answer: In the best sense, this should be what happens in successful marriage since enduring married love is friendship plus physical attraction. But because when romance does not lead to marriage, one person is apt to feel that he or she has been "rejected" by the other, and resent it, former sweethearts more frequently end as enemies than as friends. The exceptions are the not too common cases in which two people have realized that they were unsuited to each other from a matrimonial standpoint and yet still have much in common.

Can "important" people be emotionally childish?

Answer: Of course. The late Dr. Frankwood E. Williams used to say that a man may have intelligence enough to be a college president yet still have the emotions of a three-year-old child and use his position to gratify them.

Do day nurseries cause behavior problems?

Answer: Not to any notable degree, says Netta Glass of Maudsley Hospital, London. Comparison of two "matched" groups of children from two to five years old from the standpoint of their sleeping, eating and elimination habits showed no marked superiority of children brought up at home by their mothers over those whose mothers had to leave them in a nursery all day because they went out to work. The statement may console mothers who are in the latter situation, but at so early an age such prolonged separation is far from ideal.

This booby-trap situation has thered Dr. LeVan Griffis, too, and 's done something about it. It's automatic shower valve to keep ur shower at the same tempera- re regardless of what anyone else the house does with the water pply.

Dr. Griffis is chairman of the echanical department of the Ar- our Research Foundation of Illi- ois Institute of Technology. The lve was developed with the co- erative skills of experts in mech- ical engineering and heat trans- r.

There is only one shower handle worry about, with a thermostat at can be set for the temperature u want. A thermostatic bellows, milar to that in an automobile diator, controls the relative nounts of hot and cold water. It tomatically steps up the flow of t or cold water whenever the essure drops because someone else arts using either hot or cold ter. A valve screw enables you to e-set it for the desired temper- ure.

Another boon for modern living still under development. This is eumatic tools that won't recoil. It vibration and recoil that give the immies to the man operating a eumatic drill used to smash up vement, for example. And it is rtly the vibration that blasts the ighborhoor with noise.

There is a bad recoil because only me parts of the drill vibrate, and e shock travels in the opposite rection, up the handle.

The approach here, Dr. Griffis plains, is to produce forces that pose and dampen the vibrations, oducing more of a balance. When e part moves, another will move ainst it, counteracting the shock motion.

Don't be caught off guard when someone snaps a casual picture of you! Learn this Powers Girl pose.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

CASUAL poses look easy. But as a model will tell you, sitting gracefully on a conventional chair is a cinch compared to perching prettily on a fence rail.

If you took some outdoor snapshots on your vacation, you may have discovered this fact yourself. When the pictures were taken, you probably thought you looked like the lithe, outdoor girl seated atop some old stone wall—or perhaps it was the finished prints. What a disappointment it was to find your figure more closely resembled a bumpy sack—no waistline and all knees.

Powers Model Pose

Learn the Powers Girl routine for posing on all types of precarious perches, and your picture album from now on will be something you'll be proud to show. Furthermore, you'll be admired as a picture of grace at any party, no matter where crowded conditions force you to light. The first big secret lies in the realization that there's nothing floppy or unstudied about such apparently casual poses. To be effective they must be as carefully tailored as your casual clothes.

The second big secret is the trick of sitting sidewise so that your knees are out of the center of focus) and putting all your weight on the hip and thigh that is away from the camera in order to prevent any bulges from weight pressure in the leg nearest the camera. Let me break it down for you:

Assume that you are going to have your picture taken posing on your porch railing.

1. Turn your entire body in profile to the rail. (Let's say it's your left side that you turned to the rail.) 2. Raise your left thigh until it finds a firm seat along the rail from hip to knee.

3. Hook the tip-toe of the left foot just below the calf of the right leg and pull both legs back as far as they will reach comfortably. If the right foot touches the floor, rest the weight of the legs on the inside of the big toe. Otherwise, point the toe toward the floor.

A Picture To Treasure

4. Square your shoulders toward the camera. 5. Pull your waist up hard out of your hips. 6. Hold your back erect.

7. Place the left hand on your left knee and hook your right thumb in your belt.

If you tilt the top of your head a fraction to the left, look at the birdie and smile, what a thrill you will have, the next time you see pictures that were snapped of you while posing "casually."

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

MY FIRST excrusive! And this excrusive IS spelled that way . . . See explanation below! You see, West Coast construction tycoon Henry Kaiser may invade Maryland and West Virginia in the aluminum business . . . Top government officials have recently been besieged by the Aluminum Company of America, the Reynolds Company, Kaiser and others too numerous to mention . . . They all want a plant at Halethorpe, Maryland, which is now used by the Government Printing Office as a store room.

AUSTINE

Henry Kaiser seems to be the favorite in the race to grab the plant . . . and to start making "EXCRUSIONS"!!

While hardly an industrial genius, I will now attempt to describe "excrusions" . . . like a giant toothpaste tube they put molten metal through a press and squeeze it out into sheets. . . . These sheets are just dandy for cutting into airplane wings, among other things.

Kaiser also hankers after another favor . . . Wants to build a steam plant in West Virginia so he can make power and use the power to make even more aluminum.

The Hostess With the Mostess On the Ball, as far as Senator Taft is concerned, is his own dear wife, Martha . . . He couldn't entertain constituents, win votes, or even enjoy life if she weren't in there punching, smiling and egging him on . . . Chief reason why Taft's keeping so quiet about his presidential aspirations in '52, say his confidantes, is Martha's poor health . . . But besides his wife's illness, he's got money troubles . . . Although he's been accused otherwise, Taft is scraping the bottom of the barrel for campaign funds . . . Big shot Republicans apparently talk a lot about Taft but they're slow on the donations . . . Union leaders help out THEIR candidates much more generously.

•—•—•

Speaking of unions, I see by the papers where non-union bullfighters in Mexico City have been hired to break a matadors' strike . . . Two weeks ago the strike had shut down the world's largest bull ring.

Margaret Truman and Marvin Braverman making the rounds of N. Y.'s cozy spots! Always seem to enjoy each other's company.

The witty, young attorney with the quizzical eyebrows and crew cut took a seat, is was announced the other day, as a director of the National Travelers Aid Society.

By the way, bet you didn't know that the society dates back to the days of the California Gold Rush.

In 1851 a Missourian left a generous slice of his estate in trust to aid travelers . . . He had known himself what it was like to reach the Golden West without a friend.

Last year over two million people sought help from Travelers Aid!

The organization which started (where else but in America) now serves people all over the world.

Here they maintain volunteer interpreters to translate the troubles of the many foreigners.

Besides the usual kids who run away from home, migratory workers milling around, the wives who leave husbands, Travelers Aid runs up against cases which would be amusing if they weren't so tragic.

The other day for instance, one old gentleman, almost an invalid, just popped on a train in Iowa and headed for Washington . . . Stranded and broke shortly after his arrival, he excused his hasty journey with the remark that he "Just got plum fed up with Ioway."

Mentally-disturbed women often come to town believing they're going to visit at the White House with Harry Truman, "who has been writing me love letters ever since he was a boy.". . . They have to be cared for until friends or relatives can be located and notified.

So it goes . . .

Every day telephone calls come in from people who still think the Travelers Aid Society is a travel agency . . . Which can plan a trip for them, all expenses paid, of course.

I hear Ernest Hemingway zizzling . . . His best seller has now been parodied in a New Yorker piece called "Across the Street and Into the Grill."

"I won't be competition for Hemingway," says handsome but modest bachelor-about-town Col. Winant Johnston . . . He has been an attraction in Capital salons for more seasons than he cares to remember . . . Now he has surprised his many admirers by coming out with a tender and sensitive first novel entitled "These Innocents". . . written in derision of the modern novel.

"I detest dirty books," he states. "Had a tough time trying to sell this one because it wasn't filled with words kids write on the backs of fences."

The 36 illustrations in the book were printed from wood and linoleum cuts Col. Johnston created in France . . . Just before he escaped from France with Hitler pounding on the back door, all his luggage and personal belongings, including his original wood cuts, were stolen . . . Under his arm he had his manuscript and the first impressions of the cuts . . . These were reproduced for "These Innocents."

Col. Johnston presently writes another "family" story which he hopes to have ready for publication soon.

Has been on an egg diet for the past month and lost 20 pounds . . . Has two eggs (poached or boiled, but NEVER FRIED) for breakfast, noon and dinner, along with a salad or green vegetable.

Lt. W. C. Menges Is Home From Korean Battlefront

A local Marine veteran of both Iwo Jima and Seoul says that the intensity of fighting in both engagements is comparable.

The comparison is made by Lt. Billy C. Menges, son of City Police Officer and Mrs. Charles D. Menges, 47 Lamont Street, who Sunday returned from combat duty in Korea.

Lt. Menges left here July 29 for Camp Lejeune, N. C., with Cumberland's Marine Reserve Company and is the first non-wounded serviceman to return to the Queen City from the Asiatic fighting.

Streets Sandbagged

Lt. Menges, who served three years in the Marine Corps during World War II, achieved recognition for his deeds in combat on the volcanic ashes of Iwo Jima, winning the Bronze Star for bravery in action.

Lt. Menges, however, said the North Korean-concentrated street blockades and house fortifications made the battle for the capital of Korea as bloody and terrible as the fight for Iwo Jima.

Every street was sandbagged by the Reds and progress in Seoul was made on a house-to-house basis by the First and Fifth Marine Regiments of the First Marine Division, assisted on the flank by the Army's Seventh Division.

As a result, he said, it was necessary to practically level the city in order to "smoke" the North Koreans from their hiding places.

Lt. Menges was with a seven-man forward observer team for artillery and he said that opposition between Inchon to three miles of Seoul was devoted to rear-guard action on the part of the North Koreans.

Last Ditch Stand

Most of the Red troops, he said, were dispatched to Seoul for a last ditch stand.

"They wanted to make it a Stalingrad, but they failed," he said.

After the capture of Seoul, he happened to run into a fellow Cumberland Marine reservist, Sgt. Joseph Montelone, of 401 Springdale Street, who was with the Second Battalion, Seventh Regiment.

It was Sgt. Montelone who related the details of the death of eighteen-year-old Pfc. Frank B. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Thompson, 22 Elder Street, who left with them on July 29 with the local company.

Sgt. Montelone said Pfc. Thompson was hit by a mortar shell on September 27 and died at 1 a.m. the following day in an area of heavy fire while being given blood plasma.

The sergeant also told Lt. Menges of the wounding of Pfc. Thompson's lifelong buddy, who also left here with the unit, on the following day. He was Pfc. Paul W. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kennedy, of 21 Offutt Street.

Nearly 20 members of the local unit, among them Pfc. William H. Wagus, Route 4; Pfc. Richard L. Ward, Cresaptown; Cpl. James P. Scott, 810 Stewart Avenue; Sgt. Charles Cox, (who served with Lt. Menges in the artillery) and Sgt. J. McDonald, both of this city, were with the First Division when it landed.

Going To Officer School

After pushing north of Seoul 12 miles, the First Division was relieved by the First Cavalry Division and the Marines went back to Inchon.

They would have been in another invasion but for the swift advance of the ROKs in Wonsan. The entire First Marines were loaded aboard ship, sailed to Pusan and then up the north coast to Wonsan which they were supposed to invade. But the South Koreans beat them there first, and American lives were saved.

From Wonsan air field, Lt. Menges was sent by service transport back to the United States, leaving there on October 29, and arriving in Cumberland Sunday enroute to an officers school at Quantico, Va., Marine Base.

Cells of human lungs, if spread out flat, would cover an area of 480 square feet

9 Men Are Inducted Into Armed Forces

Nine young men left here Monday for Martinsburg, W. Va., for induction into the armed forces. Twenty-five others were given physical examinations.

Reporting for Army duty were Albert J. Snyder, Francis D. Nehring, Francis M. Richard, Robert L. Dolly, Kermit F. England and Irvin S. Manges, all of Cumberland.

Leonard L. Rice and Paul J. Kimble, Flintstone, and Robert H. Price, Little Orleans. All were registered with Board No 27.

Milestone in a Career!

We see it happen over and over again—and it's one of the greatest satisfactions we enjoy in this happy business of selling Cadillac cars.

It's when a man comes into possession of his first Cadillac—and we see the wonderful things it does for him.

We see his happiness as he places his order—not as the result of a sudden inspiration, but because he has gradually reached the conclusion that he has earned the right to enjoy the unquestioned best.

And then we see him on that happy day when his car is available for delivery—and he settles himself so proudly behind the wheel.

He's a little quizzical, we sometimes note. Could it be, he wonders, that he has been anticipating a bit too much?

And then he's out in the street—headed for home the long way 'round.

Those are thrilling days that follow.

There's the first long ride with the family . . . the first trip to the office . . . and the time he learns, in an emergency, that his car is worth its whole price in safety alone.

And then, almost before he knows it, the odometer registers a thousand miles—and he's back to tell us all about it. And, perhaps, to grumble a little bit at giving it up—even for a little while!

Yes, it's a priceless privilege to watch all this. Makes a man feel that he's doing good.

County Suffers 35 Casualties In Korean War

After less than five months of the Korean War, Allegany county's casualty list stands at 35 men.

Newspaper and Department of Defense statistics kept on casualties since the outbreak of hostilities June 25 show that eight countians are dead, 21 have been wounded and six are missing in action. Four men were listed as fatally hurt.

The casualty total is reached by counting each individual only once. In some cases, the same man's name appeared first as wounded and then as killed, but such duplic tions are listed as only one casualty. The total also omits consideration of men who were reported missing but later turned up safe.

Cumberland's list includes two killed, two fatally wounded and 14 wounded, one twice. There are no men reported missing in action. The local total is included in the county figures.

Statistics on Garrett county reveal that three men have been killed. Nine were wounded and four are missing. The fatalities were from the Vindex area.

Most of the statistics are based on reports from relatives, since the armed forces are slow to give out national figures on dead, wounded, missing and prisoners in the Korean fighting. Department of Defense casualty lists frequently are misleading because they identify a soldier by the address of his next to kin rather than by the town in which he resided.

Latest figures available show American casualties in Korea total 16,701.

Schedule Issued For New Bus Line

The new schedule of runs by the Metropolitan Trailways, which replaced Potomac Coach Lines, was issued yesterday. Potomac Lines gave up its franchise recently.

R. L. Emery, Jr., general manager and chairman of the board of Metropolitan, said the schedule is exactly the same as the Potomac timetable. Emery added that his inter-state runs, operated before the PSC granted his local intra-state permit, have been combined with the new schedule.

Buses meet all shifts at the Celanese plant, Emery said.

Here is the Metropolitan schedule:

5:55 a. m., leave Oldtown for Celanese.

7:20 a. m., leave Cumberland for Paw Paw, W. Va.

9:30 a. m., leave Cumberland for Paw Paw, Berkeley Springs, Martinsburg, Newton D. Baker Veterans Center, Charles Town, Leesburg, Va., and Washington, D. C.

1:05 p. m., Cumberland to Oldtown.

3:20 p. m. Cumberland to Oldtown.

5:10 p. m., Cumberland to Paw Paw.

9:05 p. m., Cumberland to Oldtown.

11:20 p. m., Cumberland to Oldtown.

Housing Meeting Planned Thursday

The Mayor and Council will meet with the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission and the Housing Authority Thursday at 10 a. 1. in City Hall.

It is presumed that planning work for the first phase of the Cumberland housing project will be appoved. Start of the project would be construction of 17 apartment buildings on seven acres of land in South Cumberland. However, the plans must first be approved by the PHA office in Philadelphia, recommended to the PHA office in Washington and then approved by President Truman.

The local project is designed to provide housing for 300 families.

U. N. Is To Be Forum Topic

Students at the annual Allegany County High School Forum will discuss "Peace, the United Nations and You," it has been announced.

The topic will be studied in ten high schools in the county prior to the forum. Discussions are scheduled for classrooms, clubs, in assembly programs and inter-school forums.

The subject was selected and plans laid at a recent meeting at the Board of Education office. Specifically considered was the desirability and importance of sending a number of students to the United Nations at Lake Success. The budget of sponsoring organization now provides funds for only two from the county.

The next meeting will be held Thursday, Nov. 30. Students actively interested in studying the United Nations will accompany advisers.

School To Honor Softball Champs

The junior softball team of Columbia Street Playground, city champions, will be honored at a spaghetti supper Thursday at 6:30 p. m. in Columbia Street School cafeteria. Edwin Hoey, city recreational director, will be a guest speaker.

The affair is being sponsored by the Columbia Street Parent Teacher Association and proceeds will go toward the purchase of raincoats for the school patrol leaders.

The public is invited, but since only a limited number can be accommodated, reservations should be made at the school, or with Walter Bell, 225 Bedford Street, today or tomorrow.

The term, "in the limelight," referred to the original calcium, or lime, light designed for theatrical use in 1816, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Dentists To Hear Telephone Lectures

The Allegany-Garrett County Dental Society will take advantage of a new idea in education—instruction by telephone—to keep its members posted this winter on current advances in dentistry.

The unique program will originate in Chicago where it will be transmitted once each month by the University of Illinois College of Dentistry to 254 dental societies and study clubs. More than 10,000 dentists in 46 states in the U. S. and in seven provinces of Canada and hear the two-hour telephone broadcasts which will start on Monday, and continue monthly through March.

In transmitting the lectures, telephone contact will be made between Chicago and the hotel or assembly hall in all cities in which the participating dental societies are located. This telephone presentation then will be "ballooned" over a loud speaker to the audience in each city.

Experienced Printer Has "A Lot To Learn"

John Thomas Schenck, a former Cumberlander with 68 years' experience as a printer, believes he has a lot to learn before he will be ready to retire.

Born November 18, 1868, Schenk spent 18 years at the trade before he saw his first linotype in 1900. He has been operating one for 50 years, according to the Linotype News, trade magazine.

It was in spring, 1882, that Schenck's Sunday School teacher put him to work in a Cumberland print shop.

"The first thing he gave me," Schenck recalls, "was a two-gallon can of coal oil, a rag and brush and told me to clean the lamp chimneys hanging in iron racks on the cases, trim the wicks and fill the bowls. After I was through I swept the floor and picked up fallen type."

In 1888, the Cumberland Typographical Union No. 244 was organized and Schenck was made a charter member.

Schenck is still operating a linotype at the Wolfer Printing Company, Los Angeles, and has been there, off and on, for 17 years.

Schenck, whose health has been excellent and he has not required a doctor, since he was 19, said recently:

"When I finish my apprenticeship I intend to apply for a city job—for after 20 years I will be able to retire on a pension."

Prossen Becomes Celanese Manager

Successor to Reginald Hayes as plant manager of the Hopewell, Va., unit of Celanese Corporation of America is L. F. Prossen. Hayes left for South America to become general manager of the Celanese Colombiana, S. A., plant near Cali, Colombia. Prossen assumed his new duties last Wednesday.

The new plant manager was graduated from Pennsylvania State College in 1932 and five years later received his engineering degree from New York University. For a period of eight years he was affiliated with Western Electric Company. During the war he was engaged in development work for that company at the Kearney, N. J. plant. Later he was industrial engineer for Colt Patent Firearms Company.

Prossen joined Celanese Corporation of America in December, 1945, as industrial engineer for the Rome, Ga., plant. In July of 1949 he was transferred to the executive offices of the company in New York City as assistant to P. D. Cooper, vice president.

18-Year-Old Vet Of Korean War Wants To Be Army Cook Again

SALISBURY, Md. — (AP) — Pvt. Walter J. Webster, Jr., is an 18-year-old veteran of the Korean war. Now he wants to become an Army cook again.

During the last four months he's been doing anything but cooking. In fact, there was a time when just a plain box of Army K-rations would have seemed a banquet.

When the Korean invasion started Webster, whose home is in Salisbury, was leading a rather quiet garrison life on Okinawa—as a cook in a headquarters platoon in the 29th Infantry Regiment.

Then things began to happen—fast.

On July 24 he landed at Pusan in Korea. Three days later they took away his skillet and handed him a rifle.

That same day he was wounded, captured and carted north by the Red Koreans. It wasn't until 63 days later that young Webster was freed.

Now Webster's back home on a furlough—with a Purple Heart medal and a wound scar on his thigh where a bullet from a burp gun ripped through.

The teen-age soldier got hit as he and seven other GI's were covering a river crossing in the fight or die days of the war. Five were mowed down, Webster and another soldier got wounded and the eighth GI came through unhit.

Webster was then put with a batch of about 105 Americans. "Those who couldn't walk were shot," he said.

The Reds took his jewelry, his combat boots, his cigarets and then the prisoners were moved to Hadong. There two guards capped things off by taking his underwear and dividing it between them. They left him only his bloody fatigues.

Hadong was under constant strafing and bombing by Allied planes and Webster said 15 prisoners were killed during these attacks.

The food was bad, perhaps one rice ball per meal and dysentery was ever present.

But he was able to keep his small medical kit and until that gave out he dressed his wound properly. Then he had to use old rags and the wound abscessed.

Then the Red Koreans ordered them moved to Seoul but they never got there. "We marched barefooted and slept during the day to avoid strafing planes. Our feet were badly cut and mine aren't healed up yet."

Later, near Namwon, American jet planes frightened the guards away, ground troops finally pushed through and Webster was among those liberated.

First thing the prisoners did was grab rations from the GI rescuers.

Webster was flown back to the United States and a surprise reunion with his mother, Mrs. Walter J. Webster, Sr.

Somerset High To Play Here In Lid Lifter

Campers Will Engage In 21 Games; Bowers Starts 25th Season

Allegany High School will open its 21-game basketball schedule on Tuesday, December 12, with Somerset (Pa.) High School as the visiting team, Coach Walter L. Bowers announced last night.

The Campers will play two games less than last year's total due to Ferndale High School of Johnstown, Pa., dropping off the Blue and White schedule. Ferndale will figure in several doubleheaders to be staged at the Johnstown War Memorial this year and asked release from its annual series with AHS.

In playing 21 games, including a contest with the Alumni, Allegany is abiding by the state ruling which limits the number of games to 20 scholastic opponents.

Bowers, dean of Allegany county high school coaches, is starting his 25th consecutive year as basketball mentor at AHS. Forty-four boys reported for initial practice at Campobello and the squad has been reduced to 28. It will be pared to 20 within the next few days.

The schedule:

By C. V. BURNS

The report of Grover Cleveland Alexander's death on Saturday took us back 18 years to the day when "Old Pete," then 45, pitched in an exhibition game for the House of David team against the Cumberland Colts at Community Park.

It was the first of a two-game series and Alex entered the contest in the 7th inning as a relief pitcher with the score tied at 3-3. The Colts coupled several hits with two fielding errors to score four runs and beat the one-time major league ace by the score of 7-3.

Manager Leo Mackey's club also won the series finale, 2-0 but Alexander did not appear in that game. These games were played April 24 and 25, 1932 during the Colts' training period before the Middle Atlantic League season opened. Col. Nelson W. Russler was president of the local club.

"Old Pete" pitched here five years after he wound up his 16-year career in the big show where he hurled for the Phillies, Cubs and Cardinals.

At that time he had remarkable speed for a man his age but he threw few curves. Whether Alex bore down or not is hard to say. It was noticed however, that he did not take time to windup but threw the ball in almost as fast as he received it from Catcher Bleiding.

The year 1932, incidentally, was the last in organized ball for Cumberland. The previous season the Colts won the M. A. pennant but the New York Yankees sent in an entirely new team when the '32 season got under way.

Alexander was born in 1887 at Elba, Neb., and was 63 at the time of his death. He pitched in the National League from 1911 through 1927.

Many classy amateur fighters from Washington, D. C., have appeared here since the sport was revived in 1945. Perhaps the best were Norvel Lee, Leon Daughtry, Eugene Smith, Pat Thomas and Paul Nicol.

Next Monday a Washington team will appear in "Bobby" Green's show at the State Armory.

Capital City mittmen have appeared in 73 bouts in 19 shows here. They've won 42 and lost 31.

Pirate Fans Happy Over Rickey Deal

Want New Boss To Keep Kiner

By JIM HOLTON

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7 (AP) —Excited baseball fans in the Steel City were virtually unanimous today in their reaction to the news of Branch Rickey's move to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The happy chorus went like this:

"We can't do any worse than last year."

The die hard Buc followers referred to the 1950 race which found their heroes wearing the National League dunce cap.

Pennant hungry Pittsburgh hasn't had a championship club since 1927.

Rickey took over the reins at Forbes Field yesterday in a move that surprised virtually nobody.

The colorful baseball wizard cleared out of Brooklyn a week ago after selling his stock in the Dodgers. He is executive vice president and general manager—one of three—he whimsically announced—in the new Pirate setup.

Honus Wagner, Pittsburgh's immortal shortstop of three decades ago and still active as a Pirate coach at 75, declared:

"Any man who's been as successful as Mr. Rickey has been in the past can get this team back on its feet. I think the news is wonderful.

"If he wants me, I'll be back there in the dugout next spring."

Sports Announcer Rosey Rowsewell—"The Pirates' number one fan"—echoed Wagner's sentiments:

"Rickey definitely will improve the club. He's always been successful. He's never satisfied with results—even a winning team isn't quite good enough to suit him."

Star Fiddle Pulls Upset

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP)—Star Fiddle, a long shot ex-claiming horse, humbled the greater names of the turf today with a rousing photo-finish victory in the $25,000 Premier Handicap at Hollywood Park today.

The four-year-old chestnut kept his nose in front of the highly favored Your Host and Bewitch to capture the seven furlong feature which marked the opening of Hollywood's 30-day fall meeting.

He broke on top, ran the distance in 1:22 1-5, and paid off to the fancy tune of $58.30, $15.50 and $8.70.

William Goetz's California Comet and even-money choice of the 27,000 fans, Your Host, paid $3.70 and $2.80, and the Calumet Farm's sweetheart, the five-year-old mare Bewitch, paid $4.40 for the show spot.

WMI SOCCER LEAGUE
STANDING OF THE TEAMS

Beall	2	0	3	7
Barton	2	1	3	7
Flintstone	1	3	3	5
Bruce	1	5	1	3

Central High School's undefeated and four-times tied soccer team can annex its second straight W. M. I. League championship today provided it defeats Beall High School at Lonaconing.

A victory in Central's 8th and final game on the schedule would give Coach Johnny Meyers' Tigers a total of 12 points — allowing two points for each win and one point for each tie. The Orange and Black then could not be overtaken even though Beall should defeat Bruce and Barton in its last two contests.

If today's game ends in a tie like the series opener did (0-0) Beall still has a chance to win the title by copping its two remaining games. The race will windup in a tie if today's game ends in a deadlock and Beall wins one and ties one of its final contests.

If Central loses today's game the Mountain City eleven could still win out by playing tie games with Bruce and Barton.

Beall is undefeated like Central while Barton in third place has lost one game.

The Rev. John B. Jones will officiate.

Three games remain on the league schedule after today. Friday, Barton is at Flintstone and Bruce at Beall. Barton will play host to Beall on Tuesday, November 14.

FROSTBURG, Nov. 7—Workman's Restaurant tenpin team defeated the Arcade-Pontiac team of Washington, D. C., by the margin of 77 pins in a five-game match Sunday on the Recreational Bowling Alleys.

Ohio State Tops Grid Teams With Average Of 42.8

Bucks Top Major Teams In Scoring

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP) — Ohio State's rampaging Buckeyes "slumped" to a mere 32 points against Northwestern last week, but the scourge of the Big Ten still leads the nation's major college teams in scoring with an average of 42.8 points in six starts.

Arizona State's Sun Devils continue to show the way both in total offense, 471.9 yards per game, and in rushing, 357.4, while the Southern Methodist Mustangs, despite their bitter loss to Texas, still lead in passing with an average gain through the air of 253.8 yards per contest.

At the moment, however, the hottest offensive unit in the country is Nebraska, according to figures compiled by the official NCAA News Bureau.

Two Saturdays ago they rang up 512 yards in beating Kansas, 33-26, and they came right back with 552 yards in smashing Missouri, 40-34. The two-game total of 1,064 yards hoisted the Huskers all the way from 32nd place to 7th nationally in total offense.

Southern Methodist attempted 47 passes against the Longhorns and completed 24 for 352 yards to boost their six-game average to 253.8. Second place Loyola of Los Angeles is the Mustangs' closest rival with an even 200 yard average per game.

Both Ohio State and Kentucky lead S.M.U. in one phase of the overhead attack, each having fired 15 touchdown throws.

Following are the teams leaders:

TOTAL OFFENSE: Arzona State, 471.9 yards average per game; Princeton, 452.7; Loyola 440, College of Pacific 431, Army 430.2, S.M.U. 420, Nebraska 411.2, Clemson 403, Kansas 395.9, Texas A.&M. 395.1.

RUSHING OFFENSE: Arizona State, 357.4 yards average per game; Army 337.7, Nebraska 335.5, Princeton 329.3, Kansas 317.7, College of Pacific 310.1, Texas A.&M. 284, Oklahoma 276.5, Clemson 276.3, Michigan State 272.7.

PASSING OFFENSE: Southern Methodist, 253.8 yards average, Loyola 200, Washington 197.7, George Washington 195.9, Vanderbilt 175, Holy Cross 187.2, Hardin-Simmons 185.6, Duke, 184.4, Drake 165.3, West Virginia 164.9.

Fort Hill JVs Score 6th Win Over Pioneers

Ray Hull's Gridders Top Romney, 20-14

Coach Ray Hull's Fort Hill High School junior varsity gridders registered their 6th victory of the season yesterday morning by defeating the Romney High School Jayvees here by the score of 20-14.

The Hilltoppers scored their winning touchdown in the final period after Romney had taken a 14-13 lead.

John McVicker accounted for two of the locals' scores on 15 and 20 yard runs. Jim Turner's 15 yard sprint produced the other six-pointer. McVicker plunged for two extra points.

One of Romney's touchdowns was the result of an 85-yard run by Whetzel. Ely scored the other one and ran two extra points.

During a 3rd period touchdown drive, Burke fumbled and Shahan of Romney recovered on the visitors' 30. A 15-yard clipping penalty halted Fort Hill on another occasion after Burke had been knocked out of bounds on the Romney 5.

Fort Hill marked up 12 first downs to 10 for Romney. The winners completed two out of five passes and Romney connected five times in nine tries. Lineups:

Samuel Will Return To Steelers' Lineup

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7 (AP)—Big Don Samuel, whose promising football career with the Pittsburgh Steelers apparently was cut short by a serious injury last year, will return to the Steeler lineup next Sunday.

Samuel was a rookie sensation last year until he suffered a complete dislocation of the knee in a game with the New York Bulldogs—now the Yankees—in midseason.

Philadelphia Phils Fail To Get Place

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP) — Eight clubs are represented on the 1950 Associated Press all-star baseball team, but the National League champion Philadelphia Phillies drew a surprising blank.

Not even their Jim Konstanty, the loop's most valuable player, could make the grade. The great relief specialist placed fourth among righthanded pitchers.

On the other hand, Phil Rizzuto, the AL's most valuable player, was an overwhelming favorite. The New York Yankee shortstop was named on the most ballots, 360, in outdistancing the Phils' Gran Hamner, who received a mere nine votes.

The American League, as usual, dominated the team, selected by 381 sports writers and sportscasters.

First Base—Walt Dropo, Red Sox, .323.
Second Base—Jackie Robinson, Dodgers, .328.
Third Base—George Kell, Tigers, .341.
Shortstop—Phil Rizzuto, Yankees, .324.
Right Field—Stan Musial, Cardinals, .346.
Center Field—Joe DiMaggio, Yankees, .301.
Left Field—Ralph Kiner, Pirates, .272.
Catcher—Yogi Berra, Yankees, .320.
Righthanded Pitcher—Bob Lemon, Indians, 23-11.
Lefthanded Pitcher — Warren Spahn, Braves, 21-17.
Utility—Bill Goodman, Red Sox, .354.

Rizzuto, Robinson, Kell, Musial and Kiner are holdovers from the 1949 team. Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox failed to make the team for the first time since the poll's inception five years ago.

Musial, a truly superb all-around performer, was second to Dropo in the battle for first place honors. Dropo polled 205 votes to Musial's 52.

The sport of table shuffleboard is increasing in popularity throughout the country and according to The Billboard Magazine more than 250,000 shufflers are expected to engage in organized league play this season.

Table shuffleboard is not a new game. It dates back to Shakespeare's time in England. The Bard had a long wooden table in his home with markings similar to shuffleboard diagrams today. Large penny pieces were used as weights.

Some historians, however, claim the game originated in ancient Egypt.

The National Shuffleboard League of Allegany County is in operation for the third straight year and for the second successive season the circuit is composed of 14 teams.

This league comprising 140 eligible shufflers plays a split season and the competition is very keen.

The Cumberland Knights of Columbus won league titles in 1948-49 and 1949-50.

A women's shuffleboard league also has been in operation for several years in Allegany County.

Holly Mims, the classy negro middleweight boxer from Washington, D. C., who upset the local fistic dope here last year in one of Vic Ricker's pro shows when he handed Marion Klingensmith, the Fighting Cop of Brownsville, Pa., a boxing lesson at the State Armory, provided another surprise Monday night in Baltimore when he won an unanimous decision over Johnny Bratton of Chicago.

Mims was a 4 to 1 underdog but that didn't matter.

Bratton, as a lightweight, held his own with the best in the game and among his K. O. victims was Herbie "Biff" Jones of Washington. The Chicagoan tips 155½ pounds now.

The Mims-Bratton scrap was reported to be one of the fastest, hardest-fought battles seen in Baltimore in many a day.

The Washington Redskins have lost 10 out of 12 games played since Herman Ball succeeded John Whelchel as head coach on November 7, 1949.

Last season's setbacks came at the hands of the Eagles, Bears, Giants, and Los Angeles Rams and the only win was scored at the expense of Green Bay.

This year the 'Skins opened with a victory over Baltimore then lost six in a row to Green Bay, Pittsburgh, New York Giants, Chicago Cardinals, Philadelphia Eagles and Giants for the second time.

It's the Eagles, Cleveland, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Cleveland the Redskins must face before the season ends.

Jimmy Catanese has been conspicuous by his absence since the pro fight game went on the rocks here and we asked Joe Niland the other day what became of the well known bolo puncher.

Joe says he understands Jimmy went to Africa on a wild game hunt to get some leopardskin for new trunks so he'll be ready when fighting is resumed. He wore out the others.

Catanese, incidentally, introduced leopardskin trunks long before Gussie Moran wore them for panties.

Player Suspended By Baltimore Pros

BALTIMORE, Nov. (AP) — The The Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association today suspended Paul Hoffman, high scoring star from Purdue, and planned to get a court injunction against his playing with any other pro team.

Hoffman did not go along when the Bullets took a plane for their game tonight in Providence, R. I.

Joseph Rash, president of the club, said Hoffman had demanded a new contract at a higher price.

"We had given him a raise over last year and he is one of the highest paid members of the team," Rash said.

Bullet officials went to Hoffman's home last night when he failed to report for practice yesterday and said he told them he had been working out with the Lancaster, Pa., team of the Eastern League.

It is the third time Hoffman has quit the Bullets since he joined the outfit for the 1947-48 season.

Teacher Faces Kidnap Charge

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 7 (AP) — Lewis G. Daniel faces arraignment tomorrow on a charge of abducting the 17-year-old girl he later married in Kentucky.

Daniel, 33-year-old Marsh Fork high school teacher and former coach, was brought to the Kanawha county jail early today from Beckley, where he was taken after his arrest yesterday.

The girl, the former Ann Tabor, rested under a doctor's care at the home of her parents in Naoma, Raleigh county. She arrived home yesterday after having been missing since October 29. She disappeared from the nurses' home of a Charleston hospital where she had been a student.

Prosecutor Frank L. Taylor disclosed that officers were continuing a check on what he said were sharply divergent stories told by Daniel and the girl.

Sander Fails To Apply

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 7 (AP) —Dr. Hermann N. Sander, central figure in a sensational murder trial last spring, tonight failed to seek reinstatement at the annual meeting of the Hillsborough County Medical Society which suspended him after his acquittal.

Vice Squad Chief Who Killed Self Had Assets Of $38,000

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7 (AP)—A torn piece of paper found on the body of Police Inspector Craig D. Ellis after he committed suicide showed the officer had assets of some $38,000, Deleware County District Attorney C. William Kraft, Jr., disclosed today.

Ellis, head of the Philadelphia vice squad for 10 years, committed suicide Oct. 17 a few hours before he was to testify before a federal grand jury investigating crime.

At first state police said Ellis left only a suicide note in which he said: "I have failed as a leader. My wife did not know of my laxity."

But Kraft today confirmed the existance of the memorandum listing assets, including an $8,000 item for gambling.

Building Service Tieup

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7 (AP) — More than 2,000 building service employes tonight threatened a strike which would cripple service in the city's largest office buildings.

Elevator operators, janitors and other maintenance personnel voted authorization for a walkout which would affect about 98 per cent of the city's office buildings.

A spokesman for local 29, AFL building service employes, said if the strike comes it will be "without further notice."

N. Y. Police Seek 'Passion Killer'

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—A handsome young college instructor was found naked and dead of an estimated 38 stab wounds today in his bed in a red-doored apartment in Manhattan's fashionable Upper East Side.

He was Karl T. Ohl, 37, a mathematics and engineering instructor at Fairleigh-Dickinson College in Rutherford, N. J., and former Harvard post-graduate student.

Detective Rudolph McLaughlin labelled the killing a "crime of passion."

He said only an inflamed or enraged person would have inflicted the multiple wounds found in Ohl's neck, abdomen and back.

The body was discovered by Hubert Landau, 55, a portrait artist, who said he had rented part of his fifth-floor Madison avenue apartment to the husky, blond educator some years ago.

Police questioned Landau and an unidentified woman and said they planned to query "at least 25" acquaintances of Ohl.

Woman Found Dead

Sen. Malone Predicts Red China Recognition

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 7 (AP) — Sen. George W. Malone (R-Nev.) predicted today that the United States will recognize Communist China within 90 days and said "Dean Acheson has been collaborating with Great Britain to that end."

Sen. Malone, in an interview here, also declared that the administration will "recall Gen. MacArthur as soon as the propaganda can be laid down."

The Nevada Senator claimed that this propaganda will be based on "charges of non-cooperation with Defense Secretary George Marshall, and that MacArthur is too old."

Smothers In Bed

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7 (AP)—While her brother slept peacefully below, three-year-old Darlene Elizabeth Hancock suffocated in the upper bunk of a double-deck bed in their home at Middle River.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hancock found their daughter, her neck wedged between the bed rail and spring, when they returned home last night.

Three Killed In Blast

HARWICH, Eng., Nov. 7 (AP) — A terrific explosion ripped an industrial explosives factory south of Harwich today, killed three workmen, injured 25 and rocked 20 miles of Britain's east coast. Another workman is missing.

Republicans

by comfortable margins.

They are Edward T. Garmatz of the Third, and George H. Fallon, who handily defeated their two Republican opponents.

Rep. Lansdale G. Sasscer (D-Md) drew out to a commanding lead over Thomas Carr, an Annapolis radio station executive, in the Fifth District.

Rep. Edward T. Miller (R-Md) was leading State Sen. Thomas F. Johnson (R-Worcester) in the First (Eastern Shore) District on the basis of scattered returns.

Rep. J. Glenn Beall, Maryland's other Republican congressman, seemed to be comfortably safe in Western Maryland over Russell Peter Hartle, Democrat and retired Army general.

Attorney General Hammond seemed assured of another four years in office. With 753 polling places reported, he was leading William A. Gunter, a former Republican state senator from Allegany county, 172,551 votes to 146,695.

Ober Law Upheld

State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes had no Republican opposition. But he received scores of thousands of complementary votes, anyway and will be sworn into office again in January.

The turnout of voters may have set a new record. The weather was perfect, the issues were thoroughly aired and there were subjects up for referenda that captured the interest of the electorate.

One referendum decided that Maryland will keep its stringent Ober anti-subversive law, passed in 1949. Sponsors said it was "designed to destroy Communism without destroying Americanism."

It was brought to a referendum by petition of more than 18,000 registered voters.

State Sen. Sothoron Loses

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Nov. 7 (AP)—Senate Majority Leader L. Harold Sothoron lost his seat in Maryland's General Assembly today.

Sothoron, Senate floor boss for Gov. Lane's Democratic administration, was defeated by Republican John R. Fletcher in Prince George's county.

Pick Up Six

trol of the Senate, the Democrats had elected 14 of their candidates. This, with 31 holdovers, gave them 45 seats, or four short of a majority. They had upset no Republicans.

Republicans had elected 14 of their men. These, with 29 holdovers, give the GOP 43 seats, or six short of a majority.

Eight Senate contests were undecided.

All told 432 House seats were at stake. The Republicans took three seats in Maine in September.

In the House, Republicans had a net gain of six seats shortly after 3:30 a. m. (EST).

They had elected 116 members to 192 for the Democrats, but many of these were in the solidly Democratic south.

To win control of Congress, Republicans needed a net gain of 49 in the House and seven in the Senate.

Democrats could take some consolation, however, in the reelection victory of Sen. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, whom Franklin D. Roosevelt once called "my good right arm."

They succeeded also, in reelecting Sen. Brien McMahon of Connecticut, chairman of the Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy.

Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt won reelection in New York, but another son of F.D.R., James Roosevelt, lost to Gov. Earl Warren in the California governorship race.

Sen. Elbert D. Thomas, Democratic chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, trailed in Utah behind Republican Wallace F. Bennett, former head of the National Association of Manufacturers.

The California senatorial race saw Republican Rep. Richard M. Nixon take a quick lead over Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas, former Broadway stage star and self-proclaimed "100 percent New Dealer."

In New York, a noted leftist bowed in defeat. He is Rep. Vito Marcantonio, American Labor Party. Republicans, Democrats and Liberals united behind James G. Donovan.

Faye Emerson To Wed "Skitch" Henderson

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP) — Actress Faye Emerson surprised her television audience tonight by introducing "the man I am going to marry" — Orchestra Leader "Skitch" Henderson.

The Carlsbad Caverns of New Mexico are the world's largest limestone caverns.

A captive barn owl swallowed nine mice in rapid succession.

A business session and speaking program are scheduled for the semi-annual executive board meeting of the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association, according to Miss Jean Reinhard, executive secretary.

The meeting will be held Monday afternoon, November 13, at 3:30 o'clock at association headquarters in the Union Street Building.

Mrs. Harry Barton, president, will preside.

Guests will include the committee in charge of the 1950 Christmas Seal Sale.

That group is headed by Mrs. Edgar Vandegrift, chairman, and includes Glenn K. Davis, Mrs. Holmes H. Cessna, Mrs. Porter D. Collins and J. William Hunt.

Davis will be in charge of coin containers, which will be placed in approximately 250 public places throughout the county, starting November 11.

Mrs. Collins is making arrangements for Seal Sale booths to be set up in the downtown section, while Hunt is publicity chairman.

Miss Reinhard said the Christmas Seal campaign will open officially on Monday, November 20, with a goal of $15,000.

Election Highlight

later with McKeldin ahead and a 72 per cent vote cast.

At Barton, District No. 9, where there are 746 registered voters, a record of 597 turned in ballots for 80 per cent. Workers at the polls made a last minute valiant effort to find three more to make an even 600, but they just couldn't be located before closing time.

Just for comparison, it might be noted that four years ago McKeldin carried Allegany county with 13,304 compared to Lane's 9,963.

In the county commissioner contest four years ago Lemmert led the ticket with 16,559, Holmes polled 13,400 and Wilkinson, received 16,166. The lone Democrat four years ago, polled 8,229. He was Samuel T. Weatherholt, father of F. Allan Weatherholt, the lone Democrat for commissioner this time.

In the Congressional race, Beall carried Allegany county four years ago by a vote of 14,185 against 8,597 for McDonald, and in 1948 Beall lost the county with 14,028 to Austin's 14,587.

Four years ago, it was also noted yesterday that Markey, running for the U. S. Senate, beat O'Conor in this county by a vote of 12,366 against 10,401.

Yesterday's election was a most congenial one in all polling places. Usually, workers of opposite political faiths separate themselves into small groups, but yesterday there was more fraternization than has been noted heretofore, and there seemed to be less bitterness and fewer arguments than usual.

The vote indicated that many people crossed party lines, and workers reported that fewer people marked a straight party ballot.

PTA Groups To Attend Parley

Associations from all over Allegany county will be represented at the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers 35th annual convention Thursday and Friday in Baltimore.

Theme of the convention is "Preparing Today's Child for Tomorrow's World."

Local delegations will leave here today. They will be lead by Mrs. John E. Lancaster, state treasurer, and chairman of registration and credentials; Mrs. Edward J. Wilson, chairman of procedure and by-laws; Mrs. Lawrence Shafferman, president of Allegany County Council; Mrs. Margaret Jones, of the Frostburg State College Laboratory School; Mrs. Stanley Buckley, character and spiritual education chairman; and George Dunlap, chairman of the local President's Club. All are members of the state board.

Dunlap and Miss Dorothy W. Shires, former county principal, now state elementary supervisor, will participate in panel discussions.

Morning, afternoon and evening sessions have been planned for each of the two days, beginning Thursday with registration, reports by officials, and the keynote address by Mrs. Clifford N. Jenkins, vice president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Other speakers during the meeting will be Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, superintendent of the State Department of Education; Mrs. Arthur Warkins, author; Floyd M. Riddick, editor; and Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, president of Towson State Teachers College.

Local Parent-Teacher Associations from 23 counties and Baltimore City are expected to attend the sessions. Mrs. Emil Smith of Silver Spring, state president, will preside.

WHAT DOES A FLYING SAUCER REALLY LOOK LIKE?

Flying saucers are interesting to think about and are just naturally stimulating to the curiosity, but reliable sources declare that the saucers are on our side and that the worrying should be done by someone else . . . not us.

So maybe it would be time better spent to worry about something else . . . like the June 15th income tax installment, or unpaid bills.

We can help dissolve this worry too. Sure it's easy. Here's how it is done.

Everyone has things around the house that are usable but going unused. For instance, furniture in the attic, a lawnmower, a bicycle, luggage, a boat, an outboard motor, and dozens of other items. These items can be converted into cash to pay taxes and bills. How? By placing a low cost Times-News Want Ad. Just call 4600 and an ad-taker will help you.

ANY WAY YOU FIGURE...

Your best buy in cooking...

is an AUTOMATIC GAS RANGE

WHETHER YOU BUY A RANGE according to the tasty, wholesome meals you can cook on it : : : according to your budget : : : or whether you're concerned with cooking comfort, ease, and saving time—a new automatic GAS range is your best buy!

RIGHT AT THE START

—when you buy an automatic GAS range—you can salt away the difference you save in price—because a GAS range costs so little compared with others. There'll be quite a saving, too, when you have it installed. And it's no secret that GAS is the cheapest fuel you can use!

SPEED? GAS HAS GOT IT!

When you turn on a burner, you get flame! Hot, clean, blue flame—at once! And when you turn it down, you get low heat at once, too—no left-over high heat to ruin your cooking.

AN AUTOMATIC GAS RANGE

helps the cook—makes even good cooks better. It out-performs any other range. Thousands of heats are there waiting for you to choose which you want. You're not confined to the 3, 5, or 7 of other ranges. Things are bound to taste better cooked at exactly the right temperature.

OVEN COOKING'S A CINCH!

Cakes brown evenly in the air-circulated oven where the heat never varies once you've set the thermostat. Any oven dish, in fact, looks and tastes better cooked with GAS.

BROIL STEAKS OR CHOPS

when you have guests. The broiler won't smoke because the gas flame consumes smoke instantly. GAS is really in a class by itself on smokeless broiling. Women who have automatic GAS ranges use their ovens and broilers as much as top burners—they find it so easy.

LIFETIME BURNERS

How long will a gas burner last? Why, as long as the range itself. You'll never run the risk of having a burner bog down just when you're getting a "company" meal.

YOU'LL DISCOVER

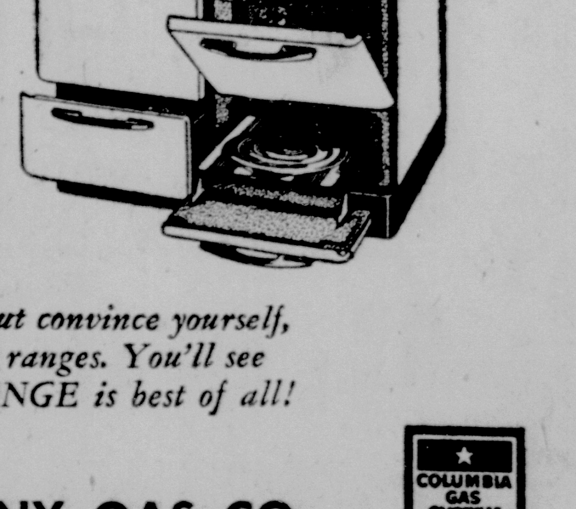
ever so many more advantages in your automatic GAS range the longer you have it. For instance, when you're "redding up"—a whisk with a damp cloth takes off all but the stickiest dirt—and that comes off easily by just lifting out burners and washing them.

GAS ITSELF IS CLEAN

Take a towel and wipe the bottom of a pan that's been used over a properly-adjusted gas flame. You'll never get a speck of soot from gas.

See the Beautiful Models at your

GAS APPLIANCE DEALER'S OR GAS COMPANY OFFICE



From every angle, GAS is best. But convince yourself, compare the features of all new ranges. You'll see why an AUTOMATIC GAS RANGE is best of all!

GOP Still Has Visions Of "Ike" In White House

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)—NOT EVEN this most hotly partisan—occasionally disappointing—election period has obscured the heady Republican vision of Gen. Ike Eisenhower in the White House in 1952.

If anything, it has brought the vision into sharper focus, for every Republican setback causes G.O.P. regulars to yearn more desperately for a winning symbol. They now regard the General as the surest thing they've had on their side in 22 years of variable frustration.

The impression is that the General's willingness to speak with Republican leaders and the fact that he usually leaves himself an "out" whenever he deprecates his expected candidacy.

But those who are very close to the General tell a story that has another shading. They say that he has no appetite for the White House job. They say he will not campaign for the Republican nomination.

But no matter how often and sincerely he expresses this lack of covetousness for the highest office in the land, he cannot convince Republican friends that he is dead serious.

"I like this job at Columbia and I expect to keep it," he told one leader recently. "I was offered posts in business that would have paid perhaps five times as much, and turned them down because of the opportunity Columbia presents to work with American youth in a constructive way.

"I'm not a politician and I'm not seeking office. Naturally, I am always available for any military service I'm called upon to render. But beyond that all I want to do is to perform my duties at Columbia."

The visitor reached over and slapped the General on the knee.

"That's the way to talk, he enthused. "Just keep talking that way, General, and you can't miss."

Eisenhower sighed wearily and gave it up as a hopeless job.

There also appears to be a belief that the General has put off accepting the job as commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the North Atlantic pact powers. Some have even said that he is opposed to being sent out of the country for an indefinite period of time just when millions of Americans are coming to regard him as a positive candidate and probable winner in 1952.

Not so. The truth of the matter is that Eisenhower would leave tomorrow for Europe in uniform if there were a North Atlantic pact armed force to command. The North Atlantic treaty countries are united militarily in name only. This country is still undecided as to how much aid to offer, and so are the other powers.

France remains vigorously opposed to the rearming of Western Germany. In view of what Germany did to that country twice in a quarter of a century, other pact countries which believe that no such union could work without the manpower and military skill of the Germans are not at this time pressing France for a reversal of its feeling.

• — • — •

When and if all the North Atlantic powers agree, and there is a genuine call for a supreme commander, Eisenhower is ready to go. There is a good chance also that many of the men who were on his winning team in World War II, and who have now gone into fields other than the military, will volunteer to return to Europe with him.

Incidentally, the General accepted a New York police guard without comment, a few hours after the attempted assassination of President Truman. Eisenhower's allergy to bodyguards is legendary though the Germans would have considered his death or capture as of monumental importance.

During the war, he refused personal guard. His indignation over the Secret Service detail which accompanied F.D.R. when the President was in North Africa early in the war was such that — at one point — he threatened to stop a Roosevelt review of his troops unless the Secret Service men, who were tagging along in the wake of the jeep carrying the President and Eisenhower, left the area. He considered their presence an affront to the ability of the countless soldiers to defend their president from any possible harm that might come his way. Made the decision stick, too.

HOLLYWOOD
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7 (INS) — Farley Granger's business representative, the Sam Jaffe agency, has been barred from the Samuel Goldwyn lot and there is plenty of trouble brewing.

Seems Farley was booked for a personal appearance in San Francisco with "Edge Of Doom," and it was advertised that he would be there. He refused to go, which naturally didn't make his boss, Samuel Goldwyn, very happy.

Farley won't however, be put on suspension since he is working on "Strangers on a Train" for Alfred Hitchcock at Warner Brothers. Young Granger, who has been with Goldwyn since he was 18, was on suspension some time ago when he refused to do "Lorna Doone" for Edward Small, and instead went to Europe. He was also suspended when he returned and refused to appear with "Our Very Own." I heard later he wrote Goldwyn a contrite letter.

I am particularly interested to learn that a picture already has been made in Italy on the beautiful story of Maria Goretti, the 11-year-old girl elevated to sainthood last June by Pope Pius XII. Under the title of "The Girl From The Marshes" it will soon be released in this country by Joe Burstyn.

The tragedy of the child who died protecting her virginity and praying for the salvation of the man who attacked her was made two years ago by famed Italian Director Augusto Genina. It already has won such honors as the Silver Ribbon (Italy's highest film award) and another from the International Catholic Office of Cinema Citation.

One of the great love stories in theatrical history was that of Michael Strange and John Barrymore. Michael Strange, poetess and actress, who died Sunday, was the second Mrs. Barrymore and at the time John started wooing her she was married to Leonard Thomas, rich and aristocratic socialite.

She, herself, was born Blanche Oelrichs, and this romance was one that was widely publicized. For a while they were ideally happy and both appeared with Ethel Barrymore in "Claire De Lune."

I remember so well John saying to me one night, about the time they had started to have trouble after he had come to Hollywood, "If I telephone my wife and don't get her I'm unhappy and wonder where she is. If I do get her we quarrel."

Chit-chat: After five months shooting "Quo Vadis" in Rome, imagine the surprise of Bob Taylor, Deborah Kerr and Mervyn Leroy when Ingrid Bergman paid them a surprise visit on the set the last day of work.

Morgan Hudgins, press agent of the $6,000,000 religious epic, who flew in Monday, says Ingrid is very thin but she couldn't have been gayer and happier. She arrived just in time to help Mervyn Leroy cut his birthday cake and to be a very welcome guest at the party which followed the final crank of the cameras.

Oh, yes — Ingrid insists on being called "Mrs. Rossellini" and corrects anyone who introduces her as Miss Bergman.

Everett Crosby and Dixie, who had a feud on for some years, have made up and both Everett and his wife were at Dixie's birthday party Saturday. Bing called her long distance from Carmel.

Charles Boyer is being honored by the Mt. Sinai hospital in New York for his French research activities, and he'll be given a plaque. He's worked on this for over ten years.

Milton Berle and Evelyn Knight are going to have an announcement for their friends before the holidays.

Bobo Rockefeller took her young son, Winthrop, Jr., to Deborah Dozier's second birthday party. There he met the future debutantes and beaux of 1966. Heavens, I even hate to write that date! Charlie Chaplin's two, a boy and a girl; two of the John Farrow children, and many others helped Debbie cut her cake.

Vivien Leigh had a birthday Sunday and Laurence Olivier gave a party with 20 guests, mostly of the British set. One of the gifts Larry gave Vivien is a miniature streetcar for her charm bracelet.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Where There's Smoke . . .

YESTERDAY, at one of those cocktail parties where only pedigreed olives are used in the Martinis, I met a movie actress who used to dance in one of my chorus lines back in the '30's. She was sporting a square-cut that looked like the searchlight on the old Albany night boat.

Billy Rose

"Glad you're doing so well," I said. "You've really gone places since the days when you made a fast forty a week."

"Have I changed much?" she asked, lighting a gold-tipped cigaret.

"Well, for one thing," I said, "you never used to smoke buck-a-pack ciggies."

"You mean these Sobranies?" said the actress. "Matter of fact, I started smoking them while I was working at your club. One of your customers introduced me to them."

"Boy friend?"

"Yes, if a man in his 50's can be called a boy. Remember Big Joel?"

"The oil fella?"

"That's the one," said the star. "Know something? I probably would be married to him today if not for these Sobranies."

"Tell me about it," I prodded.

"Well, it's not much of a story," said the actress. "One night Big Joel threw a party at the Central Park Casino for a bunch of his pals—Jimmy Walker, Billy Seeman, Jules Glaenzer and that crowd. And it was quite a shindig—guinea hen under glass, buckets of champagne and gold-tipped Sobranies on every table. I was one of the girls invited—but what I didn't know until later was that Joel intended to surprise me and announce our engagement that night."

"Were you stuck on the big lug?"

"Not particularly," said the star, "but he was a nice enough fella and had he made the announcement I don't doubt but that I would have gone along with it."

"What stopped him?"

"It was one of those things," said the actress. "A little after midnight, when I came back to my table after a dance, I found my pocketbook was missing. I started to look for it, but Big Joel told me to relax and handed me a hundred bucks. I thanked him but kept right on looking, and when he asked me why I was so worried about the pocketbook I told him there was three hundred dollars in it.

"I had hardly gotten the words out of my mouth when the woman who worked in the ladies' room came up and handed me my purse—said she had found it under the make-up table.

"Big Joel looked at me and grinned kind of funny. 'It ain't that I don't trust you, honey,' he said, 'but a man wants to be awfully sure about the lady he's going to make his wife. Forgive me, but—would you mind opening that bag and showing me the three hundred?'

"Naturally I did no such thing. I picked up my bag, gave him one of those 'how-dare-you' looks and walked straight out of the room."

"In other words," I small-joked, "Big Joel caught you with your purse down."

"Nothing of the sort," said the movie star. "Matter of fact, I had been paid off that afternoon for a series of modeling jobs and had closer to four hundred than three in my bag."

"Then why didn't you open it?"

"How could I?" said the actress. "He'd have seen the ten packs of Sobranie Gold-Tips I had swiped off the tables."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

In Memoriam

In memory of my beloved daughter, Joyce Lee "Rusty" Garlitz, who died 8 years ago today, November 8, 1942.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true;
There's not a day, dear Rusty,
I do not think of you.
Father

In memory of my beloved daughter, Joyce Lee "Rusty" Garlitz, who died 8 years ago, November 8, 1942.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her today,
Are the one who loved her best.
Sadly missed by her
Mother

In memory of our dear husband and father, Hugh Weir, who passed away one year ago, November 8, 1949.

As we loved him, so we miss him,
In our hearts he is so near,
Loved, remembered, long for always,
Bringing many a silent tear.
Beautiful memories are all that's left
Of one we loved and shall never forget.
Sadly missed by his:
Wife, Mrs. Hugh Weir
Daughter, Mrs. George Winner
Son, Mr. William Weir

"The Authority on Authorities"

MOST TRAPS ARE HIDDEN

WHETHER they are set by your opponents, or are merely produced by the shuffle and deal, most of the traps that endanger your easy-looking contracts are hidden to one extent or another. It is therefore unwise to bull along according to your customary ways of playing certain kinds of suits. First it is well to take a look at the over-all situation and try to note, if you can, some possible risk which was not at first obvious. It may be that a simple exception to your habitual play will protect your contract.

You won't find any contract of a mere game reached less impressively than that one, with a series of bids that after a little while sounded like sign-offs. But, when South saw the dummy, he was glad he reached the 4-Hearts, which looked like an unadulterated cinch of purest ray serene. That's the trouble. It looked too easy.

West made his natural lead of the club K to the A. All that South expected to do, after a quick glance, was to score the trump A and K, then run diamonds. So he tried that. But, when East discarded on the second honor, leaving West with the Q, South noted that he was in unforeseen difficulty. As between leading diamonds now and hoping to get a spade discard before West won with his trump, and leading the heart J to the Q, he decided to try the diamonds.

That made him doubly unhappy. West ruffed the second diamond and quickly scored three spade tricks for his side to defeat the contract. The heart lead instead of the diamond one to the fourth trick would have brought the same defeat, with three spade tricks for the defenders.

All that South had to do to assure his contract was finesse the heart J. If West won, a trump in dummy would limit spade losers to two. If West let the finesse win, his Q would become a dead duck and an extra trick would have resulted.

McKeldin And Butler Far Ahead In County Voting

County GOP Heads For Sweep

Allegany county, with its strong GOP book majority, led the state in yesterday's balloting by remaining almost solidly in the Republican column, defeating the Democratic incumbents Lane and Tydings by sweeping pluralities, and giving splendid votes to local party candidates, on the basis of incomplete unofficial returns.

Only in the contest for judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit between Morgan C. Harris, Republican, and Edward J. Ryan, Democrat, was there a close contest in the county, according to scattered returns.

This battle, listed as one of the possible close ones weeks ago, was equally close in Washingon and Garrett counties, based upon early returns.

As this was written, 35 precincts in the district gave Harris 3706 votes and Ryan 3674. The partial report was not indicative of a trend. There are 173 precincts in the district.

Early returns in the local state's attorney contest between Paul M. Fletcher, Republican, and Harold E. Naughton, Democrat, showed Fletcher forging steadily and far ahead.

Closer contests had been expected in some quarters in the House of Delegates race with Democrats predicting Clark or Barton might ease into sixth place assuring one of them a seat. However, early returns indicated a solid Republican front.

The same situation held true in the contest for county commissioner where Weatherholt, the lone Democrat, had been given an outside chance. The Republican candidates, Orr, Lemmert and Holmees, were running ahead in that order.

In the race for county sheriff, Muir seemed assured a return to office to be the first sheriff ever to succeed himself in this county. He was ahead of his Democratic opponent Dunlap by a two to one lead in the early returns.

In the three counties, the breakdown on 35 of the 173 precincts for the judgeship showed the following early trend:

Washington County, 15 of 70 precincts—Harris 1805 and Ryan 1909.

Allegany County, 12 of 78 precincts—Harris 1439 and Ryan 1342.

Garrett County, 8 of 25 precincts—Harris 462 and Ryan 423. The difference was 32 votes.

Eight precincts reporting completely in Allegany county showed the following results:

Celanese Superintendent Is Transferred To New Plant

Mervin Martin, superintendent of Cellulose acetate research at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation for the past 10 years, has been transferred to the new Celanese plant in Prince Rupert, British Columbia.

Martin left here Sunday by train for British Columbia to assist other personnel in readying machinery and employing workers for the new plant, which is scheduled to begin operations early next year.

Prince Rupert, a city about the size of Frostburg, is located 80 miles from the border of Alaska.

The new plant is being set up for the processing of wood pulp.

Martin will return here during the Christmas season to take his family to Prince Rupert.

Prior to his transfer, Martin was employed at the local Celanese plant for about 25 years.

The family now resides at Roberts Place, near Bowling Green.

Mrs. Martin is the former Eleanor Deetz. The couple have three children, Patricia, 16, a junior at Allegany High School; Sue, 12, who is in the seventh grade at Allegany; and six-year-old Tommy, who entered the first grade at Mt. Royal School this year.

Martin is one of two local Celanese men to be transferred to Prince Rupert. Dr. Daniel Sherk, a chemist in CA research, is scheduled to leave here after the first of the year.

Yule Decoration Balloon Parade Plans Underway

Lights To Be Turned On By Thanksgiving

Baltimore Street is slated to take on a Yuletide look by Thanksgiving.

A report on plans for new street decorations on Baltimore Street between the railroads was presented yesterday at a meeting of the Christmas decoration committee of the Mercantile Bureau.

Results of solicitations to cover the cost of new street decorations and a huge balloon parade were reviewed.

Edward L. Ewald, chairman, said the results of the drive are encouraging.

The total cost of the program will be about $4,000, about double the cost of last year's Christmas program.

The contributions of organizations and merchants on Centre, Mechanic and Liberty Streets, officials said, have been most encouraging. They said it looks as if it will not be necessary to ask merchants to double their contributions to make the expanded program possible.

The balloon parade, which is expected to bring an unprecedented crowd to this city, will be staged November 27 at 7 p. m.

The exact route has not been set, but is expected to include Baltimore, North Centre, Market and Mechanic Streets. Over 45 minutes will be required to stage the giant parade.

The new street decorations will feature new decorations for all street lights and illuminated laurel ropes across the street.

State Shows Increase Of Gas In Home Heating

The number of Maryland homes equipped with gas heat increased by 19,970 during the past year, a report by the state's utility firms points out.

About 25,977 more homes will get gas heat in the next year if heating materials continue to be available by the end of 1951, the report continues. This increase of 100 per cent in homes with gas heating over the two-year period is the result of the rapid expansion of natural gas pipelines on which $152,864,000 has been spent in the state since 1946.

Weather

It was a warm and sunny election day yesterday after the temperature zoomed from a low of 39 degrees in the early morning to a high of 73 degrees in the afternoon downtown. A more than usual turnout of voters was attributed in part to the bright, sunny weather. Today, the Weather Bureau forecasts a high temperature, near 70 degrees. It is to be partly cloudy in the afternoon.

Staggers Leads In Home County, Some GOP Ahead

Congressman Gets Big Mineral Vote

KEYSER, W. Va.—Although some Republican candidates were running ahead in Mineral County, with only one of the 31 precincts missing, Congressman Harley O. Staggers, Keyser Democrat, piled up a wide margin yesterday in his home county, according to unofficial tabulations.

Returns from 30 precincts gave Staggers 4,246 votes to 3,124 for his Republican opponent, Melvin Snyder. Only Fountain, one of the smaller precincts, was unreported. It was expected to make small change in the races.

Other Mineral County totals, with the one precinct missing:

State Senator, Clarence E. Martin, Jr., D, 3,303, Harvey E. Beeler, Sr., R, 3,561; House of Delegates, George E. Barger, D, 3,320, John J. Rogers, R, 3,877; Clerk of County Court, Harry O. Rogers, R, unopposed, 4,335.

Clerk of Circuit Court, Ralph E. Casteel, D, 3,270, O. Abe Harman, R, 3,742; Mineral County Board of Education, non-partisan, G. Dewey Dick, 2,195, James R. Fuller, Jr., 2,725, Richard E. Romig, 3,672, N. C. Taylor, 1,545.

Mineral County voters gave an unfavorable majority in the proposed amendment to provide increased compensation for the State Legislation. The vote was 1,470 for to 2,555 against.

Two other matters were given majorities by the Mineral County voters, with the single precinct missing. The vote was 2,860 for to 2,126 against on the School Bond Amendment and 4,002 for to 1,887 against on the $90,000,000 veterans' bonus.

Births Announced

Allegany Hospital announces the following birth:

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Allison, Cresaptown, a daughter, yesterday morning.

Memorial Hospital announces the following births:

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Llewellyn, Pinto, a daughter, yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Shillingburg, Romney, W. Va., a daughter, yesterday.

Ober Measure Wins Decisive Support Here

Maryland's Ober Law received overwhelming approval in returns from seven of Allegany county's 78 precincts.

Voters in the scattered returns approved the retention of the Subversive Activities Act of 1949 by 638 with only 145 citizens voting against the measure.

Less decisive balloting indicates all of the other amendments will be approved in Allegany county.

The first of the amendments, providing for a constitutional convention to alter or frame a new constitution, received 253 affirmative votes with 129 voting against the proposal.

Another amendment which would freeze the membership in the House of Delegates received 252 votes with 110 voting against the measure.

The third amendment, which would provide that juries will be judges of law as well as fact in criminal cases was approved by a 238 to 104 count.

Also approved, with a count of 229 to 91, was an amendment to permit the General Assembly to reconsider bills vetoed by a governor after the General Assembly adjourns.

Approved with a count of 229 to 92 was a proposal to allow the courts to send a man to prison for refusing to pay alimony or support dependent children.

The sixth amendment, which would authorize the chief deputy treasurer to sign and the chief deputy comptroller to countersign bonds or other certificates was approved by a 239 to 75 count.

Election Highlights

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

It was a beautiful day for an election with clear skies and mercury riding along in the seventies most of the afternoon, climbing steadily and rapidly from a cool 50 when the polls opened at 7 a. m. According to tradition, it was Republican weather and a record vote turned out.

By noonday, observers noted that a 25 per cent vote had been cast in most of the city, while in outlying county areas about 30 per cent had come in. This contrasted sharply with the 10 to 12 per cent by noon-day at the primary election and 15 to 17 per cent at the last general election.

The veteran organizations who beat the drums so hard for the Ober Law, and publicized the idea that they would have at least one worker at each precinct urging support of the Ober Law, put in a very late appearance. Only seven were seen in 38 city precincts handing out sample ballots, although regular workers were giving the cause a hand.

The first returns reported last night came from 6-2 A-J on Fayette Street reporting McKeldin ahead of Lane with a 69 per cent vote cast.

The second call came from 6-2 K to Z, Fayette Street, a few minutes

West Virginia Gives Approval To Demo Rule

All Congressmen Forge To Front

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 7 (AP)—West Virginia voters turned out in unprecedented off-year numbers today to give apparent approval to continued Democratic rule.

With about half of the state's 2,811 precincts counted, Democratic incumbents ran up impressive majorities for the three statewide offices at stake.

All of the Democratic Congressmen forged into the front, some by wide margins. Among those trailing was Rush D. Holt, who switched to Republican this year after having served in the U. S. Senate as a Democrat.

The voters gave approval in overwhelming numbers to a proposed Veteran Bonus, and also voted in favor of relaxing the rules on school bond issues to stimulate school building construction.

They apparently rejected a proposal to double the pay of members of the State Senate and House of Delegates.

Early indications were that the Democrats would retain control of the State Senate, and early returns on House of Delegate contests indicated only one casualty among the majority Democrats.

The bonus would allow $10 for each month of domestic service, or $15 for each month of foreign duty, up to maximums of $300 for home service and $400 for foreign service.

The incumbent state officers, with well over half of the polling places tabulated, were out in front by wide margins.

River Dragging For Missing Man Planned Today

Dreyer Will Seek Body In Afternoon

Because the theory has been advanced that George Eaton, 32-year-old missing man, may have fallen from the Western Maryland Railway bridge and drowned in the Potomac River, County Treasurer Frederick C. Dreyer, veteran river man, is planning to drag the river this afternoon.

Eaton, who lived with his father in an unpainted frame house along the old C & O Canal, a short distance south of the Western Maryland Railway station, has been missing since about 10:45 p. m. last Saturday.

Charlie Eaton, 76-year-old father of the missing man, told a reporter for The News yesterday afternoon that he and his son had spent last Saturday evening together in a pool room on Baltimore Street. Because it was raining when they left, they decided to take a taxi home.

"When we got home George told me that he was going over to see his sister, Mrs. Lillian Cassell, who lives at 32 Carpenter Avenue, in Ridgeley, W. Va.," Charlie Eaton said. "He walked out toward the railroad bridge and that was the last I saw of him."

Dreyer talked with the elder Eaton yesterday about dragging the Potomac River bottom.

"George may have met up with a friend in Ridgeley and rode out in the country for a stay there," his father explained. "He couldn't write so I would have no way of telling where he had been until he returned."

Area Soldier Wins Bronze Star Fighting In Korea

Pfc. J. H. Miller

Pfc. James H. Miller, son of Charles Raymond Miller, Bedford Valley, Pa., has been awarded the Bronze Star in Korea, where he has been been fighting throughout the Korean War with the Army's 24th Division.

Information about the 18-year-old soldier's honor came to his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Miller, Corriganville, in one of six letters which arrived from Korea on the same day this week. The soldier has a sister, Mrs. Walter Ruby, who lives at Beans Cove, Pa.

Pfc. Miller's letter of October 20, which told of the Bronze Star, made very little mention of his own part in the Korean fighting. However, another letter, lated October 17, said that Miller was "pretty close" to the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, at the time. Incidentally, that city fell to the United Nations forces only two days after Miller's letter was written.

The soldier informed his uncle and aunt that he had captured a North Korean flag which he would bring back to the United States with him. He expressed a hope that he would be home for Christmas, but was most uncertain. Since that letter was written the participation of Chinese Communists on the side of the North Koreans undoubtedly has ruined this hope.

His letter of October 17 referred to the happy days when the North Koreans were surrendering in droves. He wrote:

"Helped take some North Koreans today. They had taken off their uniforms and were wearing civilian clothes like all the other people. Every day they come walking down the road with their hands up. Not just one or two at a time but by the dozens. That's the way we like them."

Although he is only 18 years old Pfc. Miller has been in the Army 20 months. Stationed in Japan at the time the war started, he soon was shipped into South Korea and has been there ever since.

Rubber Workers Plan Balloting On Dues Boost

Referendum To Be Held November 16

A referendum on a proposal to increase the monthly dues of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastics Workers of America (CIO), by 50 cents will be held November 16 at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant.

Notices of the special election were posted at the tire plant yesterday.

Members of the union, at a meeting Sunday at the local hall, unanimously approved an Executive Board recommendation that the monthly dues be increased.

The membership action paved the way for the referendum in compliance with Article VIII, Section 3, Paragraph 4 of the URCLPWA constitution.

Booths at the plant will be open from 6 to 8 a.m.; 2 to 4 p.m. and from 10 p.m. to midnight on Thursday, November 16.

Members must present union cards to tellers to be eligible to vote.

The notice, signed by Ralph C. Beard, vice president, said the increase of dues to $2 a month is necessary in order to maintain the functions of the organization and give services necessary to the welfare of each member.

The cost of handling grievances, the union said, has increased with each raise obtained for all the members, as it is necessary to pay a higher rate per hour for all time lost from work by committeemen.

Many other increases in cost have to be met covering office supplies, rent and phone calls and the union must be prepared to pay for arbitration cases which are very expensive, Beard said.
